

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

A

AACHEN AND MUNICH FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY of Aix-la-Chapelle, Germany. Joseph A. Kelsey, manager for the United States, with headquarters at New York; S. H. Quackenbush, assistant manager.

ABANDONMENT. In marine insurance the relinquishment of an insured ship or cargo to the underwriters when the same is damaged and the claim is for a total loss. There is no abandonment in fire underwriting.

ABEILLE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, Paris, France. Starkweather & Shepley, Inc., United States managers. Geo. L. Shepley, president; Emil G. Pieper, superintendent of agencies.

ABINGTON MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, Abington, Mass. Incorporated 1856; began business 1857. Isaac C. Howland, president; Edgar H. Thompson, vice-president; Alfred H. Nash, secretary and treasurer.

ADJUSTER. The business of an adjuster as known in American fire insurance is to examine into losses and settle upon the amounts due. He is a regular employee of the company, usually, although there are some independent adjusters who work for any company employing them, temporarily, or on particular losses. In most cases, also, the adjuster acts as appraiser except where an official or technical appraisal is to be had. The General Adjustment Bureau was organized in 1905 to have charge of adjustments throughout the eastern district of the United States. It is an incorporated body. Similar bureaus have been organized in other sections of the country, and as a rule have been a success. The National Board of Fire Underwriters in 1912 appointed a committee on adjustments, which was charged particularly with the work of preparing a system for adjusting large conflagration losses. While there are still individual and independent adjusters much of the work of adjusting losses, except small losses, is done through the bureaus.

ADJUSTMENT. In fire insurance practice in the United States this work covers the act of the adjuster in settling a loss as well as its apportionment between different insurers. The latter is sometimes difficult and puzzling in the case of non-concurrent policies. [See Non-Concurrent Policies — Apportionment.]

AETNA INSURANCE COMPANY of Hartford was incorporated in 1819, and began business August 19th. Its capital stock was fixed at $150,000, 10 per cent. of which was paid in. The Aetna was one of the pioneers in the agency business, and wrote policies in Chicago as early as 1834. Its present capital is $5,000,000, and its stockholders have at various times paid in in cash $4,695,000 of that amount. Up to the date of the Chicago fire, in 1871, there had been paid in $195,000, and the capital was $3,000,000. After the fire it was reduced one-half, and immediately restored by the payment of $1,500,000. After the Boston fire, in 1872, it was reduced to $2,000,000, and restored by the payment of $1,000,000. In 1881 the payment of another million increased the capital to $4,000,000; in 1910 the payment of another million increased the capital to its present figure. The Aetna's operations now include every section of the country.

The department managers are: Western branch, Chicago, Ill., Thos. E. Gallagher, general agent, L. O. Kohtz, assistant general agent, L. O. Kotz, general agent marine department; Pacific branch, San Francisco, Cal., W. H. Breeding, general agent, E. S. Livingston, assistant general agent (Inland), Geo. E. Townsend, assistant general agent (Fire).

The company has had six presidents since its organization in 1819. Thomas K. Brace retained the office until 1857, a period of thirty-eight years. Edwin G. Ripley succeeded President Brace, and remained at the head of the company until 1862, when he was succeeded by Thomas A. Alexander. In 1866 Lucius J. Hendee was elected president, and retained the position until his death, September 4, 1888. Jotham Goodnow was elected the successor of President Hendee, being advanced from the secretaryship, which he had held for twenty-two years. He died November 19, 1892, and was succeeded by William B. Clark, who was elected president on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his connection with the company. President Clark's associate officers are Henry E. Rees and A. N. Williams, vice-presidents; E. J. Sloan, secretary; E. S. Allen, G. E. Beardsley and R. B. Ives, assistant secretaries. W. F. Whittelsey, Marine secretary.

The directors are: Austin C. Dunham, Morgan G. Bulkeley, Atwood Collins, William B. Clark, Francis Goodwin, Charles E. Gross, James H. Knight, Charles P. Cooley, Arthur L. Shipman, Charles L. Spencer, Lyman B. Brainard, Charles A. Goodwin, H. E. Rees, A. N. Williams and J. P. Morgan. The special agents are: J. B. Hughes, O. H. King, C. J. Irvin, H. O. Kline, H. B. Smith, James S. Middleton, F. W. Mathews, P. P. Tucker, Joseph M. Biggert, George W. Mills, E. C. French, W. C. Roach, H. B. Nugent, C. L. Ruse, S. L. Johnson, F. C. Clarke, Arthur Lohmeyer, W. H. Wart, W. Ross McCain, Edward Wright, J. R. Stewart, I. B. Beard, J. A. Brackney, W. S. Clark, P. W. D. Jones, A. G. O'Neill, Cooper D. Winn, Jr., W. H. Boutell, Frank W. Brodie. The total assets of the company, December 31, 1915, aggregated $24,730,602.67. Liabilities, exclusive of capital, $12,146,087.08. The net cash premiums received during the year 1915 reached the sum of $12,385,212.79;

$2,796,262.59 being in the inland department. The total cash income for the year was $13,387,394.93; total cash expenditures, $12,360,809.85; the fire and marine losses paid amounted to $6,312,117.95; net amount of risks in force, $1,799,763,259.00. Since organization the company has received in premiums $289,941,417.85; losses paid since organization, $150,705,781.16; cash dividends declared, $37,101,365.00; dividends payable in stock, $2,805,000.00. AFFIDAVIT RISKS. Laws concerning. [See Reinsurance and Surplus Line Laws.]

AGENTS, RESIDENT. Laws concerning. [See Resident Agents' Laws.]

AGENT. TERM DEFINED. The insurance laws of many states define who are agents, and such laws are in force in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Texas, Utah, Washington, and Wisconsin. The laws of a majority of the above states are general in application and while phrased differently, define an agent to be any person who solicits insurance, receives or transmits an application, other than for himself, or in any manner aids in the transaction of the business of an insurance company.

The laws of Florida and Montana contain separate sections defining surety agents, while the laws of Indiana contain additional sections defining separately both surety and life agents, and the law of Delaware defines both life and fire agents, but only agents dealing with companies not incorporated by the state, and defines such as "foreign insurance agents." The Colorado law provides that "a person not a duly licensed broker, licensed solicitor, or licensed agent's employe," who other than for himself and for compensation, solicits, or transmits any application for insurance or offers or assumes to act in the negotiation of such insurance, shall be an insurance agent within the intent of the law.

The Mississippi law in addition includes every person who shall examine or inspect any risk or adjust or assist in adjusting any loss within its definition of agent, while the law of New York does not include officers or salaried employes who do not receive commissions within its definition. The Pennsylvania law reads: "An agent is an individual, co-partnership or corporation, authorized in writing by a company: [a] To solicit risks and collect premiums, and to issue or countersign policies in its behalf; or [b] To solicit risks and collect premiums in its behalf," and the Washington law is very similar but designates agents as "soliciting" and "recording or policy writing" agents. The Michigan law also makes a distinction between a solicitor and agent, and also defines special and general agents. [See Cyclopedia for 1915.]

[For text of laws, enacted prior to 1914 see Cyclopedia of Insurance for 1913-14, and also Cyclopedia for 1915, fire section.]

It transacts business in most of the states and territories. It writes tornado insurance. Sixty-third annual statement, January 1, 1916:

ANTI-COMPACT LAWS. Legislation forbidding fire insurance companies or agents to combine in compacts or boards of underwriters, for the purpose of fixing, maintaining, and controlling rates of insurance upon property appears to have had its birth in the Michigan legislature of 1883. A bill was introduced, but failed of passage, was reintroduced in the session of 1885, and again failed, but in the session of 1887 the bill was again introduced and enacted into law. Meanwhile the idea had been taken up in Ohio, and in 1885 the legislature of that state injected an anti-compact provision into a section of the statutes prohibiting the removal of suits from state to federal courts, and enacted it into law. Ohio thus secured the credit of being the first state to enact an anti-compact law. [For the progress and history of anti-compact legislation, see Cyclopedia for 1910-11 and earlier volumes. For an account of proceedings against companies for violations of the laws, or legal proceedings involving compacts, and decisions thereon see Cyclopedia for 1904-5 and subsequent volumes and for a review of the court's decision in the Iowa anti-compact case, and the decision on the Arkansas law see Cyclopedia for 1906-7 and subsequent volumes.] Anti-compact laws have given way to rate regulation and anti-discrimination legislation in several states resulting in the repeal of provisions prohibiting rating compacts or agreements. [See Discrimination in Insurance Rates.] The anti-compact laws of Missouri and Michigan were repealed in 1915, and the Washington law was amended. There are, therefore, anti-compact laws now in force in fourteen states as follows: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, South Carolina, Tennessee, Washington, and Wisconsin. A Virginia law prohibits combinations of companies for the purpose of regulating commissions to agents, as do also the laws of Louisiana, Ohio, Nebraska, and South Dakota. The laws of Arkansas, Louisiana, South Dakota, and South Carolina require the filing of a sworn affidavit to the effect that the company has not entered into a combination or agreement. [For full text of the anti-compact laws see Cyclopedia for 1913-14, fire section, also Cyclopedia for 1915.]

The South Carolina legislature enacted a law in 1916, which was signed by the governor and went into effect in March, and was followed by a large number of companies members of the Southeastern Underwriters Association, suspending business in the state. Sections one and two of the law read as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any fire insurance company, association, or partnership doing fire insurance business in this State to enter into any compact or combination with other fire insurance companies, associations, or partnerships, or to require or allow their agents to enter into any compact or combination with other insurance agencies, associations, or partnerships for the purpose of governing or controlling the rates charged for fire insurance charged on any property in this State: Provided, That nothing herein shall prohibit one or more of such companies from employing a common agent or agents to prepare and furnish maps and other data as to the risks and to supervise and advise of defective structures or suggest improvements to lessen fire hazard.

Sec. 2. All fire insurance companies, associations, or partnerships doing a fire insurance business in this State shall cause to be filed on the first day of March, 1917, and in each year thereafter, with the Insurance Commissioner of this State, the affidavit of some officer or agent of said company, association, or partnership, who resides in this State, setting forth the fact that the company of which he is an officer or agent has not, in the twelve months previous to the date of the said affidavit, entered into any trust, combination, or association for the purpose of preventing competition in insurance rates in this State. . . . provided, further, that any attempt to evade the provisions of this act by agreeing upon one person or number of persons for the purpose of making rates for such insurance companies, associations, or partnerships, or by buying rate books made by any person or persons, shall be deemed a violation of the provisions of this act and shall be punished as herein provided.

Section 2 also provides that the required affidavit shall be made before some officer authorized to administer oaths, and any false statement shall be deemed perjury, and punished by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1000 and by confinement in the penitentiary for one year, in the discretion of the court, by confinement in jail for a period not less than thirty days nor more than twelve months. Section 3 provides a further penalty for any violation of the act of a revocation of license, which shall not be renewed for a period of three years, and a fine on conviction of not less than $500. Section 5 provides that the commissioner shall require to be filed with the annual statement made to him a statement duly sworn to by the manager or president of each company, association or partnership legally admitted in this State, that it has not in the year intervening between the issue of its last license and that applied for, violated the conditions of this act."

The act does not apply to mill mutuals or the Factory Insurance Association. [See also Discrimination in Insurance Rates, Laws Against, this volume.] Proceedings were begun to test the constitutionality of the law, and the law was held constitutional by the state supreme court.

ASSOCIATIONS OF SUPERINTENDENTS AND CAPTAINS OF FIRE PATROLS, SALVAGE CORPS, AND PROTECTIVE DEPARTMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES. At the annual convention of the National Association of Fire Engineers held at Louisville, Ky., in October, 1892, the chiefs of fire patrols and salvage corps who were present as delegates in the convention had a separate meeting and organized an association, taking the above title. The purposes of the association as set forth were as follows: The promotion of friendly relations between fire departments and fire patrols of the same city; the collection of statistics regarding incendiarism and means of protection of property at fires, and mutual social conventions. The officers elected for the first year were: Captain A. C. Hull, superintendent of the Fire Patrol of New York, president; J. F. Pelletier, captain of the Fire Patrol of Kansas City, Mo., secretary and treasurer.

At the twenty-fourth annual meeting held in Cincinnati, Ohio, August, 1915, Frank Whitmore, St. Paul, was elected president, and John T. Ruane, Minneapolis, was elected secretary and treasurer. Fourteen cities were represented at the meeting. [For account of meetings from 1893 to 1902 see Cyclopedia of 1900-1901 and 1902-1903.]

BOSTON PROTECTIVE DEPARTMENT has grown and developed out of small beginnings. In 1849 its sole equipment consisted of two canvas bags, each containing three oil covers. The headquarters were located in the insurance office of Dobson & Jordan, No. 50 State Street.

October 1, 1868, the first company was organized by Assistant Engineer W. A. Green of the fire department, and consisted of nine men, the driver being the only permanent man and up to March 29, 1874, the department was maintained by voluntary contributions. In 1874 the legislature granted a charter to the organization, which was accepted March 11, immediately after its passage, and a code of by-laws adopted. The original title "The Boston Protective Department," was retained in the corporate name, and the fire insurance companies doing business in Boston are required to maintain it.

The department consists of three companies and a force of 64 men. Samuel Abbott, Jr., was appointed superintendent in 1880 and continued at the head of the department. [See Cyclopedia for 1913-14 for history of the organization.]

The forty-first annual report of the department for the year ending December 31, 1915, gave the number of alarms as 5,532; of which 4,027 were for fires, and of these 1,594 occurred in brick and stone buildings, 1,374 in wooden buildings, and 1,059 outside. Of these fires, 2,681 were confined to the floors where they originated, 266 to the buildings where they originated; 14 extended to adjoining property, and 7 extended beyond adjoining property; originating in buildings, 110; not originating in buildings, 916; not originating in, but involving buildings, 33. The loss on buildings and contents, direct loss, was $2,913,666.27, and on buildings and contents, exposure losses, was $90,933.21. Some of the

BROKER, TERM DEFINED. The insurance laws of a few states define who are brokers. Such laws are in force in Colorado, Connecticut, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Nevada, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Virginia, and Washington. [For full text of the laws enacted prior to 1914, see Cyclopedia for 1913-14. See also Cyclopedia for 1915, fire section.]

The laws in their terms are with few exceptions practically the same, and define a broker as: "Whoever for compensation acts or aids in any manner in negotiating contracts of insurance or reinsurance, or placing risks or effecting insurance or reinsurance for a person other than himself, and not being the appointed agent, or officer of the company in which such insurance or reinsurance is effected, shall be deemed an insurance broker."

The Kansas law, however, limits the definition to any one placing insurance in an unauthorized company; and the New York law defines a broker as "any person, partnership, association, or corporation, who for money, commission, or anything of value, acts or aids in any manner on behalf of the insured" in negotiating or placing contracts of insurance, including surety bonds. The Virginia law defines a broker as any person who shall solicit for compensation any policy of insurance "either on account of any person desiring to effect such insurance or any insurance company, except the duly authorized agent (or a clerk actually employed in his office) of any insurance company licensed to do business in this state," and "any insurance agent (or a clerk actually employed in his office) who shall solicit, directly or indirectly, any fire, marine, or other insurance, either on account of any person desiring to effect any such insurance, or on account of any insurance company licensed to do business in this state, other than for the insurance company or companies for which he is the duly authorized agent."

The Washington law defines a broker as "any person who solicits insurance to be placed in an insurance company other than represented by him."

The South Carolina legislature in 1916 enacted a law regulating brokerage business and Section 1 of the act declares the term insurance broker as used in the act "to be such person as shall be licensed by the insurance commissioner to represent citizens of this state for the placing of insurance to insurers licensed in this state or in any other state or country."

CHICAGO BOARD OF UNDERWRITERS. The first board of underwriters of Chicago was organized in 1849. W. Dole, who represented a company now long defunct, the Columbus Insurance Company of Ohio, was the first president, and John C. Dodge was secretary. After this organization fell to pieces another board was formed in 1856, with the pioneer insurance man of Chicago, Gurdan H. Hubbard of the Ætna, as president, and J. Kearney Rodgers as secretary and surveyor. In 1861 this organization was duly incorporated by the legislature as the Chicago Board of Underwriters.

Following the great fire the board was reorganized February 22, 1872, with S. M. Moore as president, General A. C. Ducat, vice-president; J. Goodwin, Jr., treasurer, and Alfred Wright, secretary. The career of the board was undisturbed until 1880, when, because of violent internal dissensions, a number of members withdrew, and, on January 27, started a rival organization, to which they gave the name of the Underwriters' Exchange. The first officers were Robert J. Smith, president; William E. Rollo, vice-president; and R. M. Trimingham, secretary. The two bodies continued their labors on parallel lines for five years, sometimes in harmony, but more often in hostility, until in 1885, after repeated efforts, a union of forces was effected. A new organization was created (the Chicago Fire Underwriters' Association), and into this the Exchange was merged. The board members also became members of the association, but the Board of Underwriters was continued. In January, 1906, the by-laws were amended and the membership greatly enlarged by the admission of the members of the Chicago Underwriters Association, which then ceased to exist. Officers were elected at the annual meeting in 1916, as follows: President, H. G. Buswell, Home; vice-president, Bernard Rogers; secretary, R. N. Trimingham; treasurer, George S. Haskell; manager, H. H. Glidden.

CO-INSURANCE CLAUSE IN FIRE UNDERWRITING. The 80 per cent. co-insurance clause, which was adopted by fire insurance companies and associations, went into effect on rated risks in New York, New England, and many of the principal cities from 1892 to 1899, but encountered considerable opposition from property-owners almost solely because it was not understood, and excited hostile legislation in a large number of legislatures.

Laws prohibiting the co-insurance clauses are in force, therefore, in twelve states: Missouri (1893, modified in 1903 and 1915 as to cities), Iowa (1897 and 1911), Louisiana (1894 and 1908), Indiana (1895 and 1901), Georgia (valued policy law, 1895), Michigan (1895, 1907, and 1913), Wisconsin (1897), New Jersey (1900), Texas (1911 and 1913), Minnesota (1895, 1903, and 1915), Tennessee (1893 and 1903), North Carolina (1915 standard policy law), South Dakota (standard policy law).

The laws with the exception of those of Texas and Louisiana are optional; that is, permit the use of the clause upon the application of or the written consent of the insured. The Texas law, however, permits the use of the clause in policies covering cotton, grain, or other products in process of marketing, shipping, storing, or manufacture. The Louisiana law does not apply "to personal or movable property" whenever the words: "This policy is issued subject to the conditions of the coinsurance clause attached hereto," are stamped on the face and back of the policy. The Missouri law contains a provision that the section shall not apply to policies "upon personal property" in cities of 100,000 population or more, "Whenever the insured sign an agreement endorsed across the face of said policy to be exempt from the provisions thereof." The South Dakota law permits the use of the clause, which is styled "reduced rate average clause," on written application of the insured, and provided "such company shall before accepting such application, inform the applicant of the rates of premium demanded with and without such clause." The Wisconsin and North Carolina law requires the same information regarding the rate to be given, and the commissioner of North Carolina has ruled that neither broker nor agent is permitted to sign an application for the use of the co-insurance clause, but the insured must make the application. The Minnesota law permits the use of the clause in policies of $5,000 or more, "if the insured requests the same in writing, and, if, in consideration thereof, a reduction in the rate of premium is made. The Tennessee law requires that if the clause is accepted by the insured "it shall be a condition precedent to its validity" that a reduction in rate has been allowed. The reduction to be allowed is specified, and is dependent on the percentage clause used. The clause can apply only in cities and towns having a population of more than 15,000.

Iowa, while requiring written request, provides that in no case shall the clause apply "to dwellings or farm property nor to any risk where the value of property insured is less than $25,000," except grain elevators and warehouses and their contents.

The laws of Iowa, Michigan, and South Dakota not only prescribe the form of application for the use of the clause, but also prescribe the form of the clause itself. The Michigan clause is a part of the application and reads: —

"It is hereby agreed that the assured shall maintain insurance during the life of this policy upon the property hereby insured, to the extent of at least per cent. of the actual cash value thereof, and that failing to do so, the assured shall be a co-insurer to the extent of the difference between the amount insured and the said per cent. of the cash value, and to that extent shall bear his, her, or their proportion of any loss. It is also agreed that if this policy be divided into two or more items, the foregoing conditions shall apply to each item separately:"

The South Dakota form, which is styled the "reduced rate average clause," reads:

It is a part of the consideration for this policy and the basis upon which the rate of premium is fixed that the assured shall maintain insurance on the property described in this policy to the extent of at least per cent. of the actual cash value thereof, and that failing to do so, the assured shall be a co-insurer to the extent of such deficit and to that extent shall bear his, her, or their proportion of any loss; and it is expressly agreed that in case there shall be more than one item or division in the form of this policy, this clause shall apply to each and every item.

The clause prescribed by the Iowa law reads:

In consideration of the acceptance by the insured of a reduction in premiums from the established rate of per cent. to per cent. it is hereby agreed that the insured shall maintain insurance during the life of this policy upon the property insured:

1. To the extent of dollars, or
2. To the extent of at least per cent. of the actual cash value thereof at the time of fire (whichever may be agreed upon) and, that failing to do so the insured shall be a co-insurer to the extent of such deficit.

The Wisconsin legislature in 1915 passed an act authorizing the following either in the policy or as a rider:

A provision that the insured shall bear the first part of any loss as provided therein to a specified percentage not exceeding five per centum of the amount of insurance.

In any case of loss, the company or insurer shall pay the excess after deducting from the adjustment the part aforesaid. No such provision shall be valid unless there be stamped, written, or printed upon the filing back of the policy, an indorsement hereby authorized, which shall read: "Rate reduced from $ to $ in consideration of the insured bearing the first part of any loss as herein provided." Both blanks must be filled.

Kentucky in 1916 enacted a law which is a paragraph of the valued policy law, but which provided that the valued policy provisions should not apply to policies containing a co-insurance clause, the use of which is authorized in the following terms:

It shall be lawful for corporations, firms, or individuals doing a fire insurance business in this State to contract with the assured that the assured shall during the life of such contract, maintain insurance upon the property insured to the extent of an agreed proportion of the actual cash value of the property at the time that a fire occurs, and that should the assured fail to do so, the assured shall be a co-insurer to the extent that the insurance then in force is less than the amount of such agreed proportion, and to that extent shall as such co-insurer bear his part of any loss.

It is provided further that "the acceptance of such contract shall be at the option of the assured and that a reduced rate shall be given when such clause is used." [For text of laws enacted prior to 1914 see Cyclopedia for 1913-14 and also Cyclopedia for 1915.]

THE CO-INSURANCE CLAUSE DEFINED

What is known in the United States as "co-insurance" has been common to marine underwriting under the name of "average" from the earliest knowledge we have of insurance. The principle involved is that of a common peril shared by all interested. If any portion of a cargo was jettisoned in order to save the rest, or if the whole cargo was thrown overboard to save the ship, all whose interests were imperiled contributed to make good the loss. In fire insurance the principle is applied to all policies issued in France, Belgium, Germany, and Russia. It is used in floating policies in the United Kingdom, and in English policies in Egypt, India, China, and Japan. It has been used in a desultory fashion in the United States, at different times, but it is only within a few years that a serious attempt has been made to apply co-insurance universally to fire insurance policies in this country.

The principle is that the entire property at risk should bear the burden of the loss of any part of it. That can only be done when the property is either fully insured or is totally destroyed. The co-insurance clause is only operative in partial losses, which are a large percentage of the fire losses. In these cases the owner contracts that he will either carry insurance to the limit required, or himself become a co-insurer for the deficiency. Without this clause the underwriter cannot intelligently rate any risk. Property worth $10,000 and insured for $10,000 is a very different risk from the same property insured for $1,000. In the one case the destruction of one-tenth of the property means a 10 per cent. loss, and in the other case it means a total loss. The two risks cannot properly be written at the same rate, because they do not involve the same hazard. The effect of the universal application of the principle would be that the amount of insurance would be somewhat increased, the premium rate would be reduced, while rates would be equalized as between the owners who have heretofore carried partial insurance and those who have carried full insurance. For some reason, which it would be difficult to explain, except upon the hypothesis that the property-owner does not know the exact value of his property, but that he ought to be able to guess within a named percentage of it, the clause which came into use in the United States was known as the "percentage co-insurance clause," and read:

If at the time of fire the whole amount of insurance on the property covered by this policy shall be less than.....per cent. of the actual cash value thereof, this company shall in case of loss or damage be liable for only such portion of such loss or damage as the amount insured by this policy shall bear to the saidper cent. of the actual cash value of such property.

The French clause translated reads:

If at the time of a fire the value of the objects covered by the policy is found to exceed the total of the insurance, the assured is considered as having remained his own insurer for that excess, and he is to bear in that character his proportion of the loss.

The German clause employed is:

If in case of a fire the insured objects should exceed the sum insured, and they should be partly saved, the assured will be considered as self-insurer for the excess, and is to bear his share of the loss pro rata.

To make another illustration of the operation of the co-insurance clause in the United States policy: suppose the percentage inserted in the clause is 80, if the whole amount of insurance at time of fire be less than eighty per cent. of value of the insured property, the owner must bear his share of any loss for the difference between the total amount of insurance carried and eighty per cent. of the value of the property insured, just as though he were an insurance company and had issued his policy for this amount. Thus, with a stock of goods worth $10,000 and an insurance of only $5,000, $8,000 would be eighty per cent. of value, which would make the owner, in case of a fire, be interested to the extent of $3,000, just as though he were an insurance company and had issued a policy insuring his own property for $3,000. This would make the necessary $8,000 insurance, or eighty per cent. of value, he having become a co-insurer with the regular insurance company, having its policy on the risk for $5,000. A fire doing a damage, say, of $4,000, would be paid for in the following way:

Regular insurance company would pay five-eighths of $4,000 or	$2,500
Owner would pay to himself (his share)	1,500
<hr/>
Making up the whole loss	$4,000

Suppose now that his regular insurance had been $8,000, the co-insurance clause would cost him nothing, as the regular insurance company would pay him "as the amount of insurance shall bear eighty per cent. of value," which means, in this case, the regular company would pay him eighty-eighths of $4,000, or his full loss.

On the other hand, suppose the property to have been entirely destroyed, or a total loss, he would get the full amount of his regular insurance, because five-eighths of $10,000 would amount to more than the face of the policy.

Again, suppose a man with $10,000 value is insured in the old way for but $5,000, a rate of one per cent., making his yearly premium $50, and a fire causes loss of $5,000. He collects this from the companies, while his neighbor, with the same value, hazard, and rate, gets insured for $8,000, at a cost of $80 per annum, and he has a damage of $5,000; the one gets the same as the other gets, only No. 1 has paid less than No. 2 paid for his insurance, while if the eighty per cent. co-insurance clause were a part of both contracts, No. 1 would have received from the companies but $3,125, while No. 2, who had enough to satisfy the demands of the eighty per cent. co-insurance clause, would receive his full loss, or $5,000.

Small fires being by far the more common, and, it may be added, by far the more expense to the companies, rates can be made with more fairness on the basis of co-insurance than without it.

The use of the co-insurance or average clause was made obligatory in Great Britain on floating policies in 1828 (see Walford's Cyclopaedia), but the clause adopted was a long one. It can be found on pages 332-3, Vol. I.

DEED OF SETTLEMENT. In England all insurance companies formed prior to 1862 were organized under a deed of settlement which set forth the contemplated objects of the association. These deeds are analogous to our charters, and the phrase is used in our laws which compel filing a company's charter or deed of settlement.

DEPOSITS, SPECIAL, REQUIRED BY STATES. A few states require special deposits from fire insurance companies. Several states, however, require deposits by other state companies if they have not made deposits in their home states, and by companies of other countries, if they have not made deposits in some other state of the United States. The deposit required by foreign companies is usually $200,000, and a certificate is required showing that such deposit has been made in some state or with United States trustees. Most of the states make the provisions of the reciprocal or retaliatory laws apply to deposits. The following is a statement of the states requiring special deposits from other than domestic fire insurance companies:

Florida—Fire companies, $10,000 in bonds or cash or surety bond for $20,000.

Georgia—(Acts of 1905). Fire, marine and inland insurance companies, chartered by other states or foreign government, $25,000 in bonds of the United States, of Georgia or of any county or municipality of Georgia.

New Mexico—By fire insurance companies, $10,000, in United States money, or in territorial or county bonds, or real estate in the territory of that value must be owned.

New York—By fire and marine companies of other countries, $200,000.

Virginia—By all companies (except those doing a marine business exclusively in the state) 5 per cent. of their capital in bonds of Virginia or the United States, or the cities or counties of Virginia, such deposits to be not less than $10,000, nor more than $50,000, and no single bond to be over $10,000.

Oregon—Fire companies, $25,000 in United States bonds, or bonds of the state of Oregon, or municipal, school district or county bonds issued in Oregon, if the company has capital of $200,000 or more and a surplus of $100,000 or more. A surety bond may be accepted.

DISCRIMINATION IN INSURANCE RATES, LAWS AGAINST. The laws of several states prohibit discrimination in the making of rates, or charges, for policies of fire insurance. Such legislation has been enacted within recent years, and is in most cases a section, or part of the laws providing for regulation, or supervision over rates or rating organizations. [See also Anti-Rebate Laws, Life Section.]

The following is a statement of the laws: —

NEW JERSEY. Laws of 1913, Chapter 85.

1. No corporation, firm, association, individual or aggregation of individuals, hereinafter called "insurer," doing the business of insurance within this State shall fix or make any rate or schedule of rates, or charge, demand, collect or receive, directly or indirectly, or through any special rate, tariff, drawback, rebate, concession, device or subterfuge, a rate for insurance, which discriminates unfairly between risks within this State of essentially the same hazard, nor shall any insurer against the hazards of fire or legal liability of employers make any such insurance within this State except in accordance with general basis schedules, embodying basis rates, charges, credits, terms, conditions, permits, standards and other data necessary to the computation of equitable rates and rules of practice for such insurance, which general basis schedules, embodying basis rates, charges, credits, terms, conditions, permits, standards and other data used for the determination of rates shall be filed by such insurer or its agent or expert duly authorized, with the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance . . . or with the amendments to such basis schedules which may be filed . . . from time to time. . .

The act provides that any one or more insurers, singly or jointly, may employ the services of experts in making such basis schedules or rates, and every insurer or agent shall, within ten days after written demand therefor, furnish to any person upon whose property a risk or rate has been made, full information as to such rate. The insurance commissioner may, whenever it is made to appear to his satisfaction that any such rule or general basis schedule, or amendment thereof, discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazard, or that any rate has been made not in accordance with the general basis schedule, order such discrimination removed or such rate corrected, and all such insurers shall forthwith comply with such order. The discrimination may not be removed by increasing the rates on any risk or classes of risk affected by such order unless the commissioner is satisfied that such increase is justifiable. Any insurer, agent, person, or corporation violating the provisions of the act is subject to a fine of five hundred dollars for each and every violation.

SOUTH CAROLINA. The legislature in 1916 enacted an anti-compact law, of which Section 8 prohibits discrimination in the following terms: "No fire insurer and no fire insurance agent either directly or indirectly shall make or permit any difference or distinction in rates, in methods of payment of premium or in any other way whatsoever between insurers of risks of essentially the same fire hazard."

Violation subjects the offender to a fine of $100, and on second offence to a revocation of license.

Section 7 of the act gives the insurance commissioner power on written complaint or upon his own motion "to review any rate fixed by any individual or insurer for fire insurance upon property within this State, for the purpose of determining whether the same is discriminatory or unjust. He shall have power to order the discrimination removed and require substituted a rate which is not discriminatory or unjust." The commissioner's rulings or findings are subject to review by a court of competent jurisdiction. Proceedings to test the constitutionality of the act were begun in April, and the State supreme court held the law unconstitutional.

MINNESOTA. The legislature in 1915 enacted a law relating to rating bureaus and rate regulation of which Section 2 in part reads as follows:

No fire insurance company or other insurer against the risk of fire or lightning, nor any rating bureau, shall fix or charge any rate for fire insurance upon property in this state which discriminates unfairly between risks in the application of like charges and credits, or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire.

Variations from the bureau rate may be made but notice to that effect must be filed with the insurance commissioner and with the rating bureau fifteen days in advance of the taking effect of such variation, which "shall be uniform and applicable to all risks of essentially the same hazard in the class for which such variation is made." If any insurer grant a lower rate than that fixed by the rating bureau such rates cannot be increased within one year without approval of the insurance commissioner.

Every company licensed in the state must maintain or be a member of a rating bureau, and a rating bureau may consist of one or more insurers. The act further gives the insurance commissioner power either on written complaint or his own motion, to determine whether a rate is discriminatory or unjust, and to order the unjust rate removed, and to "fix and order a rate in lieu of the bureau rate," found to be discriminatory or unjust. An appeal from the commissioner's order may be taken to the district courts. Any violation of the terms of the act, or orders of the commissioner made under the act, is punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $5000.

KANSAS. Section 203, Article 9, providing for control of rates. The law was enacted in 1909, Chapter 152, and Section 203 reads:

That no fire insurance company shall, directly or indirectly, by any special rate, tariff, rebate, drawback or other device, charge, demand, collect or receive from any person or persons a greater or less or different compensation for the insurance of any property located in this state than it charges, demands, collects or receives from any other person or persons for like insurance or risks of a like kind and hazard under similar circumstances and conditions in this state; and any fire insurance company violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination, which is hereby declared to be unlawful.

The act requires that every fire insurance company shall file with the superintendent of insurance general basis schedules showing the rates on all classes of risks and all charges, credits, terms, privileges, and conditions which in any wise affect such rates. No change shall be made in the schedules except after ten days' notice. The superintendent of insurance, when he shall determine that any rate is excessive or unreasonably high, or not adequate, is authorized to direct the filing of a higher or lower rate, which shall be commensurate with the character of the risk. Schedules of rates are open to public inspection. Section 205 provides that the superintendent "shall not make any regulation or order" without giving the insurance company concerned reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard, and orders of the superintendent may be appealed from to the courts.

The penalty for violation of Section 203 is a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars or by imprisonment not exceeding ninety days, or both.

TEXAS. The law is Section 22, Chapter 106, of the Acts of 1913 providing for the State Insurance Commission, and reads:

No company shall engage or participate in the insuring or reinsuring of any property in this State against loss or damage by fire except in compliance with the terms and provisions of this act; nor shall any such company, knowingly write insurance at any lesser rate than the rates herein provided for, and it shall be unlawful for any company so to do, unless it shall thereafter file an analysis of same with the Commission, and it shall be unlawful for any company, or its officers, directors, general agents, State agents, special agents, local agents, or its representatives, to grant or contract for any special favor or advantages in the dividends or other profits to come thereon, or in commissions in the dividends or other profits to accrue thereon, or in commissions or division, of commission, or any position or any valuable consideration, or any inducement not specified in the policy contract of insurance; nor shall such company give, sell or purchase, offer to give, sell or purchase, directly or indirectly as an inducement to insure or in connection therewith, any stocks, bonds or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, partnership or individuals, or any dividends or profits accrued or to accrue thereon, or anything of value whatsoever not specified in the policy; but nothing in this section or in this act shall be construed to prohibit a company from sharing its profits with its policyholders, provided that such agreement as to profit-sharing shall be placed on or in the face of the policy, and such profit-sharing shall be uniform and shall not discriminate between individuals or between classes; provided, however, that no part of the profit shall be paid until the expiration of the policy.

Another section provides that no person shall knowingly receive a rebate or other consideration not specified in the policy, and violation of the section subjects the offender to a fine of not exceeding one hundred dollars and imprisonment not to exceed ninety days or both. It is also provided that a bona fide extension of credit is not a discrimination and no violation of the section. Any company, officer, or director, or person acting for such company violating the act is subject to a fine of not less than three hundred nor more than one thousand dollars.

Section 2 of the act provides that "a maximum rate of premiums to be charged or collected by all companies, . . . shall be exclusively fixed and determined and promulgated by the commission" and no company "shall charge or collect any premium or other compensation for or on account of any policy or contract of fire insurance" in excess of the maximum rate, but may write at a less rate provided that "such lesser rate shall be applicable to all risks of the same character." The commission must give reasonable notice of its orders and decisions, and opportunity to be heard in respect to same, and appeal may be taken from its decisions or orders to the courts.

NORTH CAROLINA. The law is part of Section 4, Chapter 145, Laws of 1913, providing for the regulation of rate making associations. The section reads:

No such person, corporation, association or bureau shall fix or make any rate or schedule of rates which is to or may apply to any risk within this State, on the condition that the whole amount of insurance on such risk or any specified part thereof shall be placed at such rates, or with the members of or subscribers to such rating organization; nor shall any such person, association or corporation authorized to transact the business of insurance within this State, fix or make any rate or schedule of rates or charge a rate which discriminates unfairly between risks within this State of essentially the same hazard, or if such rate be a fire insurance rate, which discriminates unfairly between the risks in the application of like charges or credits or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of public protection against fire.

The commissioner, whenever satisfied that such discrimination exists, may, after a hearing, order such discrimination removed, and all such persons, corporations, associations, or bureaus affected thereby shall immediately comply with such order, but shall not remove such discrimination by increasing rates on any risk or class of risk affected by such order, unless it is made to appear to the commissioner that such increase is justifiable.

The act also provides that the commissioner may require schedules of rates, and other information regarding the rates to be filed with the department, and the rating organization must furnish full information regarding the rate to any person on whose property a rate has been made, and must provide means whereby a person affected by such rate may be heard.

The legislature in 1915 amended the act by inserting the word "board" in Section 1 after the word "association," and amending Section 3 to apply to all companies doing business in the state and requiring schedules to be filed with the commissioner whether made by a rating association, or by such company for its own use. The following section (Section 5) was also added:

"Any person, firm, or corporation aggrieved by any rating of a fire insurance company, bureau, or board, may file a complaint in writing with the Insurance Commissioner stating in detail the grounds upon which the complaint asks relief. The Commissioner shall set a time, not earlier than seven days after the date of the notice, and a place for a hearing upon the complaint. After due hearing the Commissioner shall make a finding as to whether the established rate is excessive or unfair, and shall make such recommendations as he deems advisable. The finding and recommendations in each case shall be a matter of record, and shall be open to public inspection."

ARKANSAS. The following section was enacted in 1913 [Section 16, Chapter 2 of the insurance laws.]

All companies, corporations or associations authorized to transact business of insurance in this State, shall file with the Auditor or Insurance Commissioner a schedule of rates of premiums to be charged and collected therefor, on contracts of insurance or indemnity proposed to be effected by said company, corporation or association, which in all cases shall be a fixed percentage of the amount insured, and such companies, corporations and associations may employ a common expert to inspect individual risks and advise the premiums to be charged in accordance with schedule of rates on file with the Auditor or Insurance Commissioner, and such premiums shall be uniform for all risks rated under the same schedule.

WASHINGTON. Section 73 of the insurance code, as amended in 1915, requiring every fire insurance company to file a copy of its rating schedules with the commissioner of insurance, before being licensed, also provides as follows:

Every such company and its agents shall observe its rating schedules and shall not deviate therefrom when making insurance until amended or corrected rating schedules shall have been filed in the office of the insurance commissioner. Any company which shall make fire insurance in this state according to the advisory rates, or stated deviation or deviations therefrom, furnished by a rating bureau as provided in the following section, may receive a license to transact the business of making fire insurance in this state, without filing rating schedules, by filing written notice in the office of the insurance commissioner of its adoption of such advisory rates, stating the deviation or deviations therefrom, if any, at which it will make insurance, which deviation or deviations, if any, shall be uniformly applied to all purchasers of insurance from any such company in this state in the class or classes to which such deviation or deviations apply.

IOWA. Act of 1915 providing for the supervision of rating bureaus. The act applies to all companies, associations, or aggregations of individuals, known as insurer transacting the business of "insurance against the hazards of fire, lightning, windstorm, or hail," in the state. Mutual assessment associations and town or county mutuals are exempt however, from the provisions of Section 2 of the act, which requires that every insurance company, association, or other insurer, insuring against the hazards named above, "shall be a member of a rating bureau, or adopt as its basis the rating of a bureau," making rates on property in Iowa. The anti-discrimination feature of the act is contained in Section 5, which reads:

Section 5. No insurance company or association or other insurer insuring against any of the hazards mentioned in this act, and no rating bureau shall fix or charge any rate for such insurance upon property in this state which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of protection against the hazards covered by the insurance. Every such company or association or other insurer shall, at least fifteen days in advance of any variation by it from the rates then in use, file with the insurance department and the bureau of which it is a member a schedule showing the variation, and all such variations shall be uniform in their application to all of the risks in the class for which such variation is made.

Section 7 gives the commissioner power to "review any rate fixed by any bureau or insurer," and to remove any discrimination or "to fix and order substituted a rate which is not discriminatory or unjust." The commissioner's orders or findings are subject to summary court review.

Section 8 of the act prohibits rebating and reads:

Section 8. No insurer, however constituted, doing the business of insurance, mentioned in this act, within this state, and no officer, agent, or employe thereof, shall, as an inducement to securing such business, or after the obligation has been issued, whether with or without the knowledge of such insurer, pay, allow, or give, or offer to pay, allow, or give, directly or indirectly, any rebate, discount, or reduction of the premium paid or payable under such policy, nor in addition to the terms, credits, and allowances therein contained, promise or give anything of value, whether part of a compensation for securing said business, or by making contracts of sale or purchase, or in any other manner whatsoever, or confer any special favor, benefit, valuable consideration, or inducement whatever not given on all its policies of like class.

A company violating the act is subject to a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $1,000, and an agent to a fine of not less than $20 nor more than $200, with a commitment to jail and revocation of license. It is made unlawful for a company to pay a fine assessed against its agents or solicitors.

MICHIGAN. An act, passed in 1915, to provide for the organization and supervision of rate-making bureaus. Sections 8, 9, and 10 of the act provide as follows:

Section 8. No fire insurance company or other insurer against the risk of fire or lightning, nor any rating bureau, shall fix or charge any rate for fire insurance upon property in this state which discriminates unfairly between risks in the application of like charges and credits, or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire.

Section 9. Any deviation of any company or insurer from the schedule of rates established and maintained by the bureau which it maintains or of which it is a member, shall be uniform in its application to all of the risks in the class for which the variation is made, and no such uniform deviation shall be made unless notice thereof shall be filed with the bureau of which the insurer is a member, and the Insurance Commissioner of this state, at least fifteen days before such uniform variation is in effect.

Section 10. Except as contained in the policy and the usual agreement for other insurance, no such insurance company or insurer or rating bureau shall make any contract or agreement with any person insured or to be insured that the whole or any part of any insurance shall be written by or placed with any particular company, insurer, agent, or any group of companies, insurers, or agents.

The act further provides that every fire insurance company or other insurer insuring against loss by fire or lightning "shall maintain or be a member of a rating bureau," but not of more than one, and shall file notice of its membership with the commissioner. The act makes the state banking commissioner, the attorney-general and the insurance commissioner a commission to hear and investigate complaints as to discrimination in rates, and the commission may remove such discrimination. The orders of the commission in this respect are subject to review by "the circuit court in chancery of the county of Ingham."

The act also contains the following sections:

Section 12. No fire insurance company or any other insurer, and no rating bureau, or any representative of any fire insurance company or other insurer or rating bureau, shall enter into or act upon any agreement with regard to the making, fixing, or collecting of any rate for fire insurance upon property within this state except in compliance with this act.

Section 13. Any such agreement may be made and enforced provided the same be not contrary to public policy and is in writing, and, prior, to its taking effect, a copy thereof be filed with the Commissioner of Insurance and with each rating bureau of which any of the parties thereto shall be a member or subscriber.

Violation of the terms of the act subjects the offender to a fine of one hundred dollars and suspension of authority to do business until such fine shall be paid.

MISSOURI. Act of 1915. Sections 7, 8, and 9 of an act to regulate fire insurance and rates of premium prohibit discrimination and read:

Section 7. No fire insurance company or other insurer, nor any rating bureau shall fix and charge any rate for fire insurance upon property in this state which discriminates unfairly between risks in the application of like charges and credits, or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire.

Section 8. No rate or schedule of rates applicable to any risk in this state shall be made or fixed on the condition that the whole amount of insurance on such risk or any specified part thereof, shall be placed with a subscriber to any particular actuarial bureau, or shall be written by or placed with any particular company, insurer, agent, or any group of companies, insurers, or agents.

Section 9. No company or other insurer or agents shall directly or indirectly, by any special rate, tariff, drawback, rebate, concession, device, or subterfuge, charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person, persons, or corporation any compensation and premium different from the rate or premium properly applicable to the property so rated, as indicated by its public rating record, and no company or other insurer shall discriminate unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazard and substantially the same degree of protection.

The act contains provisions similar to the laws of other states above regarding the powers of the commissioner in investigating complaints of discrimination and in ordering such discriminations removed. The act permits the organization of rating or actuarial bureaus, and such bureaus whether maintained by two or more companies, or by a company individually are subject to supervision by the insurance commissioner. Violation of the act subjects the offender to a fine not to exceed $500, but if the offense is an unlawful discrimination a jail sentence not to exceed ninety days may go with the fine.

WEST VIRGINIA. The law is found in Section I of an act to regulate rate-making associations passed in 1913. Section I requires the filing of schedule of rates with the commissioner, and the anti-discrimination provision reads as follows:

No such person, corporation, association, or bureau shall fix or make any rate or schedule of rates which is to or may apply to any risk within this state, on the condition that the whole amount of insurance on such risk or any specified part thereof, shall be placed at such rates, or with the members of, or subscribers to, such rating organization nor shall any such person, corporation, association, or bureau, or any person, association, or corporation authorized to transact the business of insurance within this state, fix or make any rate or schedule of rates or charge a rate which discriminates unfairly between risks within this state of essentially the same hazard, or, if such rate be a fire insurance rate, which discriminates unfairly between risks in the application of like charges or credits or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazard and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire.

The commissioner may, after a hearing order the removal of any discrimination found to exist.

KENTUCKY. Laws of 1916.

Section 8. No fire insurance company or other insurer against the risk of fire, nor any rating bureau, shall fix or charge any rate for fire insurance upon property in this Commonwealth which discriminates unfairly between risks in the application of like charges and credits, or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards, and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire.

Section 9. Any deviation by any company or insurer from the schedule of rates established and maintained by the bureau which it maintains or of which it is a member, shall be uniform in its application to all of the risks in the class for which the variation is made, and no such deviation shall be made unless the same is uniform and unless notice thereof shall be filed with the bureau of which the insurer is a member and with the board at least fifteen (15) days before such variation is in effect. Except as contained in the policy and the usual contract for other insurance, no insurance company or insurer or rating bureau shall make any contract or agreement with any person insured or to be insured that the whole or any part of the insurance shall be written by, or placed with any particular company, insurer, agent or group of companies, insurers, or agents.

The board is empowered either upon complaint or upon its own information to order a hearing as to discrimination in rates, and to order this discrimination removed (Section 10), and Section 11 gives the board power to investigate the necessity for a reduction in rates, and to order a reduction in rates, but in no event to order any reduction "which will prevent a reasonable aggregate profit to stock fire insurance companies." Any reduction ordered shall be applied to such class as may be determined by the companies or rating bureau, subject to the approval of the board. The term stock companies includes Lloyds and every organization operated for profit, and in determining the question of reasonable profits the board "shall give proper and reasonable consideration to the losses and liabilities both within and without this Commonwealth."

Section 4 of the act provides that every fire insurance company, before being licensed, shall be a member of or maintain a rating bureau, but shall not be a member of more than one such bureau. A bureau may consist of one or more insurers. Every rating bureau or other insurer "shall inspect every risk specifically rated by it upon schedule and make a written survey of such risk," which shall be filed as a permanent record in the office of such bureau, and the bureau shall furnish the owner a statement of the rate and of the removable defects found. The state insurance board may address any communication to such bureau, regarding its transactions, and may require the filing of schedules, rates, forms, rules, regulations, and such other information as may be required. The board may examine the rating bureau whenever it deems necessary, and shall do so at least once in every two years.

Alabama (1897, 1909, and 1911); Connecticut (1901, 1903, and 1915); Iowa (1911); Illinois (1909); Indiana (1913); Kentucky (1906, 1912, and 1916); Louisiana (1904); Massachusetts (1894); Maryland (1894, 1906, 1910, and 1916); Maine; Mississippi (1902); Minnesota (1905 and 1913); Montana (1911); Michigan (1911 and 1915); New Hampshire; North Carolina (1899, 1901, 1903, and 1915); Nebraska (1909); North Dakota (1913); Ohio (1900 and 1902); Pennsylvania (1895 and 1911); Rhode Island; South Carolina (1904); South Dakota (1907); Tennessee (1907); Texas; Virginia (1906); West Virginia (1909 and 1911); Wisconsin (1907 and 1913).

[For a summary of the provisions and text of laws, see Cyclopaedia for 1913-14 and 1915, and also Taxation.]

In Connecticut the chief of the state police, who is fire marshal, was up to 1915 required to make a report to the insurance commissioner, but the requirement was repealed in 1915.

The Maryland legislature in 1916 passed an act transferring the duties of the fire marshal to the insurance department, making the insurance commissioner fire marshal, and providing for the appointment by the insurance commissioner of a deputy marshal, who shall have charge of the investigation of fires.

KENTUCKY. The legislature in 1916 enacted a new law, increasing the duties and powers of the marshal. The office is made a "part of the department of insurance," and the marshal is appointed by the auditor of public accounts for a term of four years, and shall give all his time to the office. The marshal shall appoint a chief deputy, and such other deputies, clerks and assistants as he may find necessary, subject to the approval of the auditor. The expenses of this department are paid out of the insurance fund, but shall not exceed in any one year one-half of one per cent. on all premiums of fire insurance companies.

Sections 29 and 30 state the scope of the act and the marshal's duties, and read:

Section 29. (a) The prevention of fires, and the inspection of property periodically or otherwise, or any other regulations or methods adopted for the prevention of or reduction of loss by fire, or to promote the safety of persons in case of fire.

(b) The manufacture, storage, sale, and use of combustibles and explosives.

(c) The installation and maintenance of automatic or other fire alarm systems and fire extinguishing equipment.

(d) Fire escapes and other means of exit from or access to buildings or parts of buildings or other property, in case of fire.

(e) The investigation of the cause, origin, and circumstances of fire and the detection and suppression of arson.

Section 30. The State Fire Marshal, in conjunction with or through other public officers upon whom such duties are imposed, if any, shall have power, and it shall be his duty:

(a) To supervise and make or cause to be made periodically a thorough inspection of all property within the cities and towns having fire departments, and so far as practicable all other property within this Commonwealth.

(b) To call to his aid individuals, or committees of commercial, industrial, labor, civic, or public organizations or bodies, for formulating regulations to require that all buildings, structures, and other premises be constructed, made, and kept safe from loss or damage or loss of life or injury to persons by fire; to make and put in force such regulations; and to enforce the same as provided by law.

(c) To investigate the cause, origin, and circumstances of every fire occurring within this Commonwealth by which property has been destroyed or damaged.

(d) To summon and compel the attendance of witnesses and production of testimony and to hold hearings and make orders in any and all matters under his jurisdiction.

(e) To co-operate with any and all other Commonwealths and all county, city, and other governmental agencies having jurisdiction in any such matters.

(f) To cause fire prevention to be taught in all public and private schools at least once each week, and fire drills to be held in said schools at least once each month and to require that all doors and exits in school and public buildings open outward and be kept unlocked while such buildings are occupied for school or public purposes.

The marshal is given power to summon and compel the attendance of witnesses, and the furnishing of documents and giving testimony, in any action or proceeding, which he is authorized to make, hear, or determine. The chief of the fire department in each city or town having a fire department and the sheriff of each county for the territory outside the corporate limits of cities and towns in said county having fire departments shall by virtue of their office be deputy marshals when so directed by the marshal, and as such shall investigate the "cause, origin, and circumstances of any fire by which property has been destroyed or damaged, and so far as possible determine whether such fire was the result of carelessness or design. All fires must be reported to the marshal within ten days, who may make further investigation.

The chief of the fire department is further required by the act, either in person or by members of the department designated by him, "to inspect all buildings, premises, and public thoroughfares, except the interiors of private dwellings, for the purpose of ascertaining and causing to be corrected any conditions liable to cause fire, or any violation of any law or ordinance relating to the fire hazard, or to the prevention of fires." Such inspection shall be under the supervision of the fire marshal, and shall be made at least once in six months in all the territory served by such department, and once in every three months within the congested district subject to conflagration as the city may designate. Such officer shall order the removal of conditions found which are especially liable to fire, or endanger other property. If the marshal's orders are not complied with within the time stated in the order the marshal is authorized to "cause such buildings or premises to be repaired, torn down, demolished, materials removed and all dangerous conditions remedied as the case may be."

The marshal is given power and supervision of public buildings as may be necessary to enforce all laws requiring such buildings to be safe and requiring protection from fire loss, and, under Section 41 of the act, the marshal is also given power to appoint advisers and promote the appointment and service of committees of commercial and civic organizations to assist in establishing standards of safety; to establish and maintain exhibits of safety and fire preventive devices; and to provide means through lectures and otherwise to educate the public in regard to the "causes and prevention of fires and related subjects."

Section 42 gives the marshal power, after a hearing upon his own motion or upon complaint, to:

(a) To declare and prescribe what protection, safeguards, or other means or methods will be best adapted to render any such building safe as required by law, ordinances, or lawful orders.

(b) To fix such reasonable standards, and prescribe, modify, and enforce such reasonable orders for the adoption, installation, and maintenance of equipment safeguards, and other means or methods of protection as nearly uniform as possible, as shall be necessary to carry out all laws, ordinances, and lawful orders relative to the prevention of such fire loss.

(c) To fix and order such reasonable standards for the construction and maintenance of such buildings as shall render them safe from such fire loss.

(d) To require the performance of any other act necessary for the prevention of such fire loss.

The marshal may make such order as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of the above section, and specify the time in which such orders shall be complied with, and such orders shall be kept as a permanent record. "Any owner, occupant, or other person having control over or charge of any building, structure, or other premises and any other person required to do or perform any act required, or who shall violate, or fail or refuse to comply with any lawful order made or directly or indirectly knowingly induces another person so to do" shall be punished by a fine of not less than ten nor more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or both.

FIRE MARSHAL'S ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES was organized in 1906 with D. S. Creamer, state fire marshal of Ohio, president, and Edward Peterson, fire marshal of Minnesota, secretary and treasurer. The membership consists of the fire marshal, fire commissioner or other state officers charged with the duty of investigating fires of the different states, and the objects of the association are the exchange of experiences and statistics, and the promotion of efficiency of office. The present officers, elected at the annual meeting in Chicago in September, 1915, are: President, Walter H. Bennett, Illinois; vice-president, Robert W. Hargadine, Minnesota; secretary and treasurer, L. T. Hussey Kansas; executive committee, W. C. Schuyler, Tennessee; G. E. Meyer, Maryland; and the officers.

FIREMEN'S INSURANCE COMPANY, Newark, N. J. Organized 1855; capital, $1,000,000. Daniel H. Dunham, president; Neal Bassett, vice-president; John Kay, vice-president and treasurer; A. H. Hassinger, secretary; J. K. Meldrum, assistant secretary.

FIREMEN'S INSURANCE COMPANY, Washington, D. C. Organized 1837; capital, $200,000. Allan E. Walker, president; Wm. M. Hoffman, secretary.

FIREMEN'S MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANY, Providence, R. I. Organized 1854. Frederick W. Moses, president and treasurer; Joseph T. A. Eddy, secretary.

FIRE PATROL, PROTECTIVE DEPARTMENTS, AND SALVAGE CORPS. The fire patrols of the United States are a monument to the enlightened self-interest of the fire underwriters.

They have made them what they are, and in nearly all cases they support them. The interest that they have in the preservation of property is certainly a great incentive toward efficiency, and it is probable that, no matter whether city governments undertake the control and maintenance of the salvage corps or not, insurance companies are likely to augment any action of cities toward the preservation of property from fire loss to the fullest extent.

These organizations exist in the cities of Albany, N. Y.; Baltimore, Boston, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Chicago, Cleveland, Dayton, Ohio; Denver, Duluth, Grand Rapids, Kansas City, Janesville, Wis.; Louisville, Lowell, Memphis, Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Mobile, Newark, N. J.; New Orleans, New York, Omaha, Philadelphia, Providence, Rochester, San Francisco, St. Louis, St. Paul and Worcester. They are established by law, and, as a rule, are maintained and controlled by the local organization of fire underwriters. The forty-sixth annual meeting of the association was held in Chicago, Ill., October 6 and 7, 1915. President West presided and in his address spoke briefly of the work accomplished by the association. Reviewing conditions in the field, the president said the evolution of the business had brought many serious problems to be solved; in the solving of which a finer knowledge of the business was required. The president noted a more favorable public sentiment, and more favorable consideration from legislators. Speaking of the criticisms of the expense of conducting the business, he considered such criticisms as an indirect attack on the American agency system. Continuing he said the agent is worthy of his hire, and the earnest agent earned every dollar he received for compensation. A good agent must not only be a good inspector, but he must be familiar with hazards and schedules, that he may properly serve the insured, and he added the agent "must be recognized as an important factor in the fire insurance business, and he must also be recognized as an important item of expense to the American public." He regarded the attacks on the expense ratio of insurance companies as unwarranted and expressed the view that present rates, generally speaking, will admit of no further reductions except for actual improvements in construction, protection, and elimination of fire waste. The burden of taxation he pointed out added to the expense account, and was larger than the business should bear.

The annual address was delivered by Clarence A. Ludlum, vice-president of the Home Insurance Company, New York, and his subject was "Action and Counteraction." The speaker, while observing that the business was unhappily more of a target for governmental regulation than ever, said, it was not his purpose to preach to the public, but rather to point out what seemed a defect and disadvantage in the conduct and attitude of underwriters. It was not intended to advocate the submergence of individuality, deprecate enterprise, nor suggest the suppression of administrative discretion, but he added:

"There have been many instances in the quite recent history of our business of disturbances created (doubtless without intention, but which should have been foreseen) by cross-firing on the part of individuals or individual interests. Laws and rulings which are admittedly detrimental and of injurious effect, or would be, if they had not been opposed at the cost of much trouble and with much difficulty, have been suggested or instigated by someone or some faction in our own ranks, inspired by a mistaken and short-sighted irritation, the desire to remedy some isolated or local condition, or to satisfy some fancied individual grievance. This has resulted in confusion, loss of constructive energy, impairment of the general good, and is a source of weakness."

"Narrow prejudices and jealousies should be laid aside," said the speaker, "and a just and justifiable coherence and common purpose be pursued," and speaking of the changed relations between company and agent, he said, such changes had produced effects that had been detrimental to the interests of both company and agent, chiefly because it had created the impression that those interests are separate or even opposed. Such an idea was false, and as such pernicious, and had occasioned serious trouble. Agents had "started something by invoking state interference and too late had realized that some things are easier to start than they are to guide, limit, or stop when once started. Continuing the speaker said:

"Agents and companies have common causes of mutual concern, which may profitably engage their activities to an extent making it, to say the least, unnecessary to make an exhibition of 'a household divided against itself.' The fire insurance business must continue to be done and the American agency system is a vital and necessary part of it, and it is earnestly to be hoped that no different methods need be developed, nor new traditions created. The present speaker feels a comforting confidence that such condition will not arise; that the controlling intelligence of the body of agents will undoubtedly avert it by a recognition of the fundamental principles and facts of their relationship, and a realization that whatever injures the business or hampers the operations of the companies must necessarily involve the agents, and vice versa."

After stating that the business must be influenced by changing economic conditions, and that none could afford to be indifferent to its reputation or its general well being, the speaker said in conclusion:

"All of us, large or small, carrying on extended or restricted operations, must suffer more or less from the absence of convinced favorable opinion of our institution on the people's part and the lack of well informed public confidence in the rectitude, the prevalent uprightness and the generally consistent qualities of fire insurance companies. Obviously this prejudicial regard cannot be set right if we, on our own part, exhibit something of the same thing in reference to each other or to our own institutions." . . . "There have been in the recent past forcible and fortunate illustrations of team work and capable, broad-minded co-operation by and among the various forces of our business. Local agents have not withheld, but have bestowed freely and actively most effective services in more than one emergency; field men have done some excellent work, unselfishly and disinterestedly allying themselves to aid in accomplishing measures designed for the general good; managers and officials have given generously of their time, ability, and energy to promote the common welfare, correct misapprehension and error and allay mistaken prejudice, and substantially universal action in the common behalf has been manifested to great advantage on many occasions through organized means for open, legitimate, and altogether defensible procedure to those ends." . . . "Let us strive to withdraw our attention from the particulars wherein we may happen for the time being to differ, and rather contemplate and appreciate the needs and interests wherein we commonly share, refraining from discordant manifestations, open contests, or reference of private quarrels to public arbitrament."

Other papers read were: "Insurance and the Banker," George M. Reynolds, president Continental and Commercial National Bank, Chicago; "The Value of Insurance Association," Ernest Palmer, Chicago assistant counsel National Board of Fire Underwriters; "The Power of Friendship," John Fitzgerald, Indiana state agent Queen Insurance Company.

Reports from the secretary, treasurer, librarian and from the library committee, and the committee on scholarships, were presented, and officers were elected as follows: President, A. A. Maloney, Kansas City, Mo., state agent, Continental; vice-president, A. E. Henry, Detroit, special agent, Northwestern National; secretary, Guy A. Richards, Chicago, special agent, Ohio Farmers; treasurer, Chas. L. Hecox, Chicago, western manager, Ohio Farmers; members board of directors, William M. Higley, Minneapolis, Hanover Fire; J. K. Lesch, Kansas City, Home; and B. L. West, Chicago, Insurance Company of North America.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION OF THE NORTHWEST, LIBRARY OF THE. For many years after the formation of the association in 1871 books and pamphlets given to it by members and friends accumulated, but, no money being appropriated for their caretaking, they were stored wherever it might be convenient and were practically inaccessible to members. In time the annually published proceedings of the association meetings, volumes of insurance periodicals, and gifts of their insurance libraries by deceased members were added. Three or four years prior to 1893 these treasures were deposited in the basement of the Woman's Temple in Chicago, under the custodianship of Mr. R. M. Buckman.

In the autumn of 1893 Mr. R. M. Buckman, representing the association, made efforts to secure an appropriation and the establishment of a permanent library room, and at the annual meeting of the association that year a committee composed of Messrs. George W. Hayes, H. C. Eddy and George W. Adams, together with the president and secretary, was appointed with authority to act in the matter. It resulted in the renting, for a term of years, of Room 225 in the Home Insurance Building in Chicago, which was appropriately fitted up with library furniture, and the books and other literary belongings of the association were placed therein.

In 1907 the library committee deemed it necessary, owing to the fact that the books of the association were accumulating, but of little or no benefit to the members, to secure a room or rooms where the library could be installed and at the same time be made the headquarters for members from out of town. With this purpose in view, Mr. John Marshall, chairman of the library committee, secured quarters in the Rookery Building, and in October, 1908, the library was moved and a librarian placed in charge. At this time the library contained less than 900 volumes and the books were more of historical interest than otherwise. In 1911, on the completion of the new Insurance Exchange Building, the Chicago Board of Underwriters granted a space on the twenty-first floor for the use of the combined libraries of the Fire Underwriters' Association of the Northwest, the Fire Insurance Club of Chicago and the Board of Underwriters. It is now located in the heart of the fire insurance interests and easily accessible to students of the business. From a comparatively small beginning the library has now some 1,500 volumes besides numerous pamphlets and files of current magazines. The library is open during office hours every business day of the year and is in charge of Miss Abbie B. Gantz, librarian.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION OF THE PACIFIC, composed of general and special agents, managers, assistant managers, and independent adjusters of fire insurance companies doing business on the Pacific coast and having its headquarters at San Francisco, was organized in November, 1875, and was the outgrowth of the Virginia City, Nev., fire of October, 1875. [For an account of the formation of this association see the Cyclopedia of Insurance 1893-94.]

The fortieth annual meeting of the association was held in San Francisco, February 8 and 9, 1916. President Blanchard presided and in his address briefly reviewed the work of the association for the year, and conditions in the field, and taking thought of the discussion of "preparedness," said there would be no question of the necessity of preparedness in the business of fire insurance. He saw in the campaign of publicity only a concerted move toward preparedness, and endorsed as well as suggested, the extension of the many movements to instruct the public in fire prevention.

Reports from the secretary and treasurer, librarian, the executive committee, and special committees were presented and papers were read as follows: "State Fire Insurance," McKee Sherrard, Yorkshire; "The Relationship Between Mercantile Agencies and Fire Underwriting," Edward J. Hollister, Bradstreets, New York; "Making Moving Picture Negatives," Weldon D. Whelan, Fireman's Fund; "Use and Occupancy Insurance on Pacific Coast," George E. GENERAL AGENTS. The title of general agent has no special application or definition, but as a rule, a general agent has jurisdiction over a designated territory, though in some cases he may have jurisdiction over a company's entire field of operations. In fire insurance a general agent is practically the underwriting manager for a given territory and appoints local and special agents. The following is a partial list of general agents in the United States

F. C. CALKINS & CO., General Agents (Fire & Marine), Heard National Bank Building, Jacksonville, Florida.

FRANK B. CLARK, New Orleans, La., General Agent, represents Agricultural of Watertown, N. Y.; Hanover Fire of New York; Northern of New York; and Svea of Gothenberg, Sweden. Territory covered, states of Mississippi and Louisiana.

The special agents of this firm for the Royal Insurance Company, Ltd., are Herbert A. Wiley, Fred M. Johnson, Charles H. Field, and John F. Williams.

THE FRELINGHUYSEN AGENCY, whose offices are located at 111 William St., New York, was established in 1888, when the Manufacturers' Lloyds was organized, and its conservative management and remarkable success, at a time when the country was overrun with wildcat organizations masquerading under the name of Lloyds, was a notable event of that period. For many years it has occupied a prominent place in the agency field as general agent of successful fire insurance companies, and at present, the Agency is general agent for the United States of the Stuyvesant Insurance Company of New York, the Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania, the Insurance Underwriters, whose policies are guaranteed by the Insurance Company of the State of Pennsylvania and the industrial Fire Insurance Company, of Akron, Ohio. It also transacts a large local fire insurance business in New York City.

Ex-Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, who is the presiding genius of the Agency, has been actively engaged in the fire insurance business for considerably more than a quarter of a century where his executive ability and the faculty of bringing to his aid efficient and willing assistants in the management of the Agency are not the least of his exceptional qualifications as the manager of a successful business.

LA FONCIERE INSURANCE COMPANY (Marine), Paris, France, Bertschmann & Maloy, United States managers, New York.

LAW UNION AND ROCK INSURANCE COMPANY, LIMITED, THE. The company as now organized is a combination of three old insurance companies of London, England, the first of which was established one hundred and ten years ago, while the youngest is well on its way on the second lap of half a century. The Law Union Insurance Company was organized in 1854, having been promoted chiefly by solicitors of the English aristocracy, and it has always enjoyed the patronage of a large number of the wealthy residents of the West End of London.

In 1892 the Law Union and the Crown Office, which was established in 1825, were amalgamated, the consolidated company taking the name of the Law Union and Crown, and seventeen years later (1909), a further consolidation was effected by the absorption of the Rock Life Assurance Company, which was established in 1806; and out of consideration for its great age and its excellent reputation, and also in order to avoid a name of too great length for commercial use, its name was substituted in place of the Crown, thus giving the combination its present title of Law Union and Rock. In the same year that the last consolidation was effected, the company purchased the property known as Serjeants' Inn in Chancery Lane, one of the oldest landmarks of London, and on the site of the old building it erected an extensive and handsome structure for its home office.

Like most other British insurance companies, the Law Union and Rock does not confine its operations in Great Britain to a single line of insurance, and among the risks which it now writes are fire, life, employers' liability, and accident insurance, its total premium income in 1915 footing up over four and three-quarters million dollars, expressed in United States money, while its total assets at the close of the year amounted to £9,822,309, or approximately forty-nine million dollars.

The company was admitted to transact business in New York and other states in 1897, following the deposit of $257,000 with the New York Insurance Department and $341,822 with the Trustees having charge of funds in this country. It writes only fire insurance in the United States, and no better illustration of the resolute, unflinching determination of the British fire insurance official to fulfil all contracts and to meet all legitimate demands, regardless of their magnitude, could be adduced than that supplied by the home office of the Law

Union and Rock, following the San Francisco conflagration. The company's aggregate losses at that fire amounted to $1,651,091, while its aggregate assets in the United States at the beginning of that year were only $877,697, of which $376,037 was surplus in excess of liabilities. The company promptly remitted $1,458,541 from the home office, leaving the greater part of the surplus funds held here for the protection of other American policyholders, thus enabling the United States branch to close the year 1906 with a surplus of $313,689. A steady, continuous growth in assets, with a more rapid increase in net surplus in excess of all liabilities, has been a marked feature of the business in the United States since that time. On January 1, 1916, the assets in the United States, and held here exclusively for the benefit and protection of policyholders in this country, amounted to $1,347,319, an increase in eight years of 122¼ per cent., while the surplus during the same time rose to $877,883, a gain of 252 per cent., the losses having averaged 54.66 per cent. of the premiums.

Smith, 433 California Street, San Francisco, Manager, Pacific Coast Department, and A. F. Shaw and Co., Insurance Exchange, Chicago, Manager, Cook County, Illinois, Department.

LIBRARIES, INSURANCE. Several of the general associations of underwriters have made efforts to build up libraries for the use of their members, as have also some of the local insurance institutes. [On this subject see Insurance Library Association of Boston, and Fire Underwriters' Association of the Northwest, Library of.]

LIMITATION OF RISKS IN FIRE UNDERWRITING. The laws of a number of states prescribe a limitation on the amount of liability which a company may assume on any one risk. The limitation makes the maximum amount of liability that may be assumed on any one risk, but the limitation is not uniform, and in a majority of the states the laws include the proviso "unless the excess shall be reinsured in some authorized company." The maximum line permitted is a percentage, either of the paid-in capital, or paid-in capital and surplus, and is in practically all states ten per cent. in the case of stock companies.

Kentucky makes the limitation ten per cent. of capital and surplus, "exclusive of the amount of any such risk secured by collateral," and in North Dakota it is ten per cent. of the paid-up capital, "exclusive of any guarantee, surplus, or special reserve fund." Wisconsin makes the limitation ten per cent. of the "admitted assets," and in Minnesota, New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts the limitation is ten per cent. of the "net assets."

In Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Virginia, Utah, and Connecticut the limitation is ten per cent. of capital and surplus. In Indiana, California, Texas, Washington, Maine, Rhode Island, Nebraska, and Michigan the limitation is ten per cent. of the paid-in capital.

The Texas law excepts "cotton and grain in bales" from the limitation, and the Maine law makes the limitation apply to "buildings and contents" as one risk. The Michigan law bases the limitation for foreign companies on the "deposit capital," and includes the proviso that reinsurance in authorized companies shall not be included in determining the limitation. The same proviso is included also in the laws of Connecticut and Wisconsin, and the New Jersey law provides that so much of any risk as shall be reinsured in a company lawfully transacting business in the state shall not be considered part of said risk. The Nebraska law makes the limitation apply only "in the congested district of any city."

The laws of Kansas, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky, and Utah also apply a limitation to mutual companies. Kentucky, for such companies, makes "the maximum amount of any single risk, less reinsurance, shall not exceed three times the average risk or one per cent. of the insurance applied for, whichever is the greater." Kansas makes the limitation ten per cent. of all resources, and West Virginia one per cent. of amount of insurance in force, while Utah makes the limitation for mutual companies five per cent. of the annual premium income. The laws of Oklahoma place a limitation on inter-insurers of ten per cent. of premium income at time of writing risk, while Idaho makes the limitation "ten per cent. of the net worth of such subscriber."

The Kentucky law applying to stock companies contains this additional provision: "If the directors allow to be insured on a single risk a larger sum than the law permits they shall be liable for any loss thereon above the amount they might lawfully insure."

Under the Wisconsin law the limitation on mutual companies "shall not exceed three times the average policy or one-fourth of one per centum of the insurance in force, whichever is the greater."

In Virginia, the limitation is ten per cent. of a company's cash assets.

LIMITING CLAUSES IN FIRE INSURANCE POLICIES. [See Policy Forms, Fire (New York), Legislation and Co-insurance Clause.]

LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY, LTD., THE, of Liverpool, England, obtained its deed of settlement on May 21, 1836, and began business on the first of the following month under the name of "The Liverpool Insurance Company." Twelve years later (1848) the title was changed to "The Liverpool and London Insurance Company," following the notable success of the company in the British metropolis. The business of the Globe Insurance Company of London was absorbed in 1864, and the title then became "The Liverpool and London and Globe," which it has borne ever since. The deed of settlement authorized the company to transact both a fire and a life insurance business, and other lines have since been added, including marine, personal accident and employers' liability insurance. The company began writing fire insurance in the United States as soon as the embargo against foreign companies was lifted in 1848, and in 1851 a board of directors was organized in New York, and Alfred Pell, who had represented the company in the state from the beginning of its American business three years earlier, was appointed resident secretary. In the same year, agencies were established in Philadelphia and at other important points. The business in the United States was then limited to fire underwriting, but for nearly twenty years previous to 1882 the company also transacted a limited life insurance business here, which was discontinued, however, at the date mentioned. Since that time, the company's operations in this country have been confined to fire underwriting, until three or four years ago, when marine branches were opened in some of the states, including New York and Massachusetts.

The growth of the fire insurance business of the company in the United States has been one of continuous development from a premium income of $4,519 in 1851 — the first year of the United States branch — to $8,957,563 in 1915, a period of sixty-five years during which its premium income amounted to $250,000,000, and it paid $147,000,000 to American policy holders in settlement of loss claims. It has been in all the great conflagrations in the United States for more than half a century, its losses by the Chicago fire of 1871 amounting to $3,239,091 and by the Boston fire of the next year to $1,427,290. In the settlement of losses by the Baltimore fire of 1904, it paid a little over a million dollars, and its losses by the San Francisco holocaust of 1906 were $4,523,000, an aggregate amount of fully ten million dollars in four great fires. But in every instance in which the losses have been notably large, the home office has responded promptly by remitting the amount required for immediate settlement and without encroaching materially upon the funds in this country, and this notwithstanding the fact that the United States branch has carried an exceptionally large net surplus for many years past. The statement of the United States branch as of January 1, 1916, shows assets of $14,814,384; unearned premium reserve, $8,621,422, and net surplus over all liabilities, $4,841,887.

In 1871 — twenty years after the United States branch was established — J. E. Pulsford was appointed resident secretary, succeeding Alfred Pell, whose father was the first resident secretary. Mr. Pulsford remained in control until June 10, 1887, when he resigned on account of advanced years, and was succeeded by the present manager, Henry E. Eaton, who has been connected with the company for the past fifty years, first in England and since 1878 with the United States branch in New York, as assistant manager under Mr. Pulsford, previous to assuming his present position in 1887. George W. Hoyt is deputy manager; Hugh R. Loudon, associate deputy manager; J. B. Kremer, assistant deputy manager; and T. A. Weed, agency superintendent. The managers in the other United States branches are as under: Chicago office, W. S. Warren, manager, and R. H. Purcell, assistant manager; San Francisco office, R. P. Fabj, manager, and Thos. H. Anderson, assistant manager; New Orleans office, Clarence F. Low, manager, J. G. Pepper, assistant manager, and R. H. Colcock, Jr., deputy assistant manager.

LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE INSURANCE COMPANY, THE, of New York. Organized 1897; capital, $400,000. Henry W. Eaton, president; George W. Hoyt, secretary; J. B. Kremer and T. A. Weed, assistant secretaries.

LLOYDS AND INTER-INSURERS. Although combinations of individual fire and marine underwriters had not been unknown in the United States, this form of insurance did not obtain prominence until 1892. During that and the following years, up to 1896, there was a rapid development of so-called Lloyds, and this form of underwriting had been applied not only to fire and marine but to casualty, surety, and liability business. Nearly all the so-called Lloyds were organized in New York and were not subject to the insurance laws, but in 1892 in a revision of the insurance laws conditions were prescribed under which such organizations should be permitted to transact the business of fire insurance. Through subsequent legislation and action of the courts in 1896 many of the Lloyds retired or were driven out of business, but it was not until 1910 that the Lloyds organizations came fully under the control and supervision of the insurance department. (For a history of the movement and action against Lloyds see Cyclopedica for 1897-98 and 1898-99.) The Lloyds in the United States although they have borrowed the name, have little else in common with the famous Lloyds in London. The members of Lloyds, London, do their own underwriting, whereas with the United States Lloyds, the business, or underwriting, is done by "an attorney." The members make a fixed deposit and agree to hold themselves liable in addition for a limited sum to insure against loss to a specified object, or, as described in the laws, associations "whereby each associate underwriter becomes liable for a proportionate part of the whole amount insured by a policy."

The laws of Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Washington, Wisconsin, Alabama, Maryland, New York, and Massachusetts provide for the organization and licensing of Lloyds. They cannot transact a life insurance business, and, as a rule are subject to the same terms and conditions as regular insurance companies. Illinois permits such associations to do business but does not mention Lloyds by name, and Maine extends all rights, powers, and privileges granted under the insurance laws to Lloyds transacting a marine business.

Another form of insurance organization, which appears to have been an outgrowth of Lloyds, has come into existence in recent years. These are known as reciprocal underwriters, or inter-insurers, which are a form of association of individuals, partnerships, and corporations authorized under the laws to "exchange reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts with each other or with individuals, partnerships and corporations of other states and countries providing indemnity among themselves from any loss which may be insured against under other provisions of the laws excepting life insurance." The laws of the following states authorized inter-insurance contracts under the above quoted provision: Missouri, California, Kansas, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Oregon, Idaho, Arkansas, Colorado, Kentucky, North Carolina, Maine, and Minnesota. Minnesota, however, adds marine insurance in addition to life insurance to the excepted class. Illinois, Washington, and New York permit such associations, but not under special laws. In Washington Inter-Insurers must qualify under laws relating to mutual companies. A Texas law was held unconstitutional by the attorney-general. These Exchanges operate through an attorney and are required to file an annual report with the insurance commissioner, who must also be appointed attorney for service of process, which process shall be binding upon all subscribers. Except for the requirements and conditions imposed in the act authorizing them such Inter-Insurers are exempt from all other insurance laws in Missouri, California, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, Oregon, Idaho, Arkansas, Colorado, Kentucky, North Carolina, Maine, and Minnesota.

LLOYDS, LONDON. The name is derived from a coffee house kept by Edward Lloyd, where representatives of marine and shipping interests were wont to gather, and was first known as early as 1688. In 1871 an act was passed granting to Lloyds all the rights and privileges of a corporation sanctioned by Parliament, but as a corporation Lloyds does not engage in the insurance business. The underwriting is done solely by the individual members on their own account. In point of fact underwriting is only one element of the activities with which the name is associated, and from the earliest Lloyds has been a great institution for the collection and exchange of maritime information.

Lloyds was the earliest and simplest form of marine insurance, but insurances are now undertaken on almost any hazard or contingency. The following paragraphs from the Encyclopedia Britannica will give a clear idea of the character of the institution and of its underwriting practices:

"According to this act of incorporation, the three main objects for which the society exists are: first, the carrying out of the business of marine insurance; second, the protection of the interests of the members of the association; and third, the collection, publication, and diffusion of intelligence and information with respect to shipping. In the promotion of the last-named object, obviously the foundation upon which the entire superstructure rests, an intelligence department has been gradually developed which for wideness of range and efficient working has no parallel among private enterprises in any country.

"The rooms at Lloyds are available only to subscribers and members. The former pay an annual subscription of five guineas without entrance fee, but have no voice in the management of the institution. The latter consist of non-underwriting members, who pay an entrance fee of twelve guineas, and of underwriting members, who pay a fee of one hundred pounds. Underwriting members are also required to deposit securities to the value of £5,000 to £10,000, according to circumstances, as a guarantee for their engagements. 'The management of the establishment is delegated by the members to certain of their number selected as a 'committee for managing the affairs of Lloyds.' With this body lies the appointment of all the officials and agents of the institution, the daily routine of duty being intrusted to a secretary and a larger staff of clerks and other assistants. The mode employed in effecting an insurance at Lloyds is very simple. The business is done entirely by brokers, who write upon a slip of paper the name of the ship and shipmaster, the nature of the voyage, the subject to be insured, and the amount at which it is valued. If the risk is accepted, each underwriter subscribes his name and the amount he agrees to take or underwrite, the insurance being effected as soon as the total value is made up."

Its business in the United States is confined to fire, tornado, and marine insurance. MASSACHUSETTS MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE UNION. This is an organization of domestic mutual fire insurance companies. In June, 1879, a call for a meeting to consider the advisability of forming a union was issued, signed by three of the managers, Charles A. Howland of the Quincy Mutual, E. M. Tucke of the Traders' and Mechanics', and Alfred L. Barbour of the Cambridge Mutual. In response to the call the representatives of seven of the companies appeared, and a temporary organization was made, with H. C. Bigelow as chairman and Alfred L. Barbour as secretary.

On September 10, 1879, the Massachusetts Mutual Fire Insurance Union was organized by the choice of E. B. Stoddard of the Merchants' and Farmers' of Worcester as president, Charles B. Cummings of the Massachusetts Mutual, and George B. Faunce of the Dedham Mutual as vice-presidents, and Alfred L. Barbour of the Cambridge Mutual, secretary. The object of the union, as stated in the preamble, was "to consider all matters affecting mutual companies and adopt all things that will work for the benefit of that system of insurance"; "for social and fraternal purposes, to the end that peace, harmony, and good fellowship may reign."

The headquarters of the Union are at 141 Milk Street, Boston, and the present officers are: President, Alfred H. Nash; vice-president, Charles A. Howland; second vice-president, E. L. The twentieth annual meeting was held in Indianapolis, Ind., October 4, 5, 6, and 7, 1915. President Hildreth presided, and in his address briefly reviewed the work of the association and the benefits it had wrought to the local agent, and urged that a larger number of local agents give support to the association. The president expressed the view that the overhead writing rule of the association had been productive of good and should be maintained until some more effective way of dealing with the vexatious question should appear, and speaking of underwriters' agencies, he said, tangible and satisfactory progress had been made, but this was no time to relax effort, and pressure should be exerted at every available point and all the time. The president expressed his belief that "the long battle is to be amply rewarded by complete success."

Speaking of rating legislation the president suggested that insurance interests would do well to study the attitude of the railroads in the matter of public opinion, which by a well-directed publicity have gone a long way towards re-instating themselves in the public confidence. Collective rate-making, he said, was necessary, and approval was expressed of legislation that would give the commissioner of insurance, or a commission, power to consider complaints in respect to rates, with such power of review subject to further review by the courts. Continuing, the president said, in speaking of changed conditions in the business, it had become evident that "service was in the future to be the keynote of our business," and with the growing complexity of affairs the assured had come to need technical and expert advice on many phases of the fire insurance business, and agents must fit themselves to give such intelligent and capable service as will meet these conditions. In connection with service he said the amount and form of agents' compensation could properly be considered, and it must be conceded that in the flat or graded commission scale there had been little incentive for the average agent to do more than "pull down" his commission. The president recommended action on the subject by the association as it could properly commit itself to a principle.

Following the president's address Mr. Charles E. Sheldon, manager of the western department of the American Insurance Company of Newark, N. J., delivered an address, in which after briefly alluding to his own experience as a local agent, paid tribute to the local agency as an important and indispensable factor in the development of the fire insurance business. He strongly dissented from what seemed the fashion to decry the business morality of the agent, whom he believed would compare favorably with the average business man of the country. The speaker briefly reviewed conditions and tendencies in the business, as well as conditions developed through unfriendly and oppressive legislation, and considering more particularly the indictment against underwriters' agencies, expressed the view that the underwriters' question was "not a matter of supreme importance except in that it distracts one from the consideration of the fundamentals of our business and retards the spirit of co-operation." "The evils of large gross lines and foreign reinsurance are sapping the life out of the smaller insurance institutions more than the multiplication of underwriters agencies, equality of agents' commissions, adherence to uniform, if not always adequate, rates, or oneness of practice." "The blame for the condition was equally on the company and agent, and the remedy was not alone with the agent, nor can the companies unassisted change this practice which is undermining the agency system and fostering unhealthy conditions." Because of the European conflict the present affords a better opportunity to strengthen the small companies than has prevailed in years, but the agents must take the initiative for in large measure they control the situation. In closing the speaker urged the association to cultivate the small town agent and bring him into the association.

Reports from the executive committee, E. C. Roth, chairman; legislative committee, Geo. B. Markham, chairman; grievance committee, J. K. Livingston, chairman, and the organization committee, F. E. Warner, chairman, were presented, reviewing the work of the committees during the year. Reports were also presented from special committees on "Standards of Association Membership," and "Return Commissions in Defunct Companies." Papers were read as follows: "Contingent Commissions," David Rumsay, vice-president Continental Insurance Company, New York; "Better Insurance Salesmanship," Frederick V. Bruns, Syracuse, N. Y.; "Fire Prevention and Service Department for Agents," Lurton H. Stubbs, Chicago, Ill.; and in the casualty section: "The Larger View," John T. Stone, president Maryland Casualty, Baltimore; "The Dignity of Labor in the Insurance Business," George D. Webb, Chicago; "State Insurance and Local Agents," Mark T. McKee, Detroit, Mich., secretary National Council Insurance Federation Executives.

Mr. Rumsay in his address on contingent commissions, urged that the question be considered carefully and seriously, and added that while a change in the method of compensating agents to include the profit sharing idea would not solve all the problems of the business it was nevertheless dictated by sound principles. Contingent commissions could be put into force not only without injury to agents, the companies, or the public, but with benefit to those three interests, and the plan was worthy of a general and sustained trial. The sale of fire insurance, he said, cannot be regulated by competition, and must, either by agreement or by law, be controlled by means of co-operation. This has recently been recognized as to rates of premium, and was equally applicable to the subject of payment of agents. The present method of compensating agents was, he said, competitive, not co-operative, and since poor risks demand a high rate and good risks a low rate, the influence of this system so far as it affected the action of the agent, was toward securing the poorer, high rated risks. "The existing system of compensating agents which is employed generally throughout this country penalizes the agent for his care of the public interest and the interest of his principal, the insurance company, and it is too much to expect of human nature that insurance agents should devote their lives to a study of comparative fire hazards, or should energetically perform the public service of instructing property owners in the science of eliminating removable fire hazards when, under existing conditions, the more expert and active the agent becomes in these matters, the less money he is able to earn from his business."

On the other hand a profit sharing system would go far towards solving the question of agency limitation, even if it did not prove a complete solution. Methods of computing profit sharing commissions were reviewed, and in closing the speaker said that only by co-operation of all interests involved could a change of such magnitude be brought about, and he urged agents to study the question carefully, in the light of their own agency experience, and considering what it may mean not alone to themselves, but to the companies and the community.

Resolutions were adopted as follows:

Agency Qualifications Laws — We recommend that the committee on legislation continue its cooperation with the state associations to secure the passage of agents' license laws in all the states.

Return Commissions — The executive committee is authorized to raise among American Union agents additional funds for the purpose of prosecuting this question to a conclusion before the proper courts.

Reduced Taxation — We recommend continued effort by the legislative committee to secure reduced insurance taxation, and again offer to cooperate with other insurance interests in this effort.

Agents' Compensation in Texas — We again record our protest against the continued attitude of the companies in respect to agents' compensation in Texas, and instruct the executive committee to continue its efforts until this unfair discrimination is ended.

National Office — The resolution of the Minnesota association referring to the removal of national headquarters to a more central point is referred to the incoming executive committee.

United States Mails and Unauthorized Insurance — We recommend that the thanks of this association be extended to Senator Jones of Washington and the representatives in Congress for their efforts to secure the passage of a bill prohibiting the use of the United States mails to companies operating illegally in the various states, and recommend that when this bill next comes before Congress our members be requested to urge upon their representatives at Washington the support of this measure.

Uniform Blanks — In view of the success attending the use of these blanks by individual agents, we recommend that all members of the association now obtain the same from the national office for use with all their companies. We urge the National Board to confer with the committee of our association in arranging any amendment desired by the companies and pledge the support of this association to any form of accounts current which is adopted by the National Board as the result of such conference.

Reinsurance and Net Lines — We reaffirm our recommendation that companies and agents encourage the movement towards net line writing, and favor wherever possible the discontinuance of the practice of writing large lines far beyond the carrying capacity of a company. The large line reinsured elsewhere removes the business from the local market and deprives other agents and licensed companies of their proper income.

Casualty and Surety Section — We recommend that the by-laws of this association be amended to provide for a standing committee to be known as the "Casualty and Surety Committee," the chairman of which is to be elected at our annual convention. The chairman shall be a member of the executive committee, and with the approval of the president shall select no less than five members to serve for the ensuing year, this committee to have charge, under the supervision of the executive committee, of all matters pertaining to the casualty and surety interests of members. The secretary is instructed to include this amendment in the next printed edition of the constitution and by-laws.

Nonresident Brokers — We recommend a reaffirmation of the association principles favoring the payment of commissions to nonresident brokers on property owned by nonresidents, provided the whole insurance is placed at the rates and rules to which the risk is subject locally. We also reaffirm the ruling that no commission should be paid to nonresident brokers on property owned by residents.

Floater and Schedule Policies — Whereas, It is now clear to local agents of the United States that the time has come for the companies to demonstrate whether they stand wholly with their agents or not, and inasmuch as the action of some companies in writing floater policies covering risks in agents' territory, usually on terms more favorable than the agent is permitted to grant, discrediting the agent of said company, is an injury to the interests of all companies and agents.

Therefore, We recommend that the grievance committee be requested to investigate with care and diligence all reported cases of such floater or schedule policies, other than steam railroad lines, and report through the Bulletin any companies which continue such practice.

Cooperating List — We recommend that the Niagara Fire and Westchester be urged by this convention to give favorable reply to the association's letter of June 27, 1914; but if, within a reasonable time a favorable reply has not been received, the executive committee is directed, with regret, to issue notice to all members and agents to the effect that these companies have been dropped from the cooperating list, giving the reasons for this action.

Underwriters' Agencies — In view of the substantial progress made toward the elimination of underwriters' annexes, we desire especially to record our appreciation of the stand taken by a majority of companies in steadfastly refusing to operate these annexes and to urge upon our members more marked preference in placing their business with these companies.

Secondly, we record our appreciation of the Continental, Fidelity-Phenix, and Sun Fire Office in superseding their underwriters' agencies by duly incorporated and capitalized companies, and feel that we should particularly thank the Continental and Fidelity-Phenix for their leadership in this matter, at the same time expressing the hope that all underwriters' agencies will at an early date take steps toward incorporation.

We call upon agents to continue their efforts for sole agency representation and we pledge the continued support of this organization to local rules for agency limitation.

Cooperation — To the end that closer and more harmonious relations may be maintained between companies and agents and that both cause and chance for misunderstanding may be avoided, we tender to the companies, through their various organizations, our cooperation and assistance in carrying forward all proper movements for the general betterment of the business.

Arnold, also of Providence, was appointed by the executive committee. He was re-elected by the board yearly until 1904, when he declined re-election and was succeeded by Marshall S. Driggs, who served until his death in 1910. C. J. Holman was elected in 1911, and is the present treasurer. Thomas H. Montgomery was general agent from 1872 to 1878, and Henry K. Miller received that title in 1899, and remained as general agent until his death in 1911. W. E. Mallalieu is the present general agent. The chairmen of the executive committee have been: D. A. Heald, E. W. Crowell, Rudolph Garrigue, Stephen Crowell, George T. Hope, B. Lockwood, E. A. Walton, George P. Sheldon, and Peter Notman of New York; J. N. Dunham of Springfield; Jotham Goodnow of Hartford; H. W. Eaton, E. F. Beddell, Marshall S. Driggs, Henry E. Bowers, H. H. Hall, J. Miller was secretary of the committee from 1873 to 1899, his predecessors having been W. H. Post, A. J. Smith, C. B. Whiting, and Frank W. Ballard.

The fiftieth annual meeting of the Board was held in New York May 25, 1916. President Richards presided, and in his address said the Board was the only distinctively national organization of fire insurance companies, and the largest association of stock companies in the world. It was conceived by the necessity of security and service; the extensive and intensive activities of fire underwriting required united counsel and co-operation, and so the National Board was one of the first of the great commercial institutions of the country to anticipate that the spirit of the twentieth century would require in full measure the greatest degree of service. The Board had demonstrated its right to the prominent position it now occupies because of the high standard of efficient service which it renders to its members and the public, said the president, and continuing, called attention to the history of the Board, which had been prepared in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of its organization, which the meeting also marked, and spoke briefly of the underwriters who were leaders in the early days of the Board. Reference was also made to a report made to the Massachusetts legislature by a committee appointed in 1868 to investigate the Board, which commission commended the objects of the Board and approved its organization.

President Richards briefly reviewed legislation, especially legislation supervising or regulating rates, which he strongly condemned, and also reviewed the organization and the work of the actuary, bureau; the value of whose work it was impossible to overestimate and also spoke an appreciative word of the work of other standing committees. After a word of tribute to the members who had died during the year, President Richards discussed the future of the Board, and suggested changes in the constitution and by-laws that would adopt the organization to present and future needs. Among the changes suggested was one that would clearly prohibit the Board from dealing with or controlling rates of premium, or commissions. He also recommended that the committee on laws be authorized to draft a model code of insurance laws, and also strongly urged the appointment of a special committee on uniform accounting to prepare a standard system of accounts. In conclusion President Richards said: "For the Board itself I have very clear visions of its continued growth and development along practical, educational and scientific lines; a national organization having fixed standards 'to which the wise and honest may repair' with implicit confidence, and whose authoritative declarations bearing upon fire underwriting matters will be accepted without question by public and governmental authorities. Such a vision is not visionary, but is one which I believe will materialize."

The following are the figures of underwriting results contained in the president's address:

The report of the executive committee, F. C. Buswell, chairman, spoke of the increased work and responsibility of the committee, and the work of several standing committees and the activities of special committees were briefly reviewed. The committee stated that the National Board as an organization was stronger than at any time in its history; its objects and purposes were broad and sound, and its mission service; that the Board was carrying on a work of great value to the fire insurance business and the general public was being recognized more each year, and the committee expressed confidence that the Board would solve problems as they arose which would bring continued and increased success in its various activities and a greater appreciation of its merits.

The finance committee, F. W. Sargeant, chairman, presented a report on the finances, with a recommendation for assessments to carry on the work for the coming year. The committee on incendiarism and arson, J. H. Kelly, chairman, reported an increase in the number of rewards offered. One hundred and sixty rewards had been offered, amounting to $43,000, as compared with ninety rewards amounting to $28,550 the year previous. Only two rewards of $500 each, however, had been paid.

The committee on laws, David Rumsay, chairman, in its report briefly reviewed the work of the year, and the more important legislative measures to which the committee had given special attention.

The committee on statistics and origin of fires, G. W. Blossom, chairman, in its report noted a gratifying growth in co-operative spirit and stated that the tabulations of the committee were becoming more widely recognized, as it was also being more widely realized that the fire loss in the United States was a serious drain on the nation's resources. The committee expressed a word of debt to chiefs of fire departments and others who had assisted them in the work, and there had been a marked improvement in the detailed information furnished from year to year. The total fire loss in the United States in 1915 approximated $172,000,000; the lowest since 1905. A study of the year's record, said the committee, gave hope that in some places the campaign for fire prevention had produced good results. The list of cities in which the loss exceeded five dollars per capita was smaller than for the past four years. The committee reported statistics from 360 cities having a population of upwards of 20,000. The per capita loss for 333 cities in 1915, was 1.94, and the per capita loss for the whole country was 1.71, compared to 2.24 in 1914.

The committee on fire prevention, George W. Hoyt, chairman, stated that 24 complete reports on cities in addition to eleven special and supplementary reports had been made during the year, and special work along fire prevention lines and other special lines showed an increased volume during the year. The committee expressed the view that the work undertaken by it during the past ten years was responsible in large measure for the prominent position the Board occupies as an engineering organization, and also expressed the view that the Board was well equipped to undertake any task coming within the scope of its work.

The committee on lighting, heating, and engineering standards, C. F. Shallcross, chairman, made a brief report outlining the work of the year and spoke of the recognition accorded the pamphlets and recommendations on building equipment issued by the committee. The committee on construction of buildings, Charles G. Smith, chairman, reported that the demand for the building code had been large. It had received the commendation of many architects and engineers, although there had been some opposition to its adoption from special building interests because of the restrictions placed on certain forms of construction. However conflagrations at Augusta, Ga., and Nashville, Tenn., forcefully exposed errors in construction which made possible such conflagrations. Augusta had adopted the code almost as written and Nashville was preparing to do the same, while the committee had record of seventy-nine other cities in which the Board's code had been adopted as the guide in revising or adopting building regulations.

Brief reports were presented by the committee on adjustments, Victor Roth, chairman, and the committee on clauses and forms, William Hare, chairman. The former spoke of the efficiency and economy of the plan adopted by the committee, which had been tested in the recent conflagrations, and reported progress towards formulating a standard rule or rules for the apportionment of losses under non-concurrent policies. The committee on policy clauses reported that a revision of many of the clauses in use was most desirable and suggested that the work of revision be undertaken.

The actuarial bureau committee, E. G. Richards, chairman, outlined the work of the bureau, which had made progress during the year through the co-operation of all classes of companies, insurance commissioners and state fire marshals, and the compilation of statistics from now on would be of increasing value.

Officers were elected as follows: President, R. M. Bissell, Hartford Fire; vice-president, F. C. Buswell, Home, N. Y.; secretary, E. J. Haynes, Newark Fire; treasurer, Charles J. Holman, Commercial Union, New York; members of the executive committee, Charles J. Barry, Pennsylvania Fire; E. E. Cole, National Union; E. W. NATIONAL FIRE PROTECTION ASSOCIATION. At a meeting of inspectors representing associations and boards of fire underwriters, and others engaged in the business of fire insurance, held in the city of New York, November 5, 1896, an organization was effected of an association with the above title. Its purposes were set forth in the following articles:

This organization shall be known as the National Fire Protection Association.

The objects of the association are to promote the science and improve the methods of fire protection; to obtain and circulate information on this subject and to secure co-operation of its members in establishing proper safeguards against loss of life and property by fire.

The membership is divided into four classes: Active, associate, subscribing, and honorary. Active members consist of insurance boards and associations having primary jurisdiction and national institutes, societies, and associations interested in fire protection. Associate members are individuals engaged in the fire insurance business, or members of the associations represented in the active membership. Individuals, firms, and corporations interested in protection of life and property against loss by fire and eligible to become subscribing members, and honorary membership is bestowed on ex-members, prominent in the promotion of the objects of the association and provided they are not identified with fire protection from a commercial standpoint.

Officers and executive committee were chosen as follows: C. C. Little, president; E. U. Crosby, secretary; U. C. Crosby, F. E. Cabot, W. H. Stratton, W. A. Anderson, William Bonner, Robert Jardine, Albert Blauvelt, executive committee, with three more named respectively by the South Eastern Tariff Association, Philadelphia Fire Underwriters' Association, and Underwriters' Association of the Middle Department.

The twentieth annual meeting was held in Chicago, Ill., May 9, 10, and 11, 1916. President Meek presided, and in his address briefly reviewed the work of the year, which had been handicapped somewhat by lack of funds. The president deprecated the tendency to over regulate the business of fire insurance by legislation, and suggested that legislatures instead of regulating the insurance companies could with greater benefit turn their attention to the enactment of legislation to safeguard life and property from fire. Proper fire protection, he added, had a greater effect on rates than all the half-baked legislation of recent years. President Meek urged an active and vigorous campaign for an increased membership, and that the general lines of work laid down for the association, be continued.

Secretary Wentworth reported an active membership of 126, the same as the year previous, and a total membership, including honorary members, of 2,670. The year had shown a decrease in membership, principally among Canadian members. Amendments to the articles of association were presented in a committee report and adopted. The changes relate to membership dues, and drop the word "active" from the list of members; the effect being to extend the right to vote to associate members.

Besides committee reports there was a "round table" discussion on the subject: "Safeguarding School Children from Fire," with sub-topics, "Exit Drills and Fire Escapes," and "The Care of School Buildings." The subject was discussed by William B. Ittner, St. Louis, and C. B. J. Snyder, New York, and the sub-topics by Dr. J. George Becht, secretary Pennsylvania Board of Education and S. A. Challman, commissioner of school buildings, Minnesota. There was also a discussion of the subject, "Protection of High Value Districts," by Albert Blauvelt, Chicago, H. W. Forster, Philadelphia, and H. L.

Ekern, Chicago. An address was also read by Miss Mary E. McDowell, president, Chicago Woman's City Club, on "Fire Prevention and Juvenile Workers," and reports of special committees were presented on "Safety to Life," H. W. Forster, chairman; "Public Information," Franklin H. Wentworth, chairman; and "State Fire Prevention Associations," T. R. Weddell, chairman; and reports on technical subjects were also presented by standing committees as follows: "Automatic Sprinklers," C. L. Scofield, chairman; "Fire Resistive Construction," Ira H. Stewart is chairman of the committee.

The following resolutions were adopted:

The National Fire Protection Association, assembled in Chicago for its twentieth annual meeting, calls attention to the disastrous fires of the past few months, which destroyed whole sections of cities in the South and elsewhere and which further emphasize the need for better building construction and the avoidance of wooden shingle roofs and other combustible materials in the exterior of buildings.

The Association heartily commends the growing movement for city planning as likely to produce better conditions as to building heights and congested areas, and provide the open space and broad avenues, which, besides their human and esthetic values, are excellent checks to sweeping fires.

In its warfare against the needless sacrifice of human lives and property by fire the Association advocates the following measures:

1. The adoption by municipalities of the Standard Building Code of the National Board of Fire Underwriters to the end that fire resistive building construction may be encouraged, the use of inflammable roof coverings prohibited, adequate exit facilities from buildings assured, and interiors so designed and fire-stopped as to make easy the extinguishment of fires therein.

2. The adoption by all States of minimum building requirements for the protection of state and county hospitals, asylums, and similar institutions outside city limits and of small communities in which the establishment and enforcement of building code is impracticable.

3. The enactment by each state of the fire marshal law advocated by the Fire Marshal's Association of North America to the end that official investigation may be made of the causes of all fires, preventable fires may be eliminated by public education, and the crime of arson stamped out.

4. The adoption of the association's suggested ordinance providing for the systematic inspection of all buildings by city fire marshals or local firemen to insure the vigorous enforcement of rules for cleanliness, good housekeeping, and the maintenance of safe and unobstructed exits, fire fighting apparatus and other protective devices.

5. The enactment of ordinances similar to that of Cleveland, Ohio, fixing the cost of extinguishing preventable fires upon citizens disregarding fire prevention orders, and a more general legal recognition of the common law principle of personal liability for damage resulting from fires due to carelessness or neglect.

6. The wider general use of the automatic sprinkler as a fire extinguishing agent and life saver and the more general adoption of the fire division wall as an important life-saving exit facility.

7. A careful study of the technical surveys of cities made by the engineers of the committee on fire prevention of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, covering the items of water supplies, their adequacy and reliability, fire department efficiency, fire alarm systems and conflagration hazards: and of the possibility of co-operation among neighboring cities through mutual aid and the standardization of hose couplings.

8. The adoption of the association's suggested laws and ordinances for state and municipal regulation of the transportation, storage and use of inflammable liquids and explosives.

9. The universal adoption and use of the safety match and legislation prohibiting smoking in all parts of factories, industrial and mercantile buildings except in such fireproof rooms as may be especially approved for the purpose of fire departments.

10. The education of children and the public generally in careful habits, regarding the use of fire.

In the furtherance of these objects we appeal for the co-operation of all citizens. We ask them to help in the dissemination of our valuable literature and in the use of the standards of fire protection so carefully worked out by our committees to the end that the lives and substance of our people shall not continue to be dissipated by a reckless and easily preventable waste.

Tests of fire apparatus and sprinkler systems to the number of 3,590 were also made during the year.

NEW ENGLAND INSURANCE EXCHANGE was organized by special agents of fire insurance companies at Boston, January 6, 1883. Prior to this anything like order or cohesion in rates in New England, outside of Boston, was practically unknown, and very few local boards were in existence. The first attempt to make rates beyond the limits of Boston was in November, 1882, when a meeting of special agents was held to consider paper mills. It resulted in sending out a circular to companies asking them if they would stand by a scheme of rates on this class of risks if they were made, and forty-four companies answered that they would. This success encouraged hope of a closer organization, and resulted a few months later in the formation of the Exchange.

Membership in the organization is entirely personal and is open to all persons whose principal occupation is the New England field work of any stock fire insurance company. The objects of the Exchange are declared by the constitution to be "the systematic interchange of information and co-operation among field men." The Exchange is a rating and supervising body. Its preliminary work is mainly done through standing committees, of which there are (July 1, 1915) eight of the Exchange and 107 in charge of as many localities in New England, all committees being composed of members of the Exchange. These committees report to the Exchange at its weekly meetings, and their action is approved or disapproved by that body.

The jurisdiction of the Exchange covers New England with the exception of Boston and Providence (which are controlled by their Boards of Fire Underwriters) and the state of New Hampshire (which has its own state board).

The presidents of the Exchange since organization have been as follows: 1883, U. C. Crosby (two terms); 1885, George P. Field; 1886, George W. Taylor; 1887, Henry E. Hess; 1888, Henry R. NEW YORK FIRE PATROL. The present effective organization known as the New York Fire Patrol was created by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters under the authority of the charter granted to the board by the legislature in 1867, but it was preceded by organizations having substantially the same purposes as far back as thirty-two years. In 1835 the Association of Fire Insurance Companies employed four men whose duty it was to attend all fires and protect the interests of fire underwriters by preserving property exposed to fire and damage by water. They received a salary of $250 per annum each. In 1839 the association employed forty men as a fire police in the mercantile district. The men were firemen or ex-firemen, and wore red fire caps. They gave the alarm to each other by means of whistles and rattles. The first covers for the protection of merchandise from water were used in 1845. George T. Hope was chairman of the fire patrol committee in 1853, and was instrumental in the preparation of the first code of rules placed in the hands of every member of the force. A second patrol company was organized in 1855, a third in 1867, the fourth in 1876, fifth in 1893, a sixth in 1901, and a seventh in 1906.

The patrol was and continues to be under the government of the committee on fire patrol of the board, elected annually. Each company is fully equipped and motorized. The force consists of one hundred and seventy-eight men, composed of a superintendent, officers, and men. The whole force is under the immediate command of Superintendent James O. Schwank. The report of the Patrol for the year ending December 31, 1915, gave the total number of fires and alarms attended as 7,480 as compared with 8,197 in 1914, and the total insurance involved was $248,114,788.44. The total loss was $5,552,128, of which $1,574,060.12 was on buildings and $3,978,067.88 on contents. Exposure fires caused a loss of $52,782.63 on buildings and $45,823.30 on contents. NEW YORK STATE ASSOCIATION OF LOCAL FIRE INSURANCE AGENTS was organized by representatives of local boards in the state of New York, outside the metropolitan district, at a meeting held at Syracuse March 22, 1893. The first title adopted was "New York State Association of Local Boards of Fire Underwriters." The present title was adopted at the annual meeting in 1897. The constitution states the purpose of the association to be the "promotion of harmony in underwriting, the protection of our interests, and those of our companies in our several territories, and the securing of united action in such direction as may be required to obtain these results." The officers chosen at this meeting were: M. G. Thompson, of Utica, president; James E. Reed, of Warsaw; C. T. Goodrich, of Newburgh, and H. B. Boss of Binghamton, vice-presidents; William T. Ford, of Cohoes, secretary; John L. Getman, of Gloversville, treasurer. The present officers, elected at the annual meeting held in June, 1916, are: President, W. H. Hecox, Binghamton; vice-presidents, Fred G. Horton, James Cavanagh, Warren Gildersleeve, Edward S. Hawley, Fred V. Bruns, C. A. Porter, and James Doyle; secretary, C. G. Curtin, Rochester; assistant secretary, Albert Dodge, Buffalo; treasurer, R. G. Wardsworth, Binghamton. NEW YORK STATE, UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION OF. [See Underwriters' Association of the State of New York.]

NEW YORK UNDERWRITERS AGENCY, THE, was established by Alexander Stoddart, January 1, 1864, to transact the agency business of certain fire insurance companies. These were succeeded on January 1, 1894, by the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, under a permanent arrangement whereby the policies of the Hartford Fire are issued through the New York Underwriters Agency. The New York Underwriters Agency does business throughout the whole United States and Canada, and its management, agency plant, and lines remain entirely separate and distinct from those of the Hartford. It is under the management of A. & J. H. Stoddart, general agents, No. 100 William Street, New York.

NEW ZEALAND INSURANCE COMPANY, Limited, Auckland, N. Z., began business on the Pacific Coast in 1875, to which territory it confines its business. Clinton Folger and W. M. Speyer, managers, San Francisco.

NIAGARA FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, THE, of New York, was organized in July, 1850, and began business in the following month. It is one of the oldest joint stock fire insurance companies now doing business under charters granted by the State of New York, being antedated by only one New York City company and by two others in the state. The Niagara began business with a capital of $200,000 which was increased in 1864 to $1,000,000. The Chicago fire of 1871 followed by that of Boston in 1872, at both of which the company lost heavily, was followed by a reduction of the capital to $500,000 at which it remained until after the San Francisco conflagration in 1906. The company's losses there were over two million dollars, which were met promptly and paid in full, and, at the same time, the capital was increased to $750,000; in 1910 it was further increased to $1,000,000, the present amount.

The company has always been conservatively managed with notable care in the selection of risks. Previous to the Chicago fire its losses had amounted to less than $53\frac{1}{4}$ per cent of the premium income, and including all the great fires through which it has passed, the ratio of losses to premiums from 1850 to the close of 1915 was only 55 per cent; or, if the years of the three great holocausts, already referred to, are excepted, the ratio has been less than $52\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. At the same time, and notably since the close of the past century, there has been a steady increase in assets and in net surplus. The company is doing business in every state in the Union, except Delaware, and also in Canada, except New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. On January 1, 1916, the assets amounted to \$7,682,871, and the net surplus to \$2,756,215, with the premium income in 1915 of \$3,484,782, and losses incurred of \$1,854,072. The officers of the company are: President, Harold Herrick; vice-president, Otho E. Lane, and secretaries, Charles A. Lung and Wilbur C. Smith.

NON-CONCURRENT POLICIES — APPORTIONMENT. It is hardly within the scope of this work to enter into a discussion of a subject which has been one of the most perplexing with which adjusters have to deal. The courts have pretty generally taken the view that companies may adopt any adjustment satisfactory to themselves so that it does not deprive the insured of his protection, or fail to fully indemnify him for his loss. It has been difficult, if not impossible, to make a rule that will meet the requirement in all cases, and many of the so-called rules have been made to meet particular cases. In the eastern states, as Mr. Griswold puts it, the matter is "left to the individual adjuster to adopt such methods as may seem most advantageous for his own company." Mr. Griswold gives nine different rules for adjusting specific and compound insurance. The "Reading" the "Finn," which was the production of Mr. Finn, secretary of the Long Island Insurance Company; the "Albany," which is credited to Mr. Heald, president of the Home Insurance Company; Rule IV, which is attributed to Henry A. Oakley; Rule V, with no author; Rule VI, attributed to Mr. Hope; Rule VII, Rule VIII, which Mr. Griswold names the rule of proportion; and Rule IX, the English rule. On the Pacific Coast the "Kinne" rule, so-called from its author, Mr. C. Mason Kinne, was adopted by the Fire Underwriters' Association of the Pacific in 1885 and being general in scope has been put into effect throughout the association's jurisdiction.

The principle governing all apportionments of non-concurrent policies is, that general and special insurances must be regarded as co-insurances; and general insurance must float over and contribute to loss on all subjects under its protection, in the proportions of the respective losses thereon, until the insured is indemnified, or the policy exhausted.

The correct method of applying the principle of the Kinne rule has been formulated in the following statement:

First — Ascertain the non-concurrence of the various policies and classify the various items covered into as many groups as the non-concurrence demands, whether of property, location, or ownership.

Second — Ascertain loss on such groups of items separately.

Third — If but a single group is found with a loss upon it, the amount of all policies covering the group contribute pro rata.

Fourth — If more than one group has sustained a loss, and such loss on one or more groups be equal to or greater than the totals of general and specific insurance thereon, then let the whole amount of such insurance apply to the payment of loss on such groups.

Fifth — If more than one group has sustained a loss, and such loss be less than the totals of unexhausted general and specific insurance thereon, then apportion the amount of each policy covering on such groups generally, to cover specifically on such groups, in the same proportion that the sum of the losses on such groups bears to the loss on each individual group.

Note — When a group is covered by one or more general policies, it would be well to see at once if an apportionment as above on that group would equal the loss as in case it will not, it will show, without further calculation, that the whole amount of loss on such group must be met by such policies pro rata, and the remainder only apportioned. In such cases, carrying out Step 6 simply accomplishes by a longer process what here is indicated.

Sixth — If the loss on any group or groups is then found to be greater than the sum of the now specific insurances as apportioned, add sufficient to such specific insurances to make up the loss on the group, taking the amount of the deficiency from the now specific insurance of the heretofore general amounts previously covering the now deficient groups, which cover on groups having an excess of insurance, in the proportion that their sums bear to their individual amounts.

Note — Very rarely are new deficiencies created by the re-apportionment, but if so, simply repeat Step 6.

Seventh — Cause the amounts of all the now specific insurances to severally contribute pro rata to pay the partial losses, and it will be found that the whole scheme has resulted in the claimant being fully indemnified in accordance with the various contracts and on a basis which preserves the equities between the companies throughout.

NORTH BRITISH AND MERCANTILE INSURANCE COMPANY of Edinburgh and London had its beginning in the North British of Edinburgh, founded in 1809 to do a fire insurance business. A life insurance department was added in 1823. Mr. Bostwick was the first manager, and he was succeeded by David Smith, a "writer to the Signet," a man of great ability and untiring energy. In 1861, after the great Tooley Street fire in London, a new fire company was established in that city, by prominent merchants, under the name of the Mercantile Insurance Company, which at once took a strong position. In 1862 the two companies agreed to amalgamate, establishing a general court of directors, divided into two sections, with chief officers in Edinburgh and London, the latter giving special attention to the large foreign connections; for the company has agencies and branches over the entire world.

The present subscribed capital of the company is £4,500,000, and the cash capital, £2,437,500. The fire funds at the close of 1913 amounted to £7,101,872.5—, and total assets of £25,517,293.15.4.

The company entered the United States August 16, 1866. Ezra White, an experienced underwriter, was selected as manager, and his son, Charles E. White, as assistant manager. The head office of the company was at 74 Wall Street, and its first local board of directors was composed of Charles H. Dabney, chairman; Solon Humphreys, Aymar Cater, David Dows, Egisto P. Fabbri, Simeon B. Chittenden, and Shepard Gandy.

The present United States Branch Management is as follows: E. G. Richards, manager; J. F. Hastings, assistant manager and the following gentlemen form its board of directors in New York: B. Aymar Sands (Bowers & Sands), chairman; Adrian Iselin, Jr., Esq. (A. Iselin & Co.); A. D. Juillard, Esq. (A. D. Juillard & Co.); James Stillman, Esq.; Wm. Pierson Hamilton, Esq. (J. P. Morgan & Co.); James Speyer, Esq. (Speyer & Co.); Chas. S. Brown, Esq. (Douglas Robinson, Chas. S. Brown & Co); Geo. C. Boldt, Esq. (Waldorf-Astoria Hotel); Herman Sielcken, Esq. (Crossman & Sielcken).

The business in the United States is confined to fire underwriting. In the fifty years that the company has transacted business in the United States it has paid therein in fire losses over $75,000,000. It was involved to the extent of $2,330,000 in the Chicago fire of 1871; $742,067.56 in the Boston fire of 1872; $857,000 in the Baltimore fire of 1904, and in San Francisco, over $4,000,000, all of which losses were promptly met by funds from the home office. Its losses in the Jacksonville conflagration in 1901, amounting to $171,363.47, were paid from its United States funds, making a total of $7,771,897.58 paid for losses by the foregoing conflagrations, thus establishing the character and strength of the company firmly in the minds of the American people.

PATERNELLE FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY, Limited, Paris, France. Meinel & Wemple, United States managers, New York, N. Y.

PATRIOTIC ASSURANCE COMPANY, THE, of Dublin, Ireland, was organized in 1824 to supply fire insurance to Ireland. The company prospered and its field of operations was extended, first to England and later to more distant points. Continued success led to the purchase of a controlling interest by the Sun Insurance Office of London, the oldest insurance company in the world. That was early in the present century, and in 1913, the Patriotic was reorganized with a paid-up cash capital of £100,000 in place of the original organization under the Limited Liability Act with 12½ per cent paid up. Thus equipped, with $500,000 capital, the company was admitted in the latter part of 1915 to transact business in New York and other states of the union, the purpose being to do a general fire insurance business throughout the United States, superseding the Sun Underwriters. The statement made to the New York Insurance Department as of December 31, 1915, shows $526,848 assets and a net surplus of $522,856.

The United States manager of the Sun Insurance Office, J. J. Guile, is also United States manager of the Patriotic and A. M. Thorburn, secretary.

PATROL, CHICAGO FIRE INSURANCE, was organized in 1871, and is under the management of the Chicago Board of Underwriters. This company has been in operation since 1752 and confines its business to Pennsylvania, writing only perpetual risks. J. Rodman Paul, chairman; J. Somers Smith, secretary and treasurer; C. T. Cowperthwait, assistant secretary.

PHILADELPHIA FIRE INSURANCE PATROL. The patrol was established July 15, 1869, and was supported by the voluntary action of the fire insurance companies doing business in the city. It was incorporated February 17, 1871, and reorganized June 8, 1895, the expense being raised by an assessment on premium receipts. The original fire patrol consisted of a horse and wagon and fifteen rubber blankets or covers. Only a few companies contributed to the cost and the establishment was opposed by the old volunteer fire department of the time as a step toward a paid fire department. A notable success achieved by the patrol at a dry goods fire in Chestnut street in saving some $60,000 worth of valuable goods from ruin by water at once satisfied insurance companies of the advantage afforded by the patrol, and they flocked to its support. The first officers were Atwood Smith, president; Alfred G. Baker, treasurer, and John Wilson, Jr., secretary. The original captain was Terrence McCusker, and he had an assistant, George R. Stillman, and a force of five men.

The patrol is now composed of thirty-five men — thirteen men at Station No. 1 at 516 Arch Street, eleven men at Station No. 2, at the northeast corner of Fifth and Hewson Streets and ten at No. 3, at 2122 Market Street. Station No. 3 was established April 15, 1909. The captain is Joseph H. Shermer, and the assistant captains Harry Hoffman at No. 1, Sylvester B. Peak at No. 2, and William J. Taylor at No. 3. There are four automobile trucks; two at Station No. 1, and one each at Stations Nos. 2 and 3.

The annual report for 1915 showed that the total number of fires in Philadelphia during the year 1915 was 4,256, as compared with 4,385 during 1914, and the total insurance loss was $1,854,979, of which $529,591 was on buildings and $1,325,388 on contents. The total insurance involved on buildings, $38,360,773, and contents, $39,319,750. Exposure losses were $68,000. Of the total number of fires 2,619 were confined to floors where originated, 424 extended to other floors and 128 extended to adjoining property, while there were 1,086 fires other than buildings. The principal causes of fires were defective flues, 110; gas jets, 101; matches, 1,326; smoking, 283; sparks from chimneys, smoke stacks, etc., 426; sparks from locomotives, 200; stoves, 147; boiling lard, oil, etc., 89; candles, 122; hot ashes, 69; rubbish, 78; electricity, 157; spontaneous combustion, 107; unknown, 322.

The following are the present officers: President, Charles Platt, Jr.; treasurer, E. T. Cresson; secretary, Charles B. Hill; directors, E. C. Irvin, E. J. Durban, William E. Bates, W. Gardner Crowell.

PHILADELPHIA FIRE UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION. The old association, after its tenth annual meeting in November, 1893, discussed the subject of reorganization, and at a meeting held December 4, 1893, it was ordered that the compact of September 1, 1891, be continued in force sixty days more. [For an account of the reorganization see the Cyclopedia for 1894-5 and 1913-14] February 1, 1894, representatives of seventy companies, met and perfected the new organization. An executive committee was appointed to govern the association. Robert B. Beath was chosen chairman and J. W. Grover, secretary. At the annual meeting, November 14, 1894, General Beath was re-elected chairman, and Charles A. Hexamer was appointed secretary. At the annual meeting, November 13, 1895, Eugene L. Ellison was chosen chairman of the executive committee, and Charles A. Hexamer was continued as secretary. May 1, 1905, the offices of the association were removed to the eighth floor of the Bullitt building, 131-41 South 4th Street. The Officers of the association for the year 1915-16 are: Robert M. PHOENIX ASSURANCE COMPANY, Limited, of London. This Company was established in 1782. It was the first English company to establish an agency in the United States, Israel Whelen being its agent in Philadelphia as early as 1804. In 1810 an act was passed by the Pennsylvania legislature prohibiting all insurance by foreign corporations, co-partnerships, or persons not citizens of the United States, and the Phoenix withdrew. It returned again in 1879. Prior to its return it had some reinsurance contracts, so that it sustained losses of $500,000 in Chicago in 1871, and $250,000 in Boston in 1872. The Phoenix is a notable exception to the general history of companies founded upon a grievance, in that it has been successful. It was founded by the sugar bakers of London, because of the high rates charged that industry by the other offices. Before the war of 1812 the Phoenix had agencies established in several of the southern states, as well as in New York and Philadelphia, and in the West Indies. In 1807 it sustained losses in St. Thomas of $1,000,000, and in 1842, in the great fire at Hamburg, Germany, it lost the then unprecedented sum of $1,080,000. Since it returned to this country the Phoenix has received in the United States premiums amounting to $71,441,648, and has paid in losses $45,347,231. It does an agency business throughout the states, and in 1915 wrote $640,476,833 of insurance, the premiums of which were $6,073,943.56. Percival Beresford, manager; Hart Darlington, assistant manager. R. E. Lidster is in charge of the Western department at Chicago, and Washington Irving is the Pacific Coast representative, all reporting to the head office in New York.

POLICY FORMS AND LAWS. Agitation for a uniform policy began almost in the infancy of what may be called the modern practice of fire underwriting. In the records of the Salamander Society of New York, which was an organization of local fire insurance companies in 1821, and the forerunner of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, allusion is made to the appointment of a special committee to draft a form. This committee reported to the association June 19, 1821, with a proposed form, which, after it had been submitted to the directors of the company separately, and had received their approval, was adopted and came into general use. It was the model upon which all subsequent improved policies were made in the United States.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters was organized in 1866, and the very first subject which claimed its attention after it convened was a form of policy, the board resolving, "that this board recommend to the executive committee to draft a fire policy to be used by all fire insurance companies belonging to this association." A form was reported to the board at its second annual meeting, in 1868, and adopted. Although the subject of a uniform standard policy to become obligatory was stirred up in the legislatures of New York and Massachusetts several years prior to this. Connecticut appears to have been the first state actually to adopt a law requiring a standard form, which was in 1867. The law, however, was repealed a year later.

It should be added that many companies have adopted the New York standard for use wherever there is no other compulsory form, so that, with the exception of the slight changes made by the Michigan form, and the special forms in Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, Iowa, Oregon, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin, a uniform policy is written by the leading companies all over the United States. The laws of several states require that the New York standard form be used. The laws of Arizona, West Virginia, Idaho, and Washington require that no policy shall be issued in the state other than the New York standard form "as now or may be hereafter instituted," but Washington and Idaho make exceptions to permit the use of riders adding to or relating to those contained in the policy, and permitting forms of description and specifications of the property insured. The West Virginia law permits such changes and additions as the insurance commissioner may deem proper. The laws of Georgia require that "each and every company shall adopt and write a standard or uniform policy such as may be prescribed by the commissioner." A Maryland law requires that all policies issued in the state shall have marked or stamped the words, "authorized to do business in the state of Maryland" with a fac-simile of the signature of the insurance commissioner. The insurance commissioner of West Virginia has ruled that the requirement of the New York law regarding the selection of an umpire shall be attached to policies issued in West Virginia. [For a history and summary of legislation in the different states regarding standard forms, see Cyclopedia for 1911-13 and earlier volumes.]

In recent years criticism and suggestions have resulted in new forms being proposed, and a committee of the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners early in 1915 reported a proposed form, which the committee approved and submitted for criticism. There was legislation in 1915 in Iowa, Maine, Washington, and South Carolina, amending the existing requirements in those states, and North Carolina and Pennsylvania enacted legislation prescribing a new form, which went into effect January 1, 1916, and was substantially the form proposed by the committee of the Insurance Commissioners Convention. REINSURANCE AND SURPLUS LINE LAWS. The laws of a number of states prohibit reinsurance of risks, either in whole or in part, in companies not authorized to do business in the state. Such laws are in force in Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia. The laws of Arizona and Washington prohibit reinsurance in an alien company — a company not authorized to do business in the United States and not having a deposit in some state of the United States. In Delaware the commissioner may permit such reinsurance. Minnesota while not prohibiting reinsurance requires that such reinsurance be reported to the insurance commissioner, and Ohio prohibits reinsurance in, but also acceptance of reinsurance with a company not authorized to do business in the states. Referring to surplus line insurance as distinct from re-insurance the above-named states, with the exception of West Virginia, North Dakota, New Mexico, Nevada, Florida, Colorado, Arkansas, and Arizona, make special provision for placing insurance in unauthorized companies, and the laws of Connecticut, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Tennessee, Vermont, Wisconsin, which place no restrictions on reinsurance, make special provision for placing insurance in companies not authorized to do business in the state. The laws require a special license fee, and provide that a person so licensed must make affidavit that he is unable to procure sufficient insurance in companies regularly licensed to do business in the state before placing insurance with unauthorized companies. He must keep separate account of such business and make report of it to the insurance department. The laws of Illinois, Kansas, Maine, New Hampshire, Texas, and Wisconsin limit the granting of such licenses to regularly licensed agents or brokers, while the law of New York limits the number of such licenses that may be issued to "not exceeding two hundred," and Washington limits the number to "not exceeding fifty in any one city." The Missouri law limits the granting of licenses to procure insurance in unauthorized companies to agents, and any person who desires insurance on his own property or the property of his firm, or corporation in which he is interested.

Special license fees or taxes are imposed on business placed in unauthorized companies. Kansas and Ohio make the license fee $10 Wisconsin, $15; Connecticut, Louisiana, and North Carolina, $20; and Kentucky, Michigan, Nebraska, and Texas, $25. Vermont makes the license fee $10, with a tax of three per cent on gross premiums; Massachusetts, $20, and a tax of four per cent on gross premiums less return premiums, and Missouri, $10 and a tax of two per cent on gross premiums; California imposes a tax of four per cent, and Maine two per cent on gross premiums, less return premiums, and Minnesota two per cent; Pennsylvania three per cent on gross premiums, and Tennessee two and a half per cent on all premiums paid to any unlicensed company. Illinois imposes a tax of two per cent on gross premiums, and a license fee of $200 except in counties of less than 100,000 population in which case the license fee is $25, and New York requires the same license fee, but imposes a tax of three per cent on gross premiums. Washington requires a license fee of $100, with bond of not less than $500, and the same tax that is imposed on licensed companies (2¼ per cent less return premiums). Maryland imposes a tax of five per cent and in addition a fee of $1.00 for each policy. The tax in New Jersey is three dollars ($3.00) for each one hundred dollars of insurance or at that rate upon the whole amount of gross premiums, and in addition execute a bond in the penal sum of three thousand dollars. [For a summary of the laws and restrictions as to reinsurance see Cyclopedia for 1913-14.]

RENT INSURANCE.* Anyone who has a pecuniary interest in the preservation and protection of property and who might sustain a loss by reason of its destruction, has an interest in such property which is insurable. It follows, therefore, that a landlord may insure against loss of rents, and a tenant may insure against his continuing liability to pay rent, regardless of the occurrence of a fire.

Whether a landlord has an insurable interest to support a policy of fire insurance on rents, where the tenant is obligated unconditionally to pay rent in full, is a question concerning which there is some difference of opinion; but the courts would probably have no difficulty in discovering an insurable interest if on no ground other than that the fire might impair the ability of the tenant to pay rent. If, however, after the fire, the tenant should pay the rent in full, the landlord would be unable to show a loss. But, if the landlord should recover his rent insurance, the insurer making payment would become subrogated to the claim against the tenant. Rents, however, are not covered by an insurance upon the building, but liability must be specifically assumed thereon.

There are many different forms of rent policies, but those in most general use provide that the insurer shall make good the loss of rents actually sustained by the insured on occupied or rented portions of the premises which have become untenable, for and during such time as, with the exercise of due diligence, may be necessary for the restoration of the premises to the same tenantable condition as before the fire. A form thus phrased covering on "occupied or rented" portions of the premises, is regarded as sufficiently broad to cover that portion of the premises occupied by the insured himself, and not rented. Some forms, however, remove all elements of doubt on this point by expressly declaring that, if the insured occupies any portion of the building, a fair rental value of the portion so occupied shall be considered as a part of the rents.

Insurance is also written at an advanced rate to cover loss of rents or rental value to the premises, whether occupied or vacant at the time of the fire. The theory upon which this class of insurance is based is that the premises have a value as rentable property and may be rented at any time; hence, if they are destroyed by fire, the insured may be deprived of the income which might otherwise accrue to him.

The older forms contain the co-insurance or average clause (usually the one hundred per cent) based on the annual rental or rental value, as the case may be; but in some of the later forms, this provision is modified in favor of the insured, in consideration of a higher premium, by changing the basis from the twelve month to the time that would reasonably be required to restore the premises to a tenantable condition, if totally destroyed.

Most of the forms in current use cover on "rents" and agree to make good the "loss on rents actually sustained." The question naturally arises whether this means gross rents or whether it means gross rents less those expenses which may be saved to the insured during the period of reconstruction, such as lighting, heating, elevator service, janitor service, collections, insurance, and the like. There has been comparatively little litigation involving rent insurance: therefore, we have only general principles and analogous decisions to guide us in reaching our conclusions.

It is possible, of course, that the courts might declare a policy thus phrased to be valued, and if so it would be construed like any other valued policy and the insurer would be liable for loss of gross rent without any deductions therefrom. It is, however, the well-considered opinion of some of the best legal minds that, in view of the strong inclination on the part of the courts to adhere in their decisions to the fundamental principle of indemnity, they would hardly go out of their way to discover a valued feature in a policy where none is expressed and where there is no evidence, except such as is remotely inferential, of its existence.

If the policy is not valued, it should be construed like any other contract of indemnity; and there is no logical reason why, on rents rather than on any other class of property, one should recover more than his actual loss. The fact that the policy limits liability to loss on rents "actually sustained" lends emphasis, if any were needed, to the view that the policy is not valued; and these words, if they have any significance whatever, should be controlling.

Our highest courts have held that, where there is a contract of indemnity and a loss happens, anything which reduces or diminishes that loss reduces or diminishes the amount that the indemnifier is bound to pay, and the insured is entitled only to be placed in the same condition, pecuniarily, that he would have been if there had been no fire.

In the light of the authorities, it seems clear that, unless the policy should be declared valued, it is incumbent upon the insured (under a rent policy) to prove what his actual net loss is, after making proper deduction for everything in the way of salvage that may come to him. In many cases there would be no diminution in the regular running expenses; but in event of a serious damage too, or the total destruction of the building, there might and probably would be quite a material saving in expenses, and, if so, this would be a very important factor.

Nearly all rent losses are partial; the forms, covering simply on "rents" and differing somewhat in phraseology, have been in use for many years; the loss record has not been unfavorable; very little difficulty has been experienced in adjustments; settlements are usually made on a compromise basis, and many claimants, no doubt, take into consideration the salvage in expenses in their negotiations, so that the question does not arise very frequently as a practical proposition.

In some portions of the country, however, notably on the Pacific Coast, evidently with a view to avoiding discussion, policies are issued covering net rents or net rental income; but the practical effect of this form will be to permit the insured to collect his gross rent in many instances (because all expenses frequently continue in event of partial loss), whereas the coinsurance or average clause will be applied to the annual net rental; hence in cases of partial loss such form would be quite advantageous to the insured.

RESIDENT AGENTS' LAWS. Laws requiring policies of insurance to be placed through "regularly commissioned and licensed agents resident in the state" are with two or three exceptions in force in all states and apply to fire insurance. In a few states the laws are general, applying to all, or any form of insurance, while in a larger number the laws are made to apply to the placing of the different lines of casualty or miscellaneous insurance as well as fire insurance. As a rule regular life insurance companies and assessment associations are exempt. The following is a statement of the laws now in force with date of enactment:

Alabama (1907); Arizona (1913 and 1915); Arkansas (1901 and 1903); Colorado (1907 and 1915); Connecticut (1893); Delaware (1901); Florida (1899 and 1903); Georgia (1896 and 1901); Hawaii (1903); Idaho (1911, 1913, and 1915); Illinois; Iowa (1897); Kansas; Kentucky (1916); Louisiana (1902); Maine (1903, 1905, and 1913); Maryland (1900); Massachusetts (1907); Michigan (1912); Minnesota (1905); Mississippi (1902 and 1916); Missouri (1897); Montana (1907); Nebraska (1909); Nevada (1901); New Hampshire (1899 and 1911); New Jersey, New Mexico (1901 and 1913); North Carolina (1905); North Dakota (1905); Ohio, Oklahoma (1909); Oregon (1899); Pennsylvania (1899); Rhode Island (1896); South Carolina (1900 and 1915); South Dakota (1895); Tennessee (1899); Texas (1903); Utah (1907); Vermont (1908); Virginia (1906); Washington (1911); West Virginia (1901); Wisconsin (1911); Wyoming (1910 and 1915). [For full text of laws see Cyclopedica for 1913-14 and 1915.]

The laws of all the above states apply to fire insurance, and the laws of Alabama and Louisiana specifically mention life insurance, while also applying to all other classes of companies. The laws of Arizona, Idaho, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming are general, applying to any and all companies. The laws of Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Kentucky, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Texas contain special provisions applying to the different classes of casualty, or miscellaneous companies, and the laws of Mississippi and Utah apply to all companies, except life, and, in the case of Mississippi individuals, firms, or corporations indemnifying themselves through reciprocal contracts are exempt.

The Colorado law prohibits the licensing of any one as agent, broker, or solicitor who is not a resident of the state, and the Kansas law prohibits the commissioner from licensing anyone not a resident of the state. The Alabama, Nebraska, and Texas laws require companies to file an affidavit that it has not violated any provisions of the act for the preceding twelve months, and the Minnesota law requires companies to appoint as "its agents in the state residents thereof."

Some of the laws contain other special features, particularly relating to division of commissions. Delaware, Idaho, Montana, Mississippi, Colorado, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, North Dakota, Utah, Arkansas, Florida, and West Virginia require that the agent countersigning the policy shall "receive the full commission thereon when the premium is paid."

The laws in the following states make no mention of commissions: Alabama, Arizona, Connecticut, Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Virginia, Washington, Wyoming, Missouri, and Kentucky.

The commissioners of Michigan and Wyoming have ruled that agents cannot divide commissions with non-resident agents or brokers, while the attorney general of Kansas has ruled that division of commissions and exchange of business with non-residents is not illegal. The Ohio department has ruled that agents doing business in Ohio must be residents of Ohio and licenses will not be issued to non-residents.

The law of New Mexico prohibits any agent, broker, or solicitor "to pay or promise to pay either directly or indirectly any fee, brokerage, or other emolument of any nature" to any non-resident person, firm, or corporation "for the obtaining, placing, or writing" of any policy of insurance covering property in New Mexico. Kansas prohibits any authorized company from authorizing or allowing any non-resident person, agent, firm or corporation from issuing or causing to be issued any policy on property in the state. Vermont requires all policies to be countersigned by a duly authorized resident agent of the company issuing the policy, although brokers' licenses may be granted "to persons resident in any other state, if the laws of such state permit the issuance of brokers' licenses to residents of this state."

Wisconsin requires that the agent countersigning the policy "shall be paid the commission on the policy." The laws of Nebraska and Texas prohibit any company from authorizing, allowing, or permitting any non-resident "to issue, sign, countersign, or to deliver or cause to be delivered any policy" except through licensed resident agents of such companies. North Carolina, Louisiana and South Carolina permit the division of commissions between non-resident and resident agents.

Mississippi. The legislature in 1916 enacted the following:

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the Legislature of the State of Mississippi, That no fire, fire marine, accident, health, employers' liability, steam boiler, plate glass, fidelity, surety, burglary, or other insurance company, except life insurance companies not incorporated under the laws of this state, authorized to transact business herein, shall make, write, place, or cause to be made, written, or placed, any policy, duplicate policy, or contract of insurance of any kind or character, or any general or floating policy, upon persons or property in this state, except after the said risk has been approved, in writing, by a local agent, who is a resident of this State, regularly commissioned and licensed to transact insurance business herein, who shall countersign all contracts of insurance, and receive the full commission thereon, when the premium is paid, to the end that the State may receive the taxes required by law to be paid on the premiums collected for insurance on all persons and property situated in this State, provided, however, that the provisions of this Act shall not apply to individuals, firms, and corporations indemnifying themselves through reciprocal contracts and not employing local agents."

Section 2 of the act provides that "Any company wilfully failing to observe or comply . . . shall be subject to and liable to pay a fine of ($500) Five Hundred Dollars for each violation thereof, and for each failure to observe and comply with the foregoing section."

The Kentucky legislature in 1916 enacted the following, which is Section 207 of an act creating the state insurance board:

No insurance company shall write, place, or cause to be written or placed, any policy or contract for direct insurance upon any property in this Commonwealth, except through an agent, licensed in this Commonwealth.

The section does not apply to property in transit while in the custody of a common carrier, or to the rolling stock or other property of a common carrier used by it as such, nor to mutual companies or inter-insurance associations. Another section provides that "no license shall be renewed to an agent for a stock fire insurance company unless he is a bona fide resident of this Commonwealth."

RESULTS OF FIRE UNDERWRITING IN THE UNITED STATES. The following general statement of the fire insurance business by joint stock companies in the six years from 1910 to 1915, inclusive, is compiled from the New York fire insurance reports. The statistics cover, practically, all the principal joint stock companies doing business in the United States, and are for December 31 of each year named:

RETALIATORY OR RECIPROCAL LAWS. Thirty-nine states inflict retaliatory penalties on the companies of other states or of other states and countries. New York appears to have originated this kind of legislation as far back as 1865. With few exceptions the laws of the several states, though expressed differently, are practically the same, and the purpose, or intent, is clearly expressed in the New York law, re-enacted in 1892, which follows:

"If by the existing or future laws of any State an insurance corporation of this State having agencies in such other State, or the agents thereof, shall be required to make any deposit of securities in such other State for the protection of the policyholders or otherwise, or to make payments for taxes, fines, penalties, certificates of authority, license fees, or otherwise, greater than the amount required by this chapter, from similar corporations of such other State by the then existing laws of this State, then and in every such case all insurance corporations of such State, establishing or heretofore having established an agency or agencies in this State, shall be and they are hereby required to make the like deposit for the like purposes in the insurance department of this State, and to pay the superintendent of insurance for taxes, fines, penalties, certificates of authority, license fees, and otherwise, an amount equal to the amount of such charges and payments imposed by the laws of such other State upon the insurance corporations of this State and the agents thereof."

Retaliatory or reciprocal laws are now in force in the following states: Alabama, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, Wyoming, West Virginia. In addition to the above Arkansas has a retaliatory law which is made applicable only in respect to deposits, and Nevada has a law applying to assessment companies. [For text of laws see Cyclopaedia for 1913-14, 1915, and earlier volumes. Also taxation and fees, this volume.]

The laws of Wisconsin, Texas, Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Indiana, Missouri have features not found in the laws of the other states, which extend the scope of the retaliatory provisions, while the laws of New Hampshire, Connecticut, and New Jersey differ materially in the application and scope of the retaliatory or reciprocal features. The New Hampshire law makes the retaliatory feature apply if "any state shall by its laws deny any insurance company or citizen of this state any rights or privileges which are granted to insurance companies or citizens of that state," or if the insurance commissioner or other official, "shall have power to revoke the license of any company of this state" for writing insurance in that state other than through or by a citizen of that state. The laws of Connecticut and New Jersey besides making the retaliatory features apply to any "obligation, prohibition, or restrictions" imposed on companies, also extend the retaliatory features to apply in case a license is refused after a "certificate of solvency and good management," or, in the case of New Jersey, a certificate of the result of any examination made by the department has been filed with such department.

SAFETY FUND LAW. This law, which permitted the accumulation by a fire insurance company, from its profits, of a fund, one-half of which may be deposited with the insurance department to be held for the protection of the unearned premiums of the company and to serve as a second capital in said case its capital and assets are swept away by a great conflagration, the other half to be retained by the company for the payment of losses, was enacted by the state legislature in its session of 1874 (passed April 16th) on the suggestion of Insurance Superintendent Chapman. The legislature in 1915 passed a law providing that no company should establish such funds after June 1, 1915, and providing further for the discontinuance of the special reserve and guaranty surplus funds already created under the law.

Surplus fund laws are in force in five other states, the provisions thereof being similar to those of the law of New York, which was the first to enact legislation of this character. The states and their laws are:

Minnesota, Chapter 18, laws of 1876, re-enacted by Section 98 of the general law of 1895, and Chapter 437, laws of 1900 and Chapter 263, laws of 1911.

Rhode Island, Sections 26 to 32, inclusive, of Chapter 156 of the Public Laws.

Wisconsin, Sections 1909 to 1913, inclusive, of the Revised Statutes.

New Jersey in 1908 enacted a somewhat similar law. [Chapter 258, laws of 1908]:

New Hampshire, Chapter 28, laws of 1911.

Nebraska, [Paragraph 3252, section 116, from revised statutes of 1913.]

SHORT RATE TABLE — Is a table for computing the earned premium on policies of fire insurance in the event of cancellation, or the premium to be charged where a policy is written for a shorter period than a year. When a company cancels a policy it returns the pro rata premium. When the policyholder cancels the pro rata premium less the expense of getting the business is returned, and the table below is used in computing the earned premium, or the premium to be retained. The table is the one adopted by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and is in use pretty generally throughout the country. In computing the premium take the percentage indicated on scale opposite the number of days risk is to run, on the premium for one year at given rate, and the result will be the premium earned in case of cancellation, or to be charged in case of short time risks. Fractional parts of a month for term policies are counted as a whole month.

STOCKHOLDERS. Viewed in a legal light, the rights, duties and responsibilities of the owners of capital stock in an insurance company do not differ materially from those of stockholders in companies organized for other purposes. The laws of the various states differ in degree on these points. In some states the liability of stockholders does not extend beyond the full-paid value of their holdings; in others, it does. Because the institution of insurance is beneficent in its character, public opinion is inclined to regard capital invested in it with less consideration than it awards to money invested in commercial enterprises, a disposition which partially accounts for the more rigorous laws enacted for the conduct and regulation of insurance companies. In so far as this attitude relates to fire and casualty companies, in which the hazards are imminent and great, it is a mistaken policy on the part of the state. The principle will not bear the same application to life insurance, in which the amount of the hazard undertaken is known with practicable exactitude. Once established and in receipt of a going business, it is demonstrable that a life insurance company requires no capital, particularly if it confines itself to the writing of participating insurance. If, as in several notable instances, the company transacts, in addition to a life business, the various branches of casualty insurance, it is probable that a sufficient amount of capital is an added security. In all branches of insurance the rights of policyholders take precedence over those of stockholders and all invested capital is held as surplus for the security of the former.

ritory of its jurisdiction." SUN INSURANCE OFFICE of London was established as the Sun Fire Office April 7, 1710, in London, and is the oldest insurance company in the world, having had an experience of 206 years. In the olden time it kept, like the other fire insurance offices, an engine of the crude hand form, with thirty men, called "watermen," to take it to fires in property insured by the company. The watermen were clothed in blue livery, and were assisted in the saving of goods by twenty able-bodied porters, the entire force wearing silver badges with the mark of the Sun. This device of the Sun, wrought in lead, was nailed on houses insured by the company, and continues to be the trade-mark of the company to this day. In the course of many years the Sun Fire Office grew to be a great and prosperous corporation, but its affairs were kept profoundly secret, until the requirements of its American connection impelled the directors to publish its accounts.

The Sun was admitted to New York August 1, 1882, depositing $200,000 with the insurance department at Albany, and in a few months it had spread its business into all the important states of the Union. The arrangements were made by Mr. F. B. Relton, then secretary of the company, who had been with it nearly half a century. He had purchased for the company the plant and business of an American company, the Watertown Fire Insurance Company of Watertown, N. Y., and taken its manager, Mr. Uri S. Gilbert, to be manager of the United States branch of the Sun, with headquarters at Watertown. A few years afterward Mr. J. J. Guile was sent over from the home office to assist Mr. Gilbert. The latter died suddenly in 1886, and Mr. Guile was appointed to succeed him. He removed the United States branch to New York. The first report made by the company to the New York insurance department, which was in 1883, of the business of the preceding year, showed United States assets of $1,095,229 with a premium income of $390,973.

In 1891, by special act of Parliament, the charter of the Sun Fire Office was amended so as to add to its' privileges the power to do all kinds of insurance, and the name it had borne for 180 years was changed to the Sun Insurance Office.

At the annual general meeting of the company in London, in June, 1916, the directors submitted a report of the business of 1915. The fire premiums received were $7,289,978, with losses of $2,709,872. Total assets, January 1, 1916, were $19,388,465. The capital of the company is $12,000,000, of which $2,400,000 is paid up.

The chairman of the Sun is Marlborough R. Pryor, and the board of directors is composed of leading business men of London.

The United States assets of the Sun at the close of 1915, as well as its income and expenditures, will be found in the table below:

SYSTEMS OF RATING IN FIRE INSURANCE. Although the word "system" is used in this connection the commonly accepted designation is "schedule." At least this was the designation given in the first "system" which came into general use. It was known as the "Universal Mercantile Schedule," and was largely the work of F. C. Moore, though he was assisted by James A. Silvey, George W. Babb, Jr., and E. G. Richards, as a committee. The committee was appointed in 1891, and its work, completed late in 1892, was given practical application in various sections of the country in 1893. The schedule was later pretty generally adopted.

A later schedule, which came into use in several of the western and southern states in the early nineties, was known as the "Dean Schedule." It was the work of Mr. A. F. Dean of Chicago, and was styled by the author "Analytic System for the Measurement of the Relative Fire Hazard." It was designed for rating mercantile hazards. The two schedules are still in use though modified from time to time as experience and application suggested. They have also been a guide in making up later schedules or systems. The "L. & L. Rating System" was put out in 1915 and is the work of A. E. Larter and W. S. Lemmon, which contains features found in both the older schedules. The system is designed to effect standardization of fire insurance rating.

The most recent schedule, put forth in 1916, is the work of Mr. E. G. Richards and is styled by the author "The Experience Grading and Rating Schedule," and as the author states "designed to be a United States standard for measuring fire insurance costs based upon combined experience averages."

In very recent years fire insurance rating has been the subject of much consideration and discussion, which led in 1914 to the creation by the National Board of Fire Underwriters of an actuarial bureau to which companies might report their underwriting experience; the purpose, or perhaps the hope, in view being ultimately to develop a rating schedule, or system, based on the combined experience of companies.

UNDERWRITERS' AGENCIES, JOINT POLICIES OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES WRITTEN BY. [For action of certain state insurance departments against "underwriters'" combinations of fire insurance companies, see Cyclopedica for 1898-99.]

In 1897 the Massachusetts department ruled that "underwriters' agencies" policies were illegal. The action of the Massachusetts commissioner was followed by similar rulings by the departments of Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois, Missouri, and Michigan. Such policies had previously been written all over the country, but, with few exceptions, were "joint policies," the "underwriters' agency" being composed of two or more companies, and but few such "agencies" were in operation. In recent years so-called "underwriters' agencies" have greatly increased in number, and it may be said differ somewhat from the earlier agencies, in that the large majority of such policies, or "agencies," are guaranteed by a single company, and are put forth in many cases to retain the agency representation of a reinsured company. Underwriters' agencies have increased greatly in recent years, and their status is again brought to the attention of state insurance officials.

The attorney general of Oklahoma has ruled that such agencies are illegal unless it is shown clearly that such agencies are acting as general agents of the parent company. The Wisconsin laws provide that "no insurance company, department or general agency of an insurance company shall issue any contract . . . giving the appearance of a separate or independent insuring organization upon the part of any department or general agency," and the name of the company assuming the risk shall be set forth more conspicuously than that of any department or general agency.

The Connecticut department early in 1916 issued the following ruling: "This department will not issue certificates to agents to represent Underwriters' Agencies. Your application for such agencies will not be accepted unless you apply for the Company which writes such policies."

UNDERWRITERS' ASSOCIATION OF THE MIDDLE DEPARTMENT. January 28, 1881, a few supervising and adjusting agents, having charge of the states of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland, held a meeting, and, believing "that a thorough concert of action" and acquaintance with the views of agents relative to the best interests of underwriting were necessary, agreed to form a permanent organization, which was effected July 19, 1881. The officers elected were: President, A. J. Foster; vice-president, J. B. Kelsey; secretary and treasurer, W. C. Goodrich. On May 9, 1883, a reorganization took place, creating thereby the Underwriters' Association of the Middle Department, the object of which is the systematic interchange of information and co-operation among field men. UNDERWRITERS' LABORATORIES, INC., Chicago. These laboratories are under the direction of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. They are supported by the stock fire insurance companies doing business in the United States, are engaged exclusively in experimental work in fire protection engineering and testing of devices and materials having a bearing on fire hazard, and the prevention of accidents. In this latter work the Workmen's Compensation Service Bureau co-operates. This plant is the only thing of the kind in the world and has grown to its present size and importance from a beginning made in the early nineties in the establishment by the Western Insurance Union and the Chicago Underwriters' Association of a small room for testing electrical fittings on the second floor of one of the insurance patrol houses in Chicago. The present organization was chartered by the Illinois legislature in November, 1901. This organization, upon which the insurance interests largely depend for correct estimates of the value of fire extinguishing appliances and fire resistive materials and methods of construction, as well as for correct methods of safeguarding as far as practicable lighting and heating devices, and the prevention of accidents, has the support and co-operation of manufacturing companies interested in fireproof wares and construction.

USE AND OCCUPANCY INSURANCE.* "Use and Occupancy Insurance," in the broad sense, insurance against the loss caused by fire in the way of interruption of business in a going concern, has had but a comparatively small development in the United States, and much of that development has apparently been in a wrong direction. There are two chief reasons for this. In the first place, in those states requiring or encouraging the use of a standard fire policy there is no separate provision for insuring contingent interests, such as rents, profits, use and occupancy, leasehold interest, etc., although these interests manifestly cannot be properly covered under the ordinary standard fire policy, with its express exclusion of loss due to interruption of business, its requirement for the payment of any loss in one sum and at one time, and its manifold minor provisions designed only for regular property insurance and losses. And in the next place, partly because a higher rate is ordinarily charged for so-called profit insurance than for so-called use and occupancy insurance, and partly because of the failure to understand and measure the real interest sought to be covered, the forms employed have been confused, evasive, or quite inadequate.

The first of these handicaps can be overcome only by amending or overriding the statutes enacting and establishing the standard policy; either greater liberty must be given fire underwriters by the law in the matter of insuring these contingent interests, or riders largely modifying the regular provisions of the standard fire policy for the sake of a clear cover for such interests must be employed and tolerated. The removal of the second handicap would appear to be mainly a question of education.

Strictly speaking, use and occupancy insurance, as was held in the well-known New York Court of Appeals case of Michael vs. the Prussian National Insurance Company, the so-called Buffalo Grain Elevator case, covers only the loss to the owner or occupant of the ability to use the property described in the policy. In the Tanenbaum cases in the Supreme Court of the same state, it was expressly, and no doubt properly, held that "use and occupancy," as that expression is used in a contract to procure insurance which was described only by that term, was not and could not be profits from earnings, however ascertainable. Apparently, therefore, use and occupancy in its proper sense is substantially the same as rental value, and to be measured in the same way as to insurable value and recoverable loss. But as understood by American underwriters generally, use and occupancy insurance is a form of contract that promises to indemnify the policyholder (usually a manufacturer) at a certain rate per day, in case of total interruption, and at a pro rata of that rate in case of partial interruption, caused by a fire in his premises. Only the vaguest understanding of the proper method of fixing that per diem rate, or the total insurable value of the interest insured, is usually found among either underwriters or policyholders. That is because they do not clearly see, or (on account of the question of rate already referred to) do not wish to acknowledge, that what the applicant wants and the under-writer should furnish is simply and solely a form of profit insurance, not use and occupancy insurance at all, in the proper sense of that expression. In England, this kind of insurance has been for more than a dozen years more correctly handled as the profit insurance it really is, on a form specially adopted throughout to its precise purpose, with great resulting advantage to the public and to the underwriters, so that a really important new branch of fire insurance has been developed. A recent English writer on this subject is therefore quite justified in referring to the American practice in the following curt fashion:

"In the United States of America, a scheme called Use and Occupancy is the system which is intended to compensate the insured for the loss of profits by fire. The company issuing a Use and Occupancy policy agrees to pay a pro rata amount of the sum insured for each day the business is entirely stopped, and in proportion in the event of a partial interruption. It is unnecessary to say that such a system cannot assess the loss of profits sustained, except in businesses where the turnover does not fluctuate. Such businesses are so few that a use and occupancy policy is of little commercial value."

It is true that this summary dismissal of the American Use and Occupancy policy does a little less than justice to it through failure to perceive that, however inaccurate a measuring rod a fixed per diem may be wherewith to measure a fluctuating rate of profit, it is, after all, likely to produce a fair average of result operating through any considerable period. But certainly the English method described by this same writer (Mr. Alex B. Wright, "Insurance Against Loss of Profits by Fire — Consequential Loss," London, 1912, C. & E. Layton) is vastly more flexible, equitable, and attractive. Under that method the applicant indicates whether he wishes to insure net profits only, or fixed charges only, or the two together under the general name of profits, and whether the basis or standard for measuring the loss is to be the "turnover," measured in money, or the "output," measured in quantity of goods produced. Then, for instance, if profits plus fixed charges are to be insured, and turnover is to be the standard, he is given insurance for the amount he declares his net profits plus fixed charges for a year would represent, and on the occurrence of a loss the actual annual turnover is ascertained, along with the percentage which net profits plus fixed charges have constituted of that turnover, and this percentage is applied to the reduction or loss of turnover due to the interruption by fire, thus giving the profit loss pure and simple, to which will be added the items constituting the increased cost of "working" necessarily incurred in continuing the business. Several necessary safeguards are introduced into the contract, so that, for instance, if fixed charges were not, in fact, continued after the occurrence of the fire, a corresponding deduction would be made from the amount of the adjustment. Under the English practice the period of liability as distinguished from the term of the policy is limited to a definite number of months following the fire, usually, though not always, less than a year. If in a given case it were longer than a year, instead of taking the annual turnover as the basis or standard of adjustment, the turnover for the longer period of liability is used, while, if the period of liability is a year or less, the standard or basis of adjustment is the annual turnover only. Usually, an audit is made once a month after the occurrence of the fire, until the full restoration of productivity, and monthly payments on account are made by the underwriters, though of course the ascertainment of the basis of entire adjustment, namely, the volume of the annual turnover and the percentage of that turnover represented by profits, is made immediately after the loss occurs. A number of minor checks, balances, and safeguards are introduced into the system, but this synopsis will sufficiently indicate the general character of the English handling of this subject and its manifest superiority to the practice in common use in the United States.

V

VALUED POLICY LAWS. Wisconsin was the pioneer in this form of legislation and enacted a valued policy law in 1874. Although later laws did not adopt the exact wording of the Wisconsin law, that law clearly expresses the purpose and application of such legislation, which is designed to make the amount of the insurance written in the policy the measure of loss, or, as stated in the Wisconsin law, "the true value of the property when insured and the true amount of loss and measure of damage when destroyed." A fire insurance policy is in principal and general practice a contract of indemnity simply — the measure of indemnity being determined at the time of the loss, and, consequently, legislation which proposes that the amount written in the policy shall be the measure of loss, makes such policies wager contracts, and as such contrary to the principles of fire underwriting. Such legislation also, it is claimed, is an inducement to fraud and arson, and for this reason such legislation has been condemned by underwriters and state insurance officials, and when enacted has been vetoed by the governor in several different states at different times. [See Cyclopedia of Insurance for 1893-94 and 1904-5.] A decision was rendered by the United States Supreme Court in 1899 upholding the constitutionality of the Missouri valued policy law. [See Cyclopedia for 1904-5.]

Valued policy laws are now in force in twenty-three states, as follows: Arkansas (1889 and 1899); California (1901); Delaware (1889, 1893, and 1901); Florida (1897 and 1899); Georgia (1895); Iowa (1897); Kansas (1893 and 1897); Kentucky (1893); Louisiana (1900); Minnesota (1905, 1907, and 1913); Mississippi (1902 and 1904); Missouri (1889); Nebraska (1889); New Hampshire (1885); North Dakota (1907); Ohio (1879); Oregon (1893); South Carolina (1896); South Dakota (1903); Tennessee (1909); Texas (1879); Washington (1897, 1899, and 1911); West Virginia (1899). [For text of laws see cyclopedia for 1913-14.]

The laws of Delaware, Florida, Minnesota, Ohio, and South Carolina require the value of the property insured to be fixed before or at the time the policy is issued, and the California law provides that the insured may require that such valuation be fixed. Kansas requires that a full description of the property insured be made in the policy. The Missouri law allows depreciation in the property to be shown in ascertaining the loss, and an additional section provides that no risk shall be taken at a ratio greater than three-fourths of the value of the property insured. The Arkansas law makes it the duty of the local agent to make a personal inspection of all property on which policies have been written and make written report to the company of conditions of same.

Commissioner Patterson of Texas at the state insurance commissioners' convention, in 1913, condemned the valued policy laws as a curse and not a blessing, and added:

"It permits the insured to collect the face of his policy regardless of the amount of the loss. It is the parent of fraud, perjury, and arson. The states which have invoked this blessing are paying an average premium rate of \$1.28 $\frac{8}{10}$, while the states without it are paying \$0.96, a difference of \$0.32 $\frac{8}{10}$ on the \$100 of insurance. This difference in the states having the valued policy law increased insurance premiums in 1914 more than thirty millions of dollars."

Although valued policy bills have been introduced in several different state legislatures at almost every succeeding session, there has been no new valued policy legislation since 1909, and the Wisconsin law was repealed in 1915.

A

ACCIDENT INSURANCE. The ordinary accident insurance policy grants a fixed compensation to the insured for a limited time in case of disabling accident, and also a definite amount to be paid to a designated person if death results from accident. Such policies are in general strictly limited by their terms to accidents which totally disable or kill the insured. Companies now issue modified forms providing for injury and death, with an additional clause as to partial disabilities of a permanent nature, such as loss of a limb, an eye, a hand, or foot. In order to recover, the injury must arise from "external, violent, and accidental means," and must be incurred while the insured is not unnecessarily exposing himself to "obvious danger," and while he is not engaged in an occupation more hazardous than that in which he has elected to be classified and insured; or if more hazardously occupied at the time of the injury, then recovery can be had only to the extent to which the premium paid would have purchased insurance in the more hazardous class. Within these limits there has been found a great deal of ground for differences of opinion, and many of the points which have been settled have only been disposed of after harassing litigation.

The following is a statement of the personal accident business of the principal companies in 1915:

There are two grades in the Society, viz.: Fellows and Associates, and, practically speaking, no one can become a Fellow unless he passes the prescribed examinations for Associateship and for Fellowship — a course which takes four or five years. Anyone who has been pursuing actuarial studies and is favorably known to two members of the Society may make application to the Council, and if his application is approved by the Council and he can then pass the examinations prescribed by the Council, he will be admitted as an Associate. He may be permitted to take the examinations before attaining age 21, but cannot become an Associate until attaining that age.

Any Associate who has been such for at least ten months and is 25 years of age may apply to the Council for Fellowship, and if his application is approved and he passes two additional examinations, he will then become a Fellow. He may take the examinations before attaining age 25, but cannot become a Fellow until attaining that age. Fellows of the Society may append to their names the initials "F. A. S.," and Associates "A. A. S."

The examinations are held on the first Wednesday and Thursday after the twentieth of May in each year. The custom has been to hold the examinations in as many places and in such localities as will be convenient to two or more candidates, although in certain cases an examination center is instituted for a single person. Examinations have heretofore been exclusively in writing. Examinations are now divided into four parts for Associateship, which may be taken in different years; and into two parts for Fellowship. Two parts of the Associateship and no more can be taken in one year.

All applications for admission to the examinations must be submitted to the Council, which cannot act thereon until at least twenty days after notice has been given of such candidacy, to all the members of the Society. Applications are required to be in the hands of the Secretary on or before the 1st of March of each year.

The Society publishes annually a pamphlet giving the examination papers for the year, and another pamphlet giving the recommendations of the Educational Committee. The published Transactions of the Society contain the various papers presented at the meetings, and the discussions thereon. Copies may be had at $.75 each by addressing the Secretary, Room 1233, 346 Broadway, New York City.

ACTUARY. Originally a public officer in the Roman courts of justice, who drew up contracts, etc., in the presence of the magistrates. Actuaries also kept the military accounts of the Romans. [See Walford.] In the United States the profession of actuary is confined principally to the mathematical questions involved in the practice of life insurance, such as the construction of premiums, distribution of surplus, surrender values, etc. The actuary is usually an officer of his company, but is seldom, contrary to the English practice, a manager.

ÆTNA ACCIDENT AND LIABILITY COMPANY, Hartford, Conn. Began business 1907; capital, $1,000,000. President, Morgan G. Bulkeley; vice-president, Walter C. Faxon; secretary, J. Scofield Rowe; assistant secretary, D. N. Gage; treasurer, M. B. Brainard; assistant treasurer, C. H. Remington; assistant treasurer, M. G. Bulkeley, Jr.; department secretaries, D. N. Gage, Fidelity and Surety Department; H. R. Clough, Automobile Department; N. C. Stevens, Plate Glass Department; R. W. Myers, Burglary Department; D. G. Stone, Sprinkler Leakage Department.

ÆTNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, of Hartford. The Ætna (Fire) Insurance Company, in 1820, the year after its incorporation, received authority from the Connecticut legislature to establish an annuity fund, with a capital stock of $150,000 to be pledged exclusively for the payment of annuities and of losses upon insured lives. It was not until 1850, however, that the company availed itself of this privilege. In 1853 a petition was presented to the General Assembly in Hartford asking for an alteration of the company's charter so as to constitute the shareholders of the annuity fund a separate and distinct corporation for the purpose of conducting a life insurance business. The bill was passed May 25, 1853, and the Ætna Life Insurance Company came into existence with Judge Eliphalet A. Bulkeley as its first president. John W. Seymour was made secretary. The directors were E. A. Bulkeley, Austin Dunham, H. Z. Pratt, Lawson C. Ives, Mark Howard, John Warburton, Roland Mather, S. L. Loomis, J. W. Seymour, and W. H. D. Callender.

For the first few years, development, in comparison with the rapid growth of recent years, was slow, due largely to the period of financial depression preceding the Civil War. But since 1863 progress has been swift and steady. In 1861 the company began issuing participating policies. The Ætna Life was a pioneer in loaning to western farmers, and secured many mortgages in Illinois bearing ten per cent. interest. Immigration was heavy, with a consequent enhancement of land value, and both the farmers and the company prospered by the latter's foresight. Later the company repeated the process in Iowa with equal success. This policy of taking farm mortgages has always been a favorite form of investment with the Ætna Life, and has met with extraordinarily fortunate results. The following table shows clearly the growth of the company:

ASSETS AND LIFE INSURANCE IN FORCE

End of Year	No. of Policies	Amount Insured	Assets
1850	1,003	$1,281,710	$168,788

On January 1, 1891, the company opened an accident department, and in 1902 began the issue of employers' liability insurance. The accident premium income in 1891 was $39,806.15; in 1915 the accident and health premium income was $2,752,420.70. The total assets of all departments on January 1, 1916, were $124,238,552.93. The liabilities were $106,261,340.11, and the surplus was $17,977,212.82.

Hon. E. A. Bulkeley held the office of president until his death in 1872, when he was succeeded by Thomas O. Enders. In 1878 the company petitioned the General Assembly for authority to increase the capital to an amount not exceeding $750,000, and the charter was amended accordingly. The act required the increase to be made from surplus funds derived from non-participating stock plan business. The capital stood at $750,000 until 1883, when the charter was again amended authorizing an increase to $2,000,000. Meanwhile Mr. Enders had resigned in 1879 and the present head of the company, Morgan G. Bulkeley, son of the first president, became president. In 1883 the capital was increased to $1,000,000; in 1887 to $1,250,000; in 1892 to $1,500,000; in 1895 to $1,750,000. In 1903 it was increased to $2,000,000; in 1913 to $4,000,000, and in 1915 to $5,000,000.

Expanding business has required repeated changes in location. In 1888 the company bought for $231,000 the building which the Charter Oak Life Insurance Company erected at a cost of $844,380. That same year the Ætna Life moved in and occupied the first floor. It was not long before it became necessary to use the whole five-story building, and in 1913 it was decided to add five more stories. By April, 1915, the new home office was ready for occupation, and so great was the amount of business that almost all available room was in use immediately.

Since the founding of the company, vice-presidents have been: J. W. Seymour, 1856-57; John Warburton, 1857-60; S. L. Loomis, 1860-63; Austin Dunham, 1863-77; W. H. Bulkeley, 1877-79; J. C. Webster, 1879-1900; J. L. English, 1905-; M. B. Brainard, 1910-.

The tenth annual meeting was in Monterey, Cal., September 30 and October 1 and 2, 1915. President Randall presided, and in his address discussed the great growth of life insurance and its influence and benefit. It had, he said, outgrown the original purpose for which it was instituted and had become a dominant factor in every department of life. "Life insurance offers its service to all and bears the risk of life which no man can afford to carry alone," said the president, and continuing spoke of the responsibilities of companies and their officials. The obligation for the highest service, rested squarely upon every company official, he said, and in conclusion spoke of the association and its increasing growth and influence. There were, he said, other associations doing similar work, which were themselves learning the value of co-operation, and predicted that the time would soon come, if it had not already arrived, when these associations would all agree on the essential and fundamental principles of life insurance and work together effectively for the upbuilding of life insurance as a whole.

Secretary Blackburn presented a report reviewing the work of the year and the growth and accomplishments of the association, and papers were read as follows during the sessions:

"Supervision," Walter K. Chorn, superintendent of insurance of Missouri; "Petty Legislation," F. V. Keesling, vice-president West Coast-San Francisco Life, San Francisco; "Field Ethics," Charles W. Helser, Continental Life, Salt Lake City; "Investments," Charles D. Works, insurance commissioner, Minnesota; "The Epochal Year," Dr. F. G. Cross, Columbia Life, Cincinnati; "The New Mortality Tables," Henry Moir, Home Life, New York; Lawrence M. Cathles, Southwestern Life, Dallas, Texas; and Arthur Hunter, New York Life. The above papers were discussed and there was also a discussion of the subject "Competitive Literature," and a debate on the subject "Should Medical Examinations be Required by Law," in which Herman L. Ekern took the affirmative and Charles F. Coffin, Indianapolis, the negative. Reports from standing committees were presented, and the following resolutions were adopted:

"We oppose the practice of twisting, proselyting, or circularizing agents of other companies by companies of the American Life Convention, their general agents or managers, for the reason that the same is unethical and unfair and is detrimental to the interests of both companies and agents."

"That the use of competitive literature by companies' members of this convention be discouraged and vigorously opposed and that all companies be requested to refrain from the employment directly or indirectly of such advertising through either its home office or agents."

ANTI-REBATE LAWS. Following is a list of the states which have laws prohibiting the giving of rebate of premium to the insured by life and other insurance companies or their agents.

The first anti-rebate law applying specifically to the business of life insurance was enacted by Massachusetts in 1887. The previous year, it is true, Louisiana passed a law prohibiting the allowance of rebates in insurance, but no class of insurance was named in the act; it was supposed to refer to fire insurance, and it was not until later that an opinion was given by the attorney-general of the state that its provisions were applicable to the practice of life insurance.

The anti-rebate laws of a number of the states, while at first applying only to life insurance, have been amended to include fire insurance as well as other forms of insurance in their prohibitions, and in some states the laws prohibit the sale of stock in connection with insurance, or as an inducement to insurance, and also prohibit twisting. The Indiana law defines the term "rebate" to mean "anything of value, or the making of an agreement, expressed or implied, that will directly or indirectly diminish any premium below the amount specified in the policy," excepting payment of dividends under participating policies.

The Nebraska law also defines the word in the same terms practically, but also excepts "bonuses paid or allowed directly by any company upon non-participating policies which have been in force at least five years."

Anti-rebate laws are in force in the following states: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

The laws of the following states prohibit the sale of stock "in connection with or as an inducement to insurance": Alabama, Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Louisiana, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming. In Connecticut, Illinois, Maryland, and Virginia the insurance departments have ruled that stock selling would be illegal under the anti-rebate law, and in Delaware it has been held to be illegal unless offered to all insureds of the same class alike. Georgia has ruled that such sale of stock would be contrary to public policy, and the attorney-general of New Jersey has held that option to purchase stock must be contained in the policy.

The laws of Indiana, Idaho, Maine, Nebraska, New Mexico, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia prohibit the insured from "knowingly receiving or accepting a rebate." The Wisconsin law provides that "Notwithstanding any violation of this section the policy shall be valid, but the insured, having knowingly and wilfully violated any provisions of this section, shall be entitled to recover from the company only such proportion of the amount otherwise payable . . . as the amount of the premium or premiums which have become payable, according to the terms of the policy, deducting any rebate and the value of any special favor or advantage or consideration or inducement . . . bears to the amount of such premium or premiums."

The laws of Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin, and Wyoming, prohibit the making of advisory board contracts, under which, as a rule, a certain number of policyholders were granted special advantages or considerations. Such contracts are also prohibited, under rulings of the insurance department, in Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Mississippi, and Virginia. The North Carolina supreme court held in 1909 that such contracts were illegal under the law forbidding discrimination and rebates. Under the West Virginia law persons are forbidden to receive or accept any "favor or advantage."

[For full text of laws enacted prior to 1914, see Cyclopedia for 1913-14, and for legislation in 1915 see Cyclopedia for 1915.] The legislature of California in 1915 enacted an anti-rebate law, but the measure was vetoed by the governor.

The Kentucky legislature in 1916 enacted the following, which is Section 19 of an act creating a state insurance board and relates to fire insurance:

Section 19. No insurance company nor any agent, in connection with placing or attempting to place insurance, shall pay, allow, or give, or offer to pay, allow, or give, nor shall any person receive any rebate of premium on a policy, or any special advantage in dividends or other benefits, paid employment or contract for services, or any valuable consideration, or inducement whatever, not specified in the policy, or give, sell or purchase, or offer to give, sell or purchase, in connection with placing or attempting to place insurance, anything of value whatsoever not specified in the policy.

The section provides further that "Notwithstanding any violation of this section, the policy shall be valid, but the insured having knowingly and wilfully violated any provision of this section shall suffer such proportionate reduction in any recovery on the policy as the value of the rebate bears to the premium on the policy. Such reduction shall be paid by the company into the State School Fund."

ARIZONA, INSURANCE SUPERVISION IN, 1887-1916. By an act passed in 1887 the territorial treasurer of Arizona was charged with the supervision of insurance, but in 1901 an act was passed transferring the authority to the territorial secretary. [For names of officials, see Cyclopaedia for 1911-13 and 1913-14.] Under an act passed in 1912, supervision of insurance was transferred to a State Corporation Commission. C. C. Thompson is superintendent of insurance under the commission.

ARKANSAS, INSURANCE SUPERVISION IN, 1873-1916. By the insurance law of 1873 the auditor of the state, who is elected by the people for two years, is made insurance commissioner ex-officio. The active duties of supervision are in charge of a "deputy insurance commissioner," who is appointed by the state auditor. M. F. Dickinson is auditor and N. B. Martin is deputy insurance commissioner.

ASSETS. In insurance the entire property of the company. In making annual statements net or ledger assets are distinguished from gross assets, although the distinction is sometimes an uncertain one. In life insurance agents' balances, bills, bills receivable, furniture, etc., and a percentage of uncollected premiums are deducted.

CALEF LOVING CUP AND BEN WILLIAMS MEMORIAL VASE. At a meeting of the executive committee of the National Association of Life Underwriters held at Pittsburg, Pa., in March, 1894, a communication was read from Major Ben S. Calef, of Boston, tendering a silver "loving cup" to the association, to serve as a prize in an annual inter-association contest, on the following terms:

The executive committee of the national association shall call for a paper or essay, not to exceed 750 words, on the subject, "What Have Life Underwriters' Associations Accomplished for the Benefit of the Companies, the Agents, and the Public?" Each association is to send one paper by a writer selected by itself from its own members; his name is to be placed in a sealed envelope bearing a number corresponding to the number of an envelope containing his paper. These are to be sent on or before June 1 to the secretary of the national association. The national executive committee will appoint a sub-committee of five members to open and read the several contributions, and decide by open ballot which they consider the best. This being decided, the envelope bearing the corresponding number shall be opened, and the paper so selected will be read at the national convention. The author of the selected paper shall receive the cup as custodian for his association, and it shall bear his name and that of his association, and the date. The cup shall be held until the next annual meeting of the national association, when a similar competition shall take place under the direction of the national executive committee, they naming the subject for the paper. All the papers shall become the property of the national association, with the right to publish them.

The cup was accepted by the committee on behalf of the national association, with the conditions attached, and each of the local associations was duly notified. [For account of earlier contests and winners see Cyclopedia for 1911-13 and 1913-14.]

The Calef Cup is of silver, of generous proportions, beautifully carved, with three graceful handles, and bearing on its side the inscription "National Association of Life Underwriters. Annual Essay Cup. Presented by Benjamin S. Calef, Boston, 1894." The workmanship was specially designed and executed by Shreve, Crump & Low, Boston, Mass. The lamented death of the donor occurred January 9, 1897.

The Ben Williams memorial vase, presented to the National Association in 1899, was the gift of twenty gentlemen, members of the National Association, in remembrance of Ben Williams, the western life insurance manager, who died May 22, 1898. The conditions of the gift are that it shall be presented, for the year, to the second best contestant for the Calef Cup, under the same regulations.

The twentieth annual contest in 1913 resulted in the Calef Cup being awarded to George W. Johnson, of New York, and the Ben Williams vase to R. O. Mills, of San Francisco. The subject was "Creative Soliciting, Rather than Competitive."

The subject of the twenty-first annual contest in 1914 was "Woman's Interest and Influence in Life Insurance." The Calef Cup was awarded to John McFee, Massachusetts Mutual Life, Chicago, and the

and in his address discussed "social insurance" taking for his subject "The Relation Between Private and Social Insurance," and urged the members to devote some of their time and study to the subject, which would be of greater importance in the not distant future. The president said social insurance was too often confused with state insurance, which it was not necessarily, and in conclusion he pointed out that "the principle of service must rise above the old principle of private gain, and the people may be trusted to retain the old forms of organization or create such new ones as will best conform to this conception of service and at the smallest cost." The questions were to be settled by experiment rather than argument and in any case the actuary could afford to be neutral, as whatever the form of organization ultimately determined upon the services of the trained actuary will be required.

CORPORATE SURETYSHIP.* Following the custom as old as civilization, it was impossible, until comparatively a few years ago, to furnish bond excepting by personal sureties or collateral security. Corporate surety companies were therefore formed to enable a man to pay a company a premium for serving in lieu of personal surety or collateral security, guaranteeing the obligee against loss, if the conditions of the bond should not be properly met. Corporate suretyship has been aptly described as a means of saving one's self from one's friends. This operates both ways, in that a man by furnishing corporate surety is relieved from obligations to friends who might serve as personal sureties; and those qualified to become sureties can better afford to pay the surety bond premium for a "friend," rather than risk personal loss by becoming his surety.

Since surety companies are classified as insurance companies, and the giving of bonds being far older than any form of insurance, it seems strange that corporate surety should be so long attaining its proper place. Insurance corporations became reasonably common in the seventeenth century, yet the first surety company was organized in 1851, but not admitted to the United States until 1881. One American company writing surety business was organized in 1876, another in 1884, and the important fact is that these four companies still survive, and practically all of the host of companies organized beginning with the year 1897 have ceased doing business.

This is due to many causes, but primarily to handling suretyship like insurance, assuming the volume of premiums would take care of the losses and writing business freely without regarding anything but the erratic loss experience gained from time to time. The chief errors included inadequate rates, improper standards of underwriting, underestimated loss reserves, and over-confidence generally. Needless to say that the companies which confused the ideas of mere production with those of safe underwriting, did not live long enough to acquire any experience, and that no stability was given the business until the formation of the present system of standardization of rates (differentiated as to the liability in various states under their ever-changing laws).

There are many mistaken conceptions of the scope and purpose of corporate suretyship, but the worst is the erroneous theory that the premium is intended to cover the risk. This is not the case, as a corporate surety is merely an accommodation surety and all elements of risk must be eliminated, as far as possible, so that the premium merely represents a service fee to save the principal from being under obligations to personal surety, and yet, at the same time, contemplating full re-imbursement to the surety company of all loss and expenses incurred.

The average surety company is qualified to transact all of the so-called multiple lines, i.e.: To cover all hazards, excepting fire and life insurance. The most successful companies are necessarily those which, though chartered as above, restrict their operations to fidelity, surety, and burglary business, for the only difference between fidelity and burglary is that the latter covers larceny, theft, and robbery caused by parties presumably unknown to the assured. In its properly restricted sense, corporate suretyship comprehends the issuing only of such obligations as a personal surety might sign with proper qualifications, and the soundest argument in favor of corporate-suretyship is the fundamental principle that the individual surety may die or fail and that only a permanent institution can be trusted on long contracts.

Many of the earlier companies began by writing only fidelity bonds; i.e., guaranteeing honesty and faithful performance of duties of officers and employees. Fidelity business still forms the foundation of a properly balanced surety income, and is the best class of business from all standpoints, because self-respect deters losses, realizing that discovery brings disgrace and punishment.

Next in line comes what are styled court fiduciary bonds, involving the same elements, but including as well, ability and proper fulfillment of trusts. To secure the proper administration of the trust and compliance with law and court orders by Federal and Bankruptcy fiduciaries, joint control of the assets is exercised by the referee, or the clerk of court. Surety companies follow the same practice in most cases, especially long terms trusts, thus safeguarding the interests of the beneficiaries, and, besides assisting the fiduciary, this relieves him by sharing responsibility for his disbursements. This practice has the approval of most courts and is provided for by enactments in most states.

From this point on, all miscellaneous suretyship involves financial strength — the ability to perform the contract, pay the amount involved or other object to be attained; and these bonds must, therefore, be underwritten entirely on banking principles. Bonds on appeal, supersedeas, and all other obligations equivalent to the endorsement of commercial paper, can only be safely guaranteed by the deposit with the surety company of cash or marketably convertible collateral equal to the face of the bond. Where collateral is not imperatively essential, the financial statement of the contractor or similar applicant must be unquestionably adequate and absolutely verified.

In spite of all precautions that can be taken, the percentage of actual underwriting profit is remarkably small, and statistics show that the most substantial gains are from the income from investments, salvage, and other sources — the companies paying only nominal dividends and keeping operating expenses at an irreducible minimum. [For statistics see Surety and Fidelity Insurance.]

DECREMENT. The part by which a variable quantity is conceived to be diminished. In the mortality tables in use by life insurance companies there is a column showing the number dying each year out of the number living at the beginning of the year. This column is the decrement. Starting with, say 100,000 persons, living at the age at which the table begins, there is an annual decrement until the last one dies at age 100.

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY INSURANCE. This class of insurance, which originated in Great Britain, was first written in the United States in 1866, as a regular business by the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation of London. About 1889 both American and foreign companies authorized to do a casualty business, or organized for the purpose, began to compete for this kind of insurance. In its primary form it is the insurance of employers against liability for injuries happening to their employees when actually engaged in their services; but the business has been extended to cover liability to persons other than employees (technically public liability) and various forms embracing both features have been devised; as, for example, General Liability insurance, Elevator insurance, and Teams insurance.

ENDOWMENT. A term used in life insurance to indicate a contract which, in addition to paying the sum named in the event the holder dies, also provides that the identical sum will be paid to him if he is alive at the completion of the period of years agreed upon — usually ten, fifteen, or twenty years. These two results are achieved mathematically in old line insurance by combining the cost of term life insurance with the requisite sum annually as an investment, which at the assumed rate of interest will make the reserve at the end of the endowment period equal to the face of the policy. As a matter of fact, all life insurance policies based upon the principle of annually accumulating reserves are endowment policies maturing at some definite period, the ordinary life policy being the easiest understood illustration. The reserve under that contract equals its face at age ninety-six and may be withdrawn in cash. Most participating companies issue, in addition to their regular policy forms, others which provide for the shortening of the endowment term by using annual dividends as declared as premiums for the purchase of their equivalents in paid-up endowments. These are known as "accelerative endowments," "life-rate endowments," and by other names.

EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES, New York, N. Y. Organized in July, 1859 by Henry B. Hyde, who had previously resigned as cashier of the Mutual Life Insurance Company for that purpose. As then required by law, the company was incorporated with a minimum capital of \$100,000, the charter limiting dividends to stockholders to a rate of $3\frac{1}{2}$ per cent semi-annually. Mr. Hyde became vice-president and general manager, succeeding to the presidency in 1874 on the death of President William C. Alexander. During the early years, the company grew slowly, but made steady progress, attaining to its first million of assets during its sixth year at the end of which time it had in force outstanding insurance of \$16,500,000. In 1905 the charter was amended, under which a committee of trustees composed of Grover Cleveland, Morgan J. O'Brien, and George Westinghouse was put in control of the majority stock (510 shares; par value, \$51,000) which named, on behalf of the policyholders, 28 of the 52 directors of the company. In 1905 this stock was sold by the estate of Henry B. Hyde to Thomas F. Ryan, who sold it in 1909 to J. P. Morgan. At this time the committee of trustees was reconstituted, the members being Morgan J. O'Brien, Lewis Cass Ledyard, and George W. Perkins, the agreement under which they acted being renewed for five years on December 31, 1910, the owner of the stock reserving the right to terminate it on thirty days' notice in writing, the trustees to have no power to renew it at expiration. In 1915 the controlling interest in the stock was sold by the estate of J. P. Morgan to T. Coleman Dupont, the present owner. The price paid for this \$51,000 stock is said to have been over \$2,000,000. The officers are as follows: William A. Day, president; John B. Lunger, vice-president; G. T. Wilson, second vice-president; Leon O. Fisher, third vice-president; J. V. E. Westfall, assistant third vice-president; Henry L. Rosenfeld, fourth vice-president; William Alexander, secretary; S. S. FIDELITY AND CASUALTY COMPANY OF NEW YORK, THE, was the pioneer company in America writing fidelity, casualty, and kindred lines of insurance. It began business on May 1, 1876, at 176 Broadway, New York, the office consisting of a single little back room, while the office force was made up of four officers, two clerks, and an office boy. But they had a company with a capital of \$100,000 and they began by writing fidelity, plate glass, steam boiler, and personal accident insurance. In 1888 employers' liability insurance was added, up to which time no American company had written liability insurance, and bank-burglary insurance was also added at nearly the same time. At present the company is writing more than twenty lines of insurance, including personal accident, installment accident, health, employers' liability, general liability, landlord's liability, workmen's collective, workmen's compensation, fidelity, surety, burglary and theft, safe, plate glass, elevator, fly wheel, steam boiler, automobile property damage, and automobile liability. The company's charter is extremely liberal, authorizing it "to make insurances upon the health of individuals and against personal injury, disablement, or death resulting from traveling or general accidents by land or water, and guaranteeing the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, and upon the lives of horses, cattle, and other live stock, and also against loss, damage or liability arising from any unknown or contingent event whatever which may be the subject of legal insurance, excepting the perils and risks included in the departments of fire, marine, and life insurance." The company originated and was the first to give practical effect to the proposition to prevent a large percentage of industrial accidents by teaching workmen and their employers how to avoid them, and large amounts of money and much labor have been devoted to this educational work.

The capital of the Fidelity and Casualty Company was increased, first from $100,000 to $250,000 by subscriptions of stock, and subsequently by increases made from earnings, the amount standing for the past ten years at $1,000,000. There has also been a steady and continuous increase in assets which amounted on January 1, 1916, to $12,726,401. In addition to the unearned premium reserve, amounting on the same date to $4,831,631, the company set aside $3,008,016 as an additional reserve for losses, but, including this and the capital as a liability, the net surplus over all liabilities on January 1, 1916, was $3,149,542. The assets have been more than trebled since the beginning of the present century and the same is true of the net surplus which is always available for unforeseen contingencies. The officers are: President, Robert J. Hillas; vice-president, Frank E. Law; vice-president and secretary, Theodore E. Gaty; vice-presidents, Edward C. Lunt, Nelson D. Sterling, Wm. J. Johnson, Wm. FRATERNAL BENEFICIARY ORDERS. These organizations are in theory formed and carried on for the sole benefit of their members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit. They have a lodge system, with ritualistic work and representative form of government. They make provision for payment of benefits in case of death by assessments or dues collected from their members. Some also provide for the payment of benefits in case of sickness, or temporary physical disability as a result either of disease, accident, or old age.

The principle of co-operation is the corner-stone of these organizations. In its simplest expression it involved the collection on the death of a member of a uniform sum from each of the survivors, and the payment of the total thus gathered to the beneficiary of the deceased. The labor of making the collection was given as a fraternal act by a brother chosen for the office. The election of a new member to fill the place of the deceased was supposed to be sufficient to secure a uniform benefit, and perpetuate the life of the order. The principle found expression in the guilds or confraternities of Europe as early as the eleventh century. But this primitive form, though holding the basic principle of all fraternalism, was long since outgrown. The principle, however, is of abiding value to mankind. It found congenial soil in the Masonic organizations and in the order of Odd Fellows before it was developed into the fraternal beneficiary orders of the present day.

The first man who recognized the possibilities of its broader application, and embodied it in a fraternal order, was John Jordan Upchurch, who founded upon it in 1868 the Ancient Order of United Workmen. It was he who adapted the lodge system of ritualistic work to co-operative relief on a large scale. Since he blazed the way many orders have appeared, differing somewhat in the amount of benefit and rate of assessment and in the method of collecting and disbursing the funds, but retaining the lodge system and social fraternal features.

During the decade from 1880 to 1890 the multiplication of these orders in the United States was most prolific. The eleventh census reported that on December 31, 1889, there were in the United States 298 orders with 40,342 subordinate branches or lodges. The number of these orders afterwards decreased. Nearly all the older orders were members of the National Fraternal Congress, while the younger orders were grouped in the Associated Fraternities of America. The two orders amalgamated in 1913 under the name of the National Fraternal Congress of America. The societies have two classes of membership, benefit and social members, and the total benefit members on January 1, 1916, was 8,128,908, and the total membership, 8,573,739, with 119,996 lodges. The total insurance in force was $9,443,671,501. The insurance written in 1915 was $912,149,539 and the benefits paid, $103,508,093. The grand total of benefits paid is $2,627,207,755. The total assets January 1, 1916, amounted to $264,068,045, and the liabilities, including $8,697,042 of reserves, $29,321,246. [For a review of the earlier plans and purposes of Fraternals see the Cyclopedia of Insurance for 1897-98.]

Nearly all the orders organized prior to 1895, on the old assessment lines, found their rates inadequate, and gradually changed their methods both of assessing and collecting rates. The National Fraternal Congress in 1899 adopted the form of a legislative act, the purpose of which was to enforce rates and rules that would enable the orders to meet their engagements with members at maturity. This act became a law in several states, but did not meet the needs of the situation, and the question of adequate rates, as well as a table of mortality on which to base rates, was a subject of much controversy. The discussion resulted in the whole question of legislative control and regulation of fraternal orders being taken up, and after repeated conferences a measure providing for the regulation of fraternal associations was finally drafted and received the endorsement of the two organizations. The bill drafted in 1910, known as the Mobile Bill, is in force in Alabama, California, Colorado, Missouri, Montana, Ohio, Oregon, Utah, and Washington.

The law known as the New York Conference Bill, which modified the Mobile Bill, is in force in Arizona, Connecticut, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Rhode Island, Michigan, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Wisconsin, Wyoming, Maryland, Georgia, Louisiana, Massachusetts, and Mississippi.

The old fraternal bill, which omits the valuation requirement, but requires adequate rates, is in force in Iowa, Maine, Minnesota, Oklahoma, and Vermont. In South Carolina the Mobile bill is practically in force, while in Kentucky, Arkansas, and Nevada there are no laws regulating fraternals.

The Ancient Order of United Workmen is composed of distinct state organizations in Arkansas, Connecticut, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Massachusetts, Minnesota, New Jersey, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Washington. The total benefit membership on January 1, 1916, was 139,991, and the subordinate lodges numbered 1,847. There are eighty-two smaller orders, whose individual membership is less than fifteen thousand, and there are several organizations, which do not furnish insurance as a special feature. The following are the leading societies with their membership: Ancient Order Free and Accepted Masons, membership (United States and Canada), 1,760,277, Independent Order Odd Fellows, (United States), 2,194,773; Knights of Pythias, 729,053; Ancient Order of Foresters, (American branch), 44,698; Order of Rechabites, 1,000,000; Loyal Order of Moose, 505,618; Red Men, 495,954; Order of Owls, 364,547; Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, 442,658; Order of Eagles, 413,000; Ancient Order of Druids, 333,215 (American, 32,510); Hibernians, 315,000; Foresters of America, 205,765; Sons of America, 187,000; Order of Orioles, 98,000; Knights of the Golden Eagle, 82,656; Knights of Malta, Ancient and Illustrious Order, 41,000. Both the Mobile bill and the New York Conference bill define "fraternal benefit societies" as "any corporation, society, order, or voluntary association, without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government" and which shall make provision for the payment of benefits in accordance with Section five of the act.

The laws also define "lodge system" and "representative form of government" in the following words:

Section 2. (Lodge system). Any society having a supreme governing or legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known, into which members shall be elected, initiated and admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which subordinate lodges or branches shall be required by the laws of such society to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating on the lodge system.

Section 3. Representative form of government. Any such society shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it shall provide in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives elected either by the members or by delegates elected directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws: Provided, That the elective members shall constitute a majority in number and have not less than two-thirds of the votes nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws: And provided further, That the meetings of the supreme or governing body, and the election of officers, representatives or delegates shall be held as often as once in four years. The members, officers, representatives or delegates of a fraternal benefit society shall not vote by proxy.

Section five referred to in the definition of fraternal benefit societies, quoted above, reads as follows:

Section 5. Every society transacting business under this act shall provide for the payment of death benefits, and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident or old age: Provided, The period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age shall commence, shall not be under seventy years, and may provide for monuments or tombstones to the memory of its deceased members, and for the payment of last sickness and funeral benefits. Such society shall have the power to give a member, when permanently disabled or on attaining the age of seventy, all, or such portion of the face value of his certificate as the laws of the society may provide: Provided, That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of benefit certificates for a term of years less than the whole of life which are payable upon the death or disability of the member occurring within the term for which the benefit certificate may be issued. Such society shall, upon written application of the member, have the power to accept a part of the periodical contributions in cash, and charge the remainder, not exceeding one-half of the periodical contribution, against the certificate with interest payable or compounded annually at a rate not lower than four per cent per annum: Provided, That this privilege shall not be granted except to societies which have readjusted or may hereafter readjust their rates of contributions, and to contracts affected by such readjustment.

Any society which shall show by the annual valuation provided for that it is accumulating and maintaining the reserve necessary to enable it to do so may grant to its members extended and paid-up protection or such withdrawal equities as its constitution and by-laws may provide. The reserves must be accumulated, however, under a table of mortality not lower than the American Experience Table and four per cent interest, and it is further provided that such grants shall in no case exceed in value the portion of the reserve to the credit of such members to whom they are made.

The payment of death benefits under each of the bills is restricted to "wife, husband, relative by blood to the fourth degree, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, step-father, step-mother, step-children, children by legal adoption, or to a person or persons dependent upon the member," or, if after the issuance of the original certificate "the member shall become dependent upon an incorporated charitable institution he shall have the privilege with the consent of the society of making such institution his beneficiary."

Any society may admit to beneficial membership any person not less than sixteen and not more than sixty years of age who shall be examined by a legally qualified physician and in accordance with the laws of the society.

Seven or more persons may organize a society, by filing notice of intention, giving names of society and its officers and purpose of the organization with the insurance commissioner, who, if he is satisfied that all provisions of the law have been complied with, may issue a certi-ificate of authority to the society to solicit members and complete its organization, and the society shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one regular monthly payment. "But no such society shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow, to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each, and all such applicants for death benefits shall have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians, and certificates of such examinations have been duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such society, nor until there shall be established ten subordinate lodges or branches into which said five hundred applicants have been initiated," nor until there has been submitted to the insurance commissioner the names of the applicants and of the subordinate lodges, and "amount of benefits to be granted, rate of stated periodical contributions which shall be sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligations, contracted, when valued for death benefits upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality, as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress August 23, 1899, or any higher standard at the option of the society, and for disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience and for combined death and permanent total disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent per annum, nor until it shall be shown to the insurance commissioner by the sworn statement of the treasurer, or corresponding officer of such society, that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment as herein provided per one thousand dollars of indemnity to be affected, which payments in the aggregate shall amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars, all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants, and no part of which may be used for expenses." (Section 12). No preliminary certificate granted shall be valid after one year from date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be granted by the commissioner, and unless the five hundred applicants have been secured, and the organization completed, the articles of incorporation shall become null and void. Societies are required to appoint the insurance commissioner attorney for service of process, and are required to make annual reports to the insurance commissioner on or before March 1. The so-called Mobile bill and the New York Conference bill are practically the same except as to valuation requirements. The Mobile bill required that the first report of valuation should be made as of December 31, 1912, while the New York Conference bill required the first valuation report to be made as of December 31, 1914. The National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality is specified as the legal minimum standard in each law, except that at its option the society may use any higher table, or its own experience of at least twenty-five years and covering at least one hundred thousand lives, and interest assumption of not more than four per cent per annum. "Such report of valuation shall show, as contingent liabilities, the present mid-year value of the promised benefits provided in the constitution and laws of such society under certificates then subject to valuation; and, as contingent assets, the present mid-year value of the future net contributions provided in the constitution and laws as the same are in practice actually collected. At the option of any society, in lieu of the above, the valuation may show the net value of the certificates subject to valuation hereinbefore provided, and said net value, when computed in case of monthly contributions, may be the means of the terminal values for the end of the preceding and of the current insurance years."

The valuation provided for "shall not be considered or regarded as a test of the financial solvency of the society, but each society shall be held to be legally solvent so long as the funds in its possession are equal to or in excess of its matured liabilities."

Section 23a of the Mobile bill, containing provisions "to insure future security," reads as follows:

If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December 31, 1917, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than ninety per centum of the present value of the promised benefits and accrued liabilities, such society shall be required thereafter to reduce such deficiency not less than five per centum of the total deficiency on said December 31, 1917, at each succeeding triennial valuation. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show such percentage of improvement, the insurance commissioner shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has not made the percentage of improvement required herein, the insurance commissioner may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provisions of Section 24 of this act, or, in the case of a foreign society, he may cancel its certificate of authority to transact business in this state. Any such society, shown by any triennial valuation, subsequent to December 31, 1917, not to have made the improvements herein required shall, within one year thereafter, complete such deficient improvements, or thereafter, as to all new members, admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contribution are concerned, to the provisions of Section 12 of this act, applicable in the organization of new societies; provided, that the contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society until the required improvement shall be shown by valuation. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificates valued as an independent society in respect of contributions and funds.

Section 24 referred to relates to examinations by the insurance commissioner, and the instigation of proceedings for the appointment of a receiver, and the important provisions of Section 12, also referred to, are printed above.

The provisions to "insure future security" of the New York Conference bill (Sections 23a and 23b) read as follows:

If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventeen, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than the present value of the promised benefits and accrued liabilities, such society shall thereafter maintain said financial condition at each succeeding triennial valuation in respect of the degree of deficiency as shown in the valuation as of December thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventeen. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show at least the same condition, the commissioner shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has failed to maintain the condition required herein, the commissioner may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provisions of Section twenty-four of this act, or in the case of a foreign society, its license may be cancelled in the manner provided in this act.

Any such society, shown by any triennial valuation, subsequent to December thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventeen, not to have maintained the condition herein required, shall, within two years thereafter, make such improvement as to show a percentage of deficiency not greater than as of December thirty-first, nineteen hundred seventeen, or thereafter as to all new members admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contributions are concerned, to the provisions of section twelve of this act, applicable in the organization of new societies: Provided, That the net mortuary or beneficiary contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificates valued as an independent society in respect of contributions and funds: Provided, however, That whenever the supreme body of any domestic society shall voluntarily determine that it is necessary for the future solvency of the society to increase the rate of the assessments charged by the society, then before such increase shall become effective the question shall be submitted and approved by a majority vote of the members voting thereon. The submission of such vote shall be held at the lodge rooms of the different societies at a regular meeting thereof, after due notice to the members of such submission.

Section 23b. In lieu of the requirements of sections twenty-three and twenty-three-a, any society accepting in its laws the provisions of this section may value its certificates on a basis herein designated "accumulation basis," by crediting each member with the net amount contributed for each year and with interest at approximately the net rate earned, and by charging him with his share of the losses for each year, herein designated "cost of insurance" and carrying the balance, if any, to his credit. The charge for the cost of insurance may be according to the actual experience of the society applied to a table of mortality recognized by the law of this state, and shall take into consideration the amount at risk during each year, which shall be the amount payable at death less the credit to the member. Except as specifically provided in its articles or laws or contracts no charge shall be carried forward from the first valuation hereunder against any member for any past share of losses exceeding the contributions and credit. If, after the first valuation, any member's share of losses for any year exceeds his credit including the contribution for the year, the contribution shall be increased to cover his share of the losses. Any such excess share of losses chargeable to any member may be paid out of a fund or contributions especially created or required for such purpose. Any member may transfer to any plan adopted by the society with net rates on which tabular reserves are maintained, and on such transfer shall be entitled to make such application of his credit as provided in the laws of the society.

Certificates issued, rerated or readjusted on a basis providing for adequate rates with adequate reserves to mature such certificates upon assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state, shall be valued on such basis, herein designated the "Tabular Basis": Provided, That if on the first valuation under this section a deficiency in reserve shall be shown for any such certificate, the same shall be valued on the accumulation basis.

Whenever in any society having members upon the tabular basis and upon the accumulation basis, the total of all costs of insurance provided for any year shall be insufficient to meet the actual death and disability losses for the year, the deficiency shall be met for the year from the available funds after setting aside all credits in the reserve; or from increased contributions or by an increase in the number of assessments applied to the society as a whole or to classes of members as may be specified in its laws. Savings from a lower amount of death losses may be returned in like manner as may be specified in its laws.

If the laws of the society so provide, the assets representing the reserves of any separate class of members may be carried separately for such class as if in an independent society, and the required reserve accumulations of such class so set apart shall not thereafter be mingled with the assets of other classes of the society.

A table showing the credits to individual members for each age and year of entry and showing opposite each credit the tabular reserve required on the whole life or other plan of insurance specified in the contract, according to assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by the law of this state and adopted by the society, shall be filed by the society with each annual report and also be furnished to each member before July first of each year.

In lieu of the aforesaid statement there may be furnished to each member within the same time a statement giving the credit for such member, and giving the tabular reserve and level rate required for a transfer carrying out the plan of insurance specified in the contract. No table or statement need be made or furnished where the reserves are maintained on the tabular basis.

For this purpose, individual bookkeeping accounts for each member shall not be required, and all calculations may be made by actuarial methods.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the maintenance of such surplus over and above the credits on the accumulation basis and the reserves on the tabular basis as the society may provide by or pursuant to its laws; nor be construed as giving to the individual member any right or claim to any such reserve or credit other than in manner as expressed in the contract and its laws; nor as making any such reserve or credits a liability in determining the legal solvency of the society.

J., in September, 1914. The objects of the conference are stated in the constitution to be: "To promote good will and harmony between members; to devise measures for the protection of their common interests; and to advance the general interests of health and accident underwriting." Membership is divided into three classes — active, associate, and honorary. The active membership consists of companies or associations licensed to transact health and accident insurance, and associate membership includes officers, or heads of home office departments of a company which itself is not a member.

He advocated further organization and co-operation along educational lines that would make the true purposes and aims of the business known to the public. The president strongly condemned twisting, and briefly pointed out lines for future work and progress for the conference. The following papers were read: "Needed Legislation with Regard to Agents," C. A. Craig, National Life and Accident; "An Iridescent Dream," H. B. Hawley, Great Western Accident; "Organization for Defense," Mark T. McKee; "The Importance of Accident and Health Insurance to Society," George A. The Conference held a mid-year meeting in Cincinnati, Ohio, February 24 and 25, 1916. Reports from officers and committees were presented, and papers were read as follows: "Compulsory Health Insurance," T. Leigh Thompson, National Life and Accident, Nashville, Tenn.; "General Conditions in Our Field of Insurance," Louis H. Fibel, Great Eastern Casualty. The following resolution was adopted:

WHEREAS, the declared objects and purposes of The Health and Accident Underwriters Conference are —

To promote good-will and harmony between members; to devise measures for the protection of their common interests; and to advance the general interests of health and accident underwriting;

AND WHEREAS, we believe that such objects and purposes can be accomplished only through active co-operation of Conference members in the practice of "Golden Rule" business methods, one toward the other;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the following principles applying to the transaction of the industrial health and accident insurance business shall be considered as the "Conference Code of Ethics" binding upon all members; that any unintentional violations thereof shall be immediately corrected and complete restitution made to the injured member; and that all controversies arising thereunder shall be referred to the Grievance Committee of the Conference for adjustment and its findings, when approved by the executive committee, held binding upon all parties interested.

1. No member shall induce, or permit its agents or representatives to induce, directly or indirectly, any policyholder of another member to lapse or discontinue his existing policy of insurance; and no member shall knowingly issue a policy to any person who has previously carried insurance with another member unless his former policy with the other member shall have been lapsed for at least thirty days immediately preceding. Provided that said thirty-day limitation shall not apply as regards to any persons who apply for insurance on their own initiative and without the solicitation of any agent.

2. No member shall knowingly issue a policy to any person who at the time is insured with another member, unless satisfied in good faith that such person will continue to carry both policies and that his financial income warrants his so doing.

3. No member shall directly or indirectly, employ any agent of another member without first notifying such other member of its intention so to do, and until after such agent shall have honorably terminated his employment with his former employer by giving proper notice and shall have settled his outstanding accounts in full.

4. In any and all matters, not specifically mentioned above, wherein the proper course of action of one Conference member toward another may be in doubt, the "Golden Rule," in its broadest and highest moral sense, shall be applied and followed.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the above defined principles shall be interpreted and applied in a spirit of fairness and equity as an honorable agreement between gentlemen — the true purposes thereof being threefold:

FIRST — To prevent any conference member from injuring or diverting the business or agency organization of another member;

SECOND — To elevate the present-day moral standards of business competition; and THIRD — To carry out in good faith the declared objects and purposes of this Conference.

HEALTH INSURANCE.* Health Insurance, or more properly, Sickness Insurance aims to indemnify the individual for loss of time due to disability caused by sickness originating after the issue of a policy. This form of insurance was introduced into the United States in 1846-7 when several companies, located respectively in Massachusetts, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania began writing policies insuring against sickness of any kind, for which policies premiums graduated to the age of the assured were charged.

The premium rates having been pitched too low, the business of Health Insurance quickly became unprofitable and was discontinued until 1895, when several companies began writing limited Health Insurance policies covering disability caused by named diseases, and by a system of gradual expansion this developed into the present practice which provides in the case of young adults for a premium of $7.00 per annum and sickness indemnity of $5.00 per week for disability attributable to any illness, not exceeding, however, fifty-two weeks in duration, with fixed indemnities for loss of sight or use of limbs.

A suitable addition is made to the premium charge, if the applicant has attained the age of forty years, another addition is made for persons between fifty and sixty years, and additional premium loading is made for occupational exposure in each age class, as shown in the following table published by one of the leading companies:

COST PER YEAR

Classes 1 and 2	Class 2	Class 3
Ages 18 to 39 $35.00	$40.00	$43.75
Ages 40 to 49 40.00	45.00	50.00
Ages 50 to 59 50.00	57.50	62.50

A number of persons with socialistic tendencies are at this time (1916) engaged in a propaganda for sickness insurance in the interest of the working class, with premium contributions divided between the employer, employe, and State, and it is not unlikely that this propaganda will get headway in the very near future. It will, at least, have the effect of hastening the introduction of ideal sickness insurance with premiums graduated to the attained age of the insured, as in life insurance and with policies carrying no cancellation clause.

INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF CASUALTY AND SURETY UNDERWRITERS. This association was organized in October, 1911, by the merger of the International Association of Accident Underwriters, and Board of Casualty and Surety Underwriters. The meeting at which the organization was completed was held in New York City, October 17 and 18, 1911, and a constitution and by-

Daniel, United Commercial Travelers, and the officers. The organization at first was divided into sections, representing the different classes of casualty insurance and each section had its chairman and standing committees. At the 1915 meeting amendments to the constitution were adopted which changed somewhat the early form of organization, the effect being to do away with the sectional organizations. A "bureau membership" was created, under which the various bureaus and associations, each having its special field of work, may become members, the executive officer of such bureau or association becoming a vice-president of the International Association.

The fifth annual meeting of the association was held at Detroit Mich., August 24, 25, 26, and 27, 1915. President Alexander presided. The first and third day of the convention was given over largely to a joint meeting of the association and the National Association of Casualty and Surety Agents, during which papers were read, and there was a discussion of subjects presented, and also presentation of the George E. McNeil medals. Papers were read as follows: "The Bureau of Personal Accident and Health Underwriters," Walter C. JOHN HANCOCK MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS. The formation in 1855 of the Massachusetts Insurance Department was the signal for a campaign of education in the interest of the policyholder which finally led to the enactment in 1861, by the Commonwealth, of the first non-forfeiture law to be placed on any statute book. As an exponent of the principle of this Massachusetts Non-Forfeiture Law on April 21, 1862, the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company was chartered, and commenced business, issuing its first policy on December 24, 1862.

The first president of the company was George P. Sanger, holding office until August, 1873; he was succeeded on December 1st of the same year by Lafayette A. Lyon, and he by George Thornton in June, 1874, who was in turn succeeded on March 10, 1879, by Stephen H. Rhodes, then Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts, who held the position until his death, June 11, 1909. The present incumbent, Roland O. Lamb, was elected president on June 21, 1909. He entered the company's service on January 10, 1872.

In the summer of 1879 the company began to issue Industrial or Weekly Premium insurance. It was the first mutual life insurance company to engage in that business in this country, and the first company to issue participating contracts of that class, as well as to recognize the non-forfeiture principle by granting cash surrender values. The first abatement of cost ever made on such policies by any company on this side of the water was authorized by the directors on February 12, 1884. Since then the annual return of surplus has become a thoroughly well settled proceeding, as in the case of ordinary or annual premium policies.

The year 1909 brought further indication of the company's policy of broadening and liberalizing the contracts of Weekly Premium insurance, and of enlarging the benefits to the insured thereunder. Weekly Premium policies issued in January of that year and thereafter provide that on the anniversary of the policy after the seventy-fourth birthday of the insured the policy shall be carried in full force for the remainder of life without the payment of any further premium. To make this provision retroactive to apply to prior issued policies the sum of over one and three quarter million dollars ($1,750,000) was in 1909 laid aside by the directors and added to the legal reserve of all policies in force.

The American Experience Mortality Table was the only table available at the time of the first issue of Weekly Premium or Industrial policies, and although the premiums based thereon carried a special mortality loading, the table proved to be neither scientific nor adequate as a reserve basis for such policies. The Standard Industrial Mortality Table, based on the mortality experience of lives insured under Weekly Premium policies, a table which is the only one of recognized standing adequate as a standard for the measurement of the mortality on Weekly Premium policies, was in 1908 adopted by the directors for computing reserves and thereafter a provisional reserve was maintained in conformity thereto. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts authorized the use of this table in 1911, since which year all the policies have been issued on that basis. To bring the policy reserves on prior issues to the new basis the directors laid aside in installments in the general policy reserve the additional sum of over seven million dollars ($7,000,000) the final installment being made in 1913. Thus all policies issued by the Weekly Premium branch of the company are upon the same adequate reserve basis.

The directors were now in a position to unify and equalize the scale of mortuary benefits to policies issued prior to the adoption of the Standard Industrial Mortality Table. They therefore announced that, beginning January 1, 1914, on death claims incurred during 1914 where the contract benefit was less than the scale in use on policies of the then current issue there would be paid an additional sum to make the benefit correspond with the present scale, representing an average increase in claim payments on such policies of about twelve per cent. This plan has been annually adopted ever since.

In addition to the increase of the policy benefits, the cash distribution of surplus for 1914 was increased, so that on premium paying policies issued prior to the year 1910, the premiums whereon were paid to their anniversaries in 1914, there was paid or credited a cash distribution equal to five weekly premiums or TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT more than the distribution paid prior thereto. This increase is still maintained.

In 1912 the company issued an intermediate policy, $500 in amount, called the Accumulation Fund Policy. This contract contains many of the features of the Ordinary Branch policies and has proved very popular with the class for which it is intended.

In 1914 the company made a total and permanent disability benefit provision an important feature in most forms of its ordinary policy contracts. This provision is incorporated in the policy for a small additional premium. The disability benefit can under certain conditions be added to and made a part of prior issued policies. The provision stipulates that in case of total and permanent disability prior to attaining age sixty the company will waive the payment of further premiums during the continuance of the disability and at the end of one year from date on which disability is proved, if disability then exists, will pay to the insured one tenth of the face of the policy, and one tenth thereafter annually until the face of the policy less any indebtedness and interest thereon has been paid in full. In case disability occurs after attaining age sixty the policy will be continued in force for a decreasing sum which will be the face of the policy less the premiums waived subject to any indebtedness.

The ordinary options of settlement, in lieu of a single payment in cash, are four in number, and include settlement by installments or by limited or life annuities, or a combination of the two, or the proceeds of the policy may be left with the company at interest, to be finally disposed of as the insured may have designated.

The Ordinary and Industrial policy conditions are abreast in every essential detail with modern practice in this field, and in some respects are in advance thereof in broadly granting to the individual insured all the rights and privileges that can be expected or are consistent with the safety of the interests of the great body of policyholders.

On December 31, 1915, the company's payments to policyholders since organization plus the policy reserve to their credit amounted to $262,378,375.

On the same date the insurance in force was Ordinary, $361,318,471; Weekly Premium, $436,676,990; total, $797,995,461.

The president of the company is Roland O. Lamb; vice-presidents, Arnold A. Rand, Edwin B. Holmes, and Walton L. Crocker, who is also the secretary.

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES, AMERICAN, FOREIGN BUSINESS OF. [See Foreign Business.]

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF VIRGINIA, THE, was incorporated under an Act of the Legislature of Virginia, approved March 21, 1871, which provided that the capital stock of the company should not be less than $50,000. The original capital was, however, $200,000, which was reduced in 1886 to $100,000. Since the last named year it has been increased from time to time and is now $500,000.

Until 1887 the principal business of the company was Ordinary Insurance, but in that year the company organized an Industrial Department, in which policies for small amounts were issued with premiums payable weekly, thus giving those who are not financially able to carry large amounts, with premiums payable annually, semi-annually, or quarterly, an opportunity to obtain insurance.

The Company has never adopted any high pressure methods, but it has had a very steady growth from year to year, and on December 31, 1915, had over one hundred million dollars of insurance in force and over twelve million five hundred thousand dollars of assets.

The business of the company for many years past has been strictly non-participating, and over 85% of the insurance now in force is on that basis, being divided as follows as of December 31, 1915: Participating, $14,927,527; non-participating, $89,895,174.

It has always been the aim of the company to give the greatest amount of protection possible for the premium paid, and the premium rates in both the Ordinary and Industrial Branches have been greatly reduced in the past fifteen years. Liberal concessions have also been granted to its old policyholders in the shape of mortuary bonuses and larger surrender values. The last reduction in premiums in both Ordinary and Industrial Branches became effective in 1916, and the premium rates are exceptionally low.

All claims are promptly paid, checks for settlement of 95% of the death claims being mailed on the day proofs are received. On December 31, 1915, the amount which had been paid to policyholders since organization was nearly seventeen million dollars.

About three-fourths of the company's investments are in first mortgages on real estate worth double the amount loaned. These have been carefully selected and the company has had to foreclose very few mortgages for the past ten years, and at this time it is interested in but one piece of property, the mortgage on which has been foreclosed. It is the custom of the company as far as practicable to invest its funds in the territory in which it operates.

The company issues the most approved forms of insurance and annuity contracts, which are clear, concise, and liberal, granting all the usual concessions contained in insurance policies.

The company's growth in Five Year Periods is shown in the following table:

Year	Gross Income for the Year	Assets at end of Year	Surplus (Including Cap. Stock) at end of Year	Pols. in force at end of Year	Outstanding insurance at end of Year
1900	$1,139,067.14	$1,013,030.12	$234,731.40	240,241	$25,570,002
1905	1,966,159.87	2,391,477.81	435,356.85	404,408	40,021,276
1910	3,062,146.08	6,328,704.57	1,222,008.55	542,293	72,440,374

The company is licensed in Alabama, District of Columbia, Georgia, Indiana, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia.

The company was jointly examined by the Insurance Departments of Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina in 1912, and was found to be in first-class condition, and no criticism of the management was made.

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY of New York was originally chartered as a casualty company, and began business as the National Travelers Insurance Company. The act of incorporation was passed May 5, 1866. The title was changed by an act passed March 24, 1868, becoming the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The casualty feature of the business was omitted and regular life insurance adopted under the general act of June 24, 1853, embracing insurance upon the lives of individuals and annuity transactions.

In 1879 the Metropolitan adopted the working methods of the system of insurance known as the English industrial plan, as exemplified by the London Prudential, which had attained great popularity in Great Britain, and the issue of industrial policies was commenced in November of that year.

The system developed with great rapidity and success, and the principal insurance departments discussed it in annual reports with much favor.

In 1892 the company incorporated in its industrial contracts a clause providing for paid-up insurance after payment of premiums for five years. This was the beginning of a long series of concessions and increasingly liberal provisions granted from time to time to industrial policyholders, including cash and credit bonuses in various forms, revival concessions for lapsed policies, liberalization of policy conditions and non-forfeiture privileges, increases in benefits, etc. During the nineteen years, 1897-1915, with no stipulation in the policies, expressed or implied, the company paid or credited to Industrial policyholders in the various forms of bonuses over forty-nine millions of dollars, and the additional cost of concessions in reserve liability exceeded four and one-half million dollars.

Various attacks have been made on child life insurance in the legislatures of different states. In 1895 there was a hearing before the Massachusetts legislature, lasting six weeks. Testimony was taken by the committee running into thousands of pages; society was much stirred up on the subject pro and con, and newspaper discussion was full; the result of the vote was 149 to 23 against the bill to prohibit insurance on the lives of children under ten years of age. The legislatures of Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Tennessee, Michigan, Georgia, Delaware, Missouri, Illinois, and other states have (many of them repeatedly) refused to pass bills preventing child insurance. A determined attempt in this direction was made in Ohio in 1900, following unsuccessful bills in 1896 and 1898. Although the plan was to force the passage of the bill without granting a hearing to the companies interested, it was recommitted, and when it came up for a vote in the senate, the only member to vote for it was the one who introduced it.

In 1906, the company made a special investigation of its industrial mortality experience, and the resulting table (since adopted as a standard for industrial lives by the state of New York) showing a marked improvement over previous years, new tables of benefits were published, the leading table being on the whole life plan with premiums ceasing at age 75, giving benefits largely in excess of those of previous tables. In July, 1909, as a result of further improvement in mortality and reduced expenses, benefits were further increased about ten per cent. and made retroactive as to policies issued since the beginning of 1907.

An important feature was introduced in 1912, when the company incorporated in its industrial policies a clause providing for an allowance of ten per cent. of premiums to policyholders who for a period of a year or over should pay premiums direct to the home office or a district office, thus relieving the company of the expense of collecting through an agent.

On April 17, 1913, the company's charter was amended so as to permit the writing of health and accident insurance.

The Metropolitan became a mutual company January 6, 1915, through the retirement of its capital stock. This was termed by the Superintendent of Insurance of New York state "by far the most noteworthy event of the insurance year in any branch of the business." The mutualization was effected under the provisions of Sec. 95 of the New York Insurance Law and a new charter was adopted under the provisions of Sec. 52. As a result of this action the benefit of participation in surplus earnings was accorded not only to the purchasers of new insurance, but to the holders of outstanding policies as well. The dividends apportioned to Industrial policyholders for the year 1916 amounted to over $5,700,000. These dividends were similar in nature to the voluntary bonuses declared in previous years, and consisted principally of mortuary dividends varying from 4 to 22 per cent of the face of the policy, and premium credit dividends ranging from 4 to 52 weeks' premiums, the latter amount applying to holders of certain plans of policies attaining age 75. The Ordinary dividends apportioned for 1916 exceeded $3,600,000.

A notable stand was taken by the company on the occasion of its mutualization in continuing for its new participating Ordinary policies the same low rates of premium as it had formerly charged for non-participating insurance.

At the beginning of 1916, the company once more changed its Industrial benefits to conform with its later mortality experience, and the increase in Whole Life benefits ran at the younger ages as high as 12 per cent. The new policies also contain a disability benefit.

The company is prominent in welfare activities and since 1909 has maintained a service of free visiting nurses for its industrial policyholders, under which more than 1,070,000 visits were made in 1915.

For more than ten years prior to 1892 the business in the "ordinary department" declined, because no effort was made to secure new policyholders, but in that year the company decided to revive this department, and the following is the record of ordinary business issued and revived each year.

The figures for years prior to 1906 are on a written basis and the figures for the subsequent years are on a paid-for basis.

In the "Intermediate" branch of the ordinary department, organized in 1896, policies are written for $500 insurance, with annual, semi-annual, and quarterly premiums, designed for the better class of workingmen. The company has also, since 1899, written "Special Class" policies on sub-standard lives.

The Metropolitan ranks first among all of the life insurance companies of the world in total amount of insurance in force and in premium income. In 1915 it wrote the largest amount of insurance that had ever been written in one year by any company in the world.

MUTUAL. This word as used in insurance indicates the participation, in greater or lesser degree, by policyholders in the profits or salvages made by companies at the end of stated periods, generally twelve months. While every co-operative insurance institution is a mutual, the methods followed differ. Assessment life associations and fraternal orders operate under mutual principles; but as the premium rates, or assessments, of most of them are unscientific and at older ages inadequate, there are no savings and, eventually, the principle of mutuality is violated because the burdens of the institution are inequitably distributed, the younger members bearing more, and the older members less, than their just share. Policyholders in mutual fire insurance participate in year-end savings, and, under many court decisions, are liable for the debts of their companies. The principles of mutuality in insurance more nearly approach perfection in well managed life companies operating without capital. The approximate cost of the hazards assumed are known, and, therefore, the amount of the annual abatements, or dividends, become a matter of management.

MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, The, of Newark, N. J., was chartered by the state of New Jersey under an act approved January 31, 1845, and began business in the following April. The company is, and always has been, purely mutual. Its present condition can best be illustrated by the following figures covering the business of 1915:

MUTUAL BOILER INSURANCE COMPANY, Boston, Mass. Organized 1877. D. W. Lane, president and treasurer; J. A. Collins, secretary.

MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEW YORK, THE, began the issue of policies on the 1st of February, 1843. This was before any existing company had begun writing scientific, level premium, legal reserve life insurance policies, so that the company's claim to being the oldest life insurance company in America is established. From the beginning The Mutual Life has been a purely mutual company, commencing business without capital other than the premiums contributed by the policyholders. At the end of its first fiscal year, January 1, 1844, the accumulated funds of the Company amounted to only $32,311, and the business in force to $1,480,718. Mutual life insurance at that early day, and in fact the idea of life insurance itself, were so little understood in this country that it was hard to awaken or maintain popular interest in the new enterprise. Nevertheless the company grew and prospered, and at the end of its second year its funds had increased to $97,243, and its insurance in force to $2,960,083. At the end of its fifth fiscal year its assets exceeded half a million dollars, and it had ten million dollars insurance in force.

In The Mutual Life's fifth annual report the prediction was made that it "would not be a matter of surprise if at some future time the company should pay in a single year death claims to the amount of $3,500,000, the figure which the 'Old Equitable' of London, then ninety-one years of age, had already reached." In 1915, when the company was seventy-two years old, it paid in death claims the prodigious sum of $24,550,093.78.

In its first fiscal year The Mutual Life wrote 470 policies. Of the persons insured in that year no less than two lived to pass the age of 96, the "limit of life" according to the American Experience Table. The holder of policy No. 22 matured as a death claim in 1904, when the insured had attained the age of 101, lacking a few months; while No. 458 matured by the death of the insured in his 98th year, on the 11th of October, 1913, having been in force more than 70 years. Since the company began business, no less than eleven policyholders have passed the age of 96, one having attained the age of approximately 101 years, as noted above; while another, John F. Mesick, died June 30, 1915, at the age of 102. Of the eleven persons who have passed the age of 96, two are still living at this writing (May, 1916) to wit: Judge Nahum Morrill, of Auburn, Me., and Peter Van Pelt, of New Jersey, both now nearly 97.

Mutual Life policies for the first few years of the company were of two forms only — ordinary life and term insurance. Term policies were written for periods of one to seven years without right of renewal. The value of protection for the whole period of life was little appreciated at that time, and hence more than one-third of the policies issued in the first year were on the term plan, taken out for some temporary purpose. It was some years before limited payment policies were issued by the company, the early issues of this form being mostly on the ten payment life plan.

It has sometimes been asserted that, in the early days of life insurance in this country, the companies did not understand the necessity of maintaining a mathematical reserve, and that for some years the excess receipts over disbursements were regarded as profits, to be distributed as dividends. That this statement is altogether incorrect is easily shown. The fifth annual report of the company covers its transactions for the first five years, beginning with the 1st of February, 1843, and ending with the 31st of January, 1848. In this five years the company issued 4,686 policies, of which 3,620 were still in force at the end of the period. Most of those which had terminated were term policies written for one to five years. The accumulated funds of the company at that date amounted to $550,878.56, and a valuation of outstanding policies based on the Carlisle Table and 4 per cent interest showed a reserve of $172,569.68, with a free surplus of $22,666.28, while $355,642.60 was apportioned in dividends "payable at death with the sum insured." In its early years The Mutual Life apportioned its dividends every fifth year in the form of paid-up additions to the policy, the first distribution being made in 1848, and the last fifth year distribution in 1863. Three years later, in 1866, a triennial dividend was declared, and thereafter for many years the surplus accruing was apportioned yearly, as it is in the case of all policies now issuing.

As the oldest company in America, The Mutual Life has always been a leader in essential things. It was a cash value company from the beginning, for its earliest policies could be surrendered for cash, before default, as soon as two premiums had been paid. The first policy surrendered was No. 28, which had been issued barely two years before, in the first month of the company. The second policy, No. 122, was likewise one of the first policies issued and was little more than two years old when surrendered for cash. The practice of the company from the first has been to allow cash surrender values on life and endowment policies, when applied for before default except in the case of a certain class of contracts, of which less than four hundred were issued.

The American Experience Table of Mortality, now in practically universal use in this country, was introduced by The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, having been compiled by Sheppard Homans, the company's actuary, about the year 1861. In so far as statistics of insured lives were considered, the table was based upon the history of lives insured in this company.

The Mutual Life also introduced the contribution method of apportioning surplus to policyholders, which is in use today by practically all American companies issuing participating policies, although the formulæ used may vary slightly in the several companies. The contribution plan was devised by Mr. Homans, the company's actuary, and his assistant David Parks Fackler.

Again the Continuous Instalment, or Life Income, Policy, the most popular form of protection for the average family, was originated by The Mutual Life and first issued in 1893, in commemoration of the company's fiftieth anniversary. The policy was devised by the company's renowned actuary, Emory McClintock, and is now written under one name or another by nearly all American companies.

From its organization till the close of 1915, the company paid in cash dividends to policyholders the total sum of $234,766,315, having disbursed more than $80,000,000 in that way in the last five years.

The present status of the company will be seen from the record of 1915. In that year it paid to policyholders a total of $67,978,329.32, which exceeded the total amount received directly from policyholders in premiums by $8,723,036.35. At the end of that year the insurance in force amounted to $1,636,538,117, its admitted assets to $616,528,254, and its net policy reserves to $503,227,820. In that year also the total income of the company was $88,251,707.66, and its total disbursements $81,375,494.91.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF LIFE UNDERWRITERS. As early as 1869 there were scattered efforts to form local associations of life insurance agents. There is a record of a Life Underwriters' Association of Chicago, organized November, 1869, "for mutual protection, improvement, and acquaintance." Merrill Ladd of the Mutual Life of Chicago was the president, and H. R. Thompson of the John Hancock the secretary. A prominent rule of this association was: "No subject which involves or provokes discussion of rival plans of companies shall be introduced into the meetings of this association." In August, 1870, the Life Insurance Association of Pittsburgh, I. F. Loomis of the Charter Oak Life, president, and in June, 1872, the Cincinnati Life Underwriters' Association, M. Grosvenor of the Aetna Life, president, were formed, followed the next year by a state organization at Columbus, O., and there were others that occasionally appeared and subsided. None of these early attempts at association seem to have been other than ephemeral in their nature. They were heard of once or twice, and no more. The Ohio organization was the longest lived, but it went into decay some time before the present substantial movement began.

The pioneer of modern development of association by life insurance agents was the Boston Underwriters' Association, which saw the light in April, 1883. The idea of bringing together in more enduring bonds of amity the competitive elements of the agency business, and of giving to association a broader basis and deeper purpose than it had known before, originated with C. M. Ransom, editor of the Boston Standard. The new movement began in the editor's office. It appealed to the judgment of the best men in the business everywhere, for they saw in it a means to purge the business of rapidly growing evils and lift it to the plane of honorable and intelligent effort. It spread, therefore, with celerity, stimulating in the course of a few years the formation of organizations similar to the Boston association in the principal cities of the Union. While these centers of energy were warm and progressive, their relations with each other were so far but formal. It was felt that much more important results were possible by a wider application of the principle of community. And so when 1890 came and twenty of these societies were in active operation in their respective localities, the time was ripe for the national association.

The present organization was the outgrowth of a conference of representatives of the Boston, New York, and Philadelphia associations, held at Boston, April 8, 1890. It was decided to call a convention of all the associations in the United States, to be held at Boston, June 18th. This meeting was held and the National Association of Life Underwriters was organized.

The presidents elected since organization in 1890 have been as follows:

George N. Carpenter, Boston, 1890; Charles H. Raymond, New York, 1891; C. E. Tillinghast, Cleveland, 1892; Charles H. Ferguson, Chicago, 1893; E. H. Plummer, Philadelphia, 1894; Ben F. Calef, Boston, 1895; D. S. Hendrick, Washington, D. C., 1896; Thomas H. Bowles, Milwaukee, 1897; Richard E. Cochran, New York, 1898; James L. Johnson, Springfield, Mass., 1899; I. [For an account of the annual meetings see Cyclopedia for 1890 and subsequent annual volumes.]

The twenty-sixth annual meeting of the association was held in San Francisco, Cal., August 9, 10, 11, and 12, 1915. President Willett presided and in his address reviewed the work of the association for the year, which had been one of progress, especially in organizing new associations and in membership. Vice-president Woods in a report referred to the growing appreciation of life insurance on the part of the public, and expressed the wish that the association might interest itself in some scientific method of developing salesmanship.

Reports from the secretary and treasurer, executive committee, and the education and conservation bureau were presented. The executive committee reported that applications for membership from twenty new associations, organized within the year had been received, and stated that the organization of the education and conservation bureau was the most important work accomplished during the year. Chairman Horner of the bureau of education reviewed the work of the year and results, and recommended that in place of a chairman of the bureau a secretary be provided, and that the committee be made up of seven members, with the title of department heads; the departments to be: education, insurance conservation, health conservation, legislation, taxation, lectures and addresses, and institutional advertising. Following the above report a discussion of topics under a five minute rule was taken up, following which Jesse R. Clark, president of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, and E. W. Randall, president of the American Life Convention, were introduced and extended felicitations from their respective associations. A report from the committee on taxation, Edward A. Woods, chairman, was presented, in which a more favorable public attitude towards taxation of life insurance was noted, and urged all associations to give more active attention to the question of taxation.

In the prize essay contest R. O. Miles, San Francisco, was announced as the winner of the Calef Cup, and Forest W. Boswell, Detroit, winner of the Ben Williams Vase. The subject was "Life Insurance—The Institution for Systematic Thrift." Woods. Officers were elected as follows: President, W. H. Powers; vice-president, J. F. Taake; secretary and treasurer, F. Nunemaker. The National Fraternal Congress was organized in 1886, and included most of the older and larger societies in its membership, while the Associated Fraternities was organized in March, 1901, and the movement which resulted in the consolidation of the two societies had been under discussion for some time, but took definite shape with the appointment of committees by each association in 1912 to consider and formulate terms of consolidation.

The second annual convention of the Congress was held in Minneapolis, Minn., August 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27, 1915. President Taake presided and in his address reviewed briefly the year's activities, and strongly recommended the appointment of a committee to devise ways and plans to complete a mortality table. The legislative committee in its report reviewed briefly state legislation, and recommended the drafting of a bill to be presented to legislatures providing for the regulation and supervision of the writing of group insurance and giving fraternal societies the right to engage therein. The report also favored the appointment of a committee on blanks to represent the Congress before the Insurance Commissioners Convention, and condemned legislation requiring special deposits and urged the repeal of existing deposit laws.

Bryan, and "Whole Family Protection," was the subject of an address by George P. Steele, Woodmen of the World, which was followed by discussion.

Resolutions were adopted favoring the repeal of special deposit laws, the amortization plan of valuing securities and instructing the executive committee to use its efforts to secure such legislation, and referring the question of group insurance to the executive committee. The executive committee was empowered to appoint a committee on blanks to consider the report blanks with a similar committee of the Insurance Commissioners Convention.

NATIONAL INSURANCE CONVENTION. The first gathering of the state insurance officials was in 1871, at the instance of George W. Miller, then superintendent of the New York state insurance department. He issued invitations to the officials of other states and territories, and they met at New York May 24, 1871. Eighteen states were represented. Mr. Miller was chosen president, and Col. Henry S. Olcott, then a New York journalist, was chosen secretary. Mr. Miller, on taking the chair, stated that the object proposed in calling these officials together was to secure, if possible, uniformity of action in those matters which were discretionary with them in the supervision of insurance, and to promote, through their efforts, such legislation as was desirable to improve and protect the business. The title of the organization adopted was the "National Insurance Convention."

The first session lasted nine days, and there was a second session held in October of the same year. A report of the proceedings, which were long and varied, was prepared by the secretary, Colonel Olcott, and published in two volumes of about 800 octavo pages.

The following table gives the names of the officers of the convention elected at each meeting since its organization, and the successive places of meeting.

The forty-sixth annual meeting of the Convention was held at Monterey, Cal., September 21, 22, 23, and 24, 1915, President Darst called the meeting to order, and in his address discussed methods of compensating fire insurance agents, and strongly favored contingent commissions, even to the extent of legislation making such method mandatory. President Darst also discussed compulsory investment legislation, multiple lines, and special deposits. He expressed the view that conditions demanded that companies write multiple lines, and suggested that the Convention prepare a uniform bill to meet conditions. He also favored repeal of special deposit laws. The president closed his address with a reference to lapses in life insurance and to fraternalism, both important questions, and in reference to fraternal insurance said real fraternalism should be encouraged. The proceedings of the meeting were devoted largely to reading of papers, consideration of committee reports, and discussions.

Papers were read as follows: "Wherein Have Insurance Conditions Improved during the Past Twenty Years — In the Field of State Supervision?" C. F. Nesbit, Washington, D. C.; "In the Field of Life Insurance," Henry D. Appleton, New York; "In the Field of Fire Insurance," M. J. Cleary, Wisconsin; "In the Field of Fidelity and Surety Insurance," William H. Shehan, Maryland; "In the Field of Casualty Insurance," George F. Steele, Idaho; "In the Field of Fraternal Insurance," T. M. Henry, Mississippi; "The Attitude of Investigating Committees and Commissions Regarding the Desirability of Rate-Making Bureaus," Emory H. English, Iowa; "The Supervision and Regulation of Fire Insurance Rates and Rate-Making," Symposium by states: Iowa, Emory H. English; Kansas, Carey J. Wilson; Kentucky, Matt C. Clay; Michigan, John T. Winship; Minnesota, Samuel D. Works; New Hampshire, Robert J. Merrill; New Jersey, George M. La Monte; New York, Jesse S. Phillips; North Carolina, James R. Young; Texas, John S. Patterson; Washington, H. O. Fishback; West Virginia, J. S. Darst; Wisconsin, Herman L. Ekern "Prevention or Reduction of Fire Losses—Should the Owner Bear a Part of His Loss?" H. L. Ekern, Wisconsin (affirmative); J. E. Phelps, California (negative); "Should the Owner be Responsible for the Loss of Another?" John James, Utah (affirmative); Harvey Wells, Oregon (negative); "How is the Situation Affected by the Form of Agents' Compensation?" James R. Young, North Carolina; "Protecting Congested Districts in Cities," Rufus M. Potts, Illinois; "Progress in Classification Work," Charles G. Revelle, Missouri; "Reciprocal and Mutual Insurance," John S. Patterson, Texas; "Savings Bank Insurance," Burton Mansfield, Connecticut; "State Annuities and Pensions for Public Employees," Frank H. Hardison, Massachusetts; "Capitalizing Mutual or Assessment Companies," Joseph Button, Virginia; "Consolidation of Life and Casualty Companies," Samuel D. Works, Minnesota; "Standard Benefits in Health and Accident Policies," John T. Winship, Michigan; "Effect of Workmen's Compensation Laws in Preventing Accidents," Floyd L. Daggett, Industrial Insurance Commissioner of Washington.

Officers were elected as follows: President, Burton Mansfield, Connecticut; vice-president, John T. Winship, Michigan; second vice-president, W. C. Taylor, North Dakota; secretary and treasurer, F. H. McMaster, South Carolina; executive committee, Joseph Button, Virginia, chairman; Jesse S. Phillips, New York; Emory H. English, Iowa; F. H. Hardison, Massachusetts; James R. Young, North Carolina; Robert J. Merrill, New Hampshire; and J. E. Phelps, California.

A resolution was adopted in reference to the organization of a bureau to collect fire loss data by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and urging every state insurance department and every member to support the movement thus started to obtain a uniform classification.

The following resolution was also adopted:

Whereas, The fire waste of the United States and Canada is greater in proportion than that of any other countries in the world; and

Whereas, A majority of the fires causing this waste are easily preventable, being due to the individual carelessness, neglect, and irresponsibility of citizens and others; and

Whereas, Laws, ordinances, and regulations exist and inspection orders are issued for the reduction of fire hazards and the safeguarding of the common safety;

It is hereby Resolved, That the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners is in favor of state or municipal legislation designed to assess upon individuals, firms, or corporations the cost of extinguishing or attempting to extinguish all fires occurring in the premises of the same, whenever such fires are the result of failure to comply with any law, ordinance, lawful regulation or requirement of any state or municipal authority enacted or made for the prevention of fire, and that the campaign of the National Fire Protection Association for this object is hereby commended and endorsed.

A midwinter meeting of the Convention was held in New York city, December 8 and 9, 1915. Twenty-eight state insurance departments were represented and the sessions were devoted largely to a consideration of casualty insurance subjects. The special committee appointed to investigate industrial sick benefit insurance companies reported progress, and a special committee of five was appointed to draft a uniform law covering fidelity and surety business. The committee appointed consisted of Commissioners Shehan, Maryland, chairman; Winship, Michigan; Button, Virginia; Phillips, New York; and Hardison, Massachusetts. A committee was also appointed to consider social insurance. The committee on reserves other than life presented a report favoring a change of basis for figuring compensation reserves differentiating them from liability reserves, and Chairman Hardison of the committee on workmen's compensation insurance reported on the progress of the work for manual classifications, and recommended that the committee be continued as a standing committee of the convention. The question of special deposits was discussed, and the meeting reaffirmed the Burlington rule on the subject which is to the effect that special deposits of surety companies may not be included as assets in annual statements.

The spring meeting of the Convention was held in St. Louis, Mo., April 17 and 18, 1916, and thirty-one state departments were represented. Many questions effecting the different classes of insurance were considered. Committees were appointed to draft a standard policy form for live stock insurance, and also a standard health and accident policy. A committee was also appointed to look into the capital increase of the Union Central Life, and the committee on laws and legislation was directed to study the question of lapses in life insurance. A special committee was also appointed to investigate policy loans with a view of bringing about a reduction. A resolution was adopted declaring that the report of any one state on an examination of a company would stand as defining the policy of other states. The question of contingent commissions was discussed at length, but no formal action was taken; the discussion developing the view that the question of compensation was one to be settled between the companies and agents themselves.

NON-FORFEITURE LIFE INSURANCE LAWS. The first law of this kind was brought before the legislature of Massachusetts in 1859 by Elizur Wright, then one of the insurance commissioners of that state, and in 1861 the law was passed. It provided that policies of life insurance should not be forfeited for non-payment of premiums, but that eighty per cent. of the reserve at the time of the failure to pay any premium should be used as a single net premium for term insurance. In 1880 this law was changed by the legislature so as to compel surrender values to be paid in cash where insurable interest had ceased, and in other cases used to purchase paid-up insurance, to be paid at the same time as the original policy. This law only applied after two full annual premiums had been paid. In the revision of 1887 the law was again changed. The first law applied to all policies issued between the ninth day of May, 1861, and the first day of January, 1881. The second applied to all policies issued between January 1, 1881, and April 21, 1887.

California passed a law in 1872, amended 1880; Maine in 1877, amended 1887; Michigan in 1869, amended 1881; Missouri in 1879, amended 1903; New York in 1879, amended in 1892 and 1906; New Jersey in 1895; New Hampshire 1897; Colorado 1907, and West Virginia, 1907; and Louisiana, 1906; Kentucky, amended in 1902. [For full text of laws see Cyclopedia for 1907-1908, and earlier volumes.]

Up to 1906 the above were all the laws regulating the forfeiture of life insurance policies in force, and the practice of companies makes such legislation unnecessary. However, such laws were enacted in Louisiana in 1906 and the New York law was amended, and in 1907 Colorado and West Virginia enacted such a law.

In addition to the above, legislation has been enacted in several states since 1906, prescribing standard provisions to be contained in policies of life insurance, and among the prescribed provisions is one against forfeiture. [See Policy Forms and Laws.]

PARTICIPATING — NON-PARTICIPATING. These two terms are employed in life insurance to differentiate policy contracts the amount of the premium loadings on which are unlike. That is the fundamental difference and all others grow out of it. Given two companies calculating reserves on the same interest basis, the one issuing participating and the other non-participating policies, the net premiums will be identical on the same policy forms; but the loading on the participating policy will be greater than that on the non-participating and, as a result, the gross premium for the latter will be less than that fixed for the former. Under the participating contract the holder will have returned to him at stated periods, generally once a year, such proportion of the aggregate savings made by the company on mortality and expenses and gains in interest as may be justified by experience during that time, thus reducing the expense to what is termed the net cost; while under the non-participating contract there is no such provision, the amount of the gross premium charged being also the net cost. As may be seen, the participating is a mutual policy and the non-participating is not, such margin of gains as may accrue from the latter going into the general surplus fund of the company. At one time it was common for purely mutual companies to issue both kinds of contracts, such gains as were made on non-participating policies being credited to the participating class, but this custom is now very properly, generally discontinued, the mutuals confining themselves strictly to the transaction of a participating business. Under the laws of the more important life insurance states the same company may not transact the two classes of business. As stated at the outset, the net premium of both forms being identical, it follows that the terminal reserves are the same. The bulk of the non-participating business in this country is transacted by proprietary or stock companies, and the premiums on them are customarily referred to by agents and solicitors as "stock rates."

PHOENIX MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY of Hartford, Conn., was chartered originally by the Connecticut Legislature in May, 1851, as the American Temperance Life Insurance Company. In 1861 the name of the company was changed to its present title. The company has a prosperous record and its growth in the last twenty-five years has been particularly marked. Its assets and insurance in force have doubled in the last ten years.

The assets of the company now amount to $40,000,000. The gross rate of interest earned during 1915, without deduction for taxes or investment expenses, was 5.44 per cent. The policy of the company for many years, to invest the larger part of its loanable funds in farm mortgages, has met with results which have been exceedingly satisfactory, no loss of principal or interest having been suffered through these investments for over twenty-five years.

At the close of last year, after providing for all ascertained and computed liabilities, there was an excess of assets of $2,812,876. Something over a million dollars of this sum was apportioned for dividends available in 1916 and accrued taxes not yet due, and the balance of over $1,500,000 was scientifically divided into three funds — mortality fluctuation fund, investment fluctuation fund, and the general equalization fund — which are designed to act as a balance wheel in the fluctuation from year to year and to insure the continuance of the present schedule of dividends. The officers of the company are: John M. Holcombe, president; Archibald A. Welch, vice-president and actuary; Silas H. Cornwell, secretary; Winslow Russell, agency manager, all of whom are directors, and Harry E. Johnson and Oliver M. Thurman, assistant secretaries. The other directors are: James P. Andrews, Isaac W. Brooks, Louis R. Cheney, Atwood Collins, John P. Elton, Joseph R. Ensign, Charles E. Gross, Charles M. Jarvis, George D. Pratt, Frank L. Wilcox.

The company issues all the regular forms of life insurance and annuities, and its contracts are exceedingly liberal and fair. It has been said that they offer the largest measure of known service to meet the unknown needs of the future.

Moore, New Amsterdam Casualty; secretary and treasurer, William H. Conroy, Massachusetts Bonding; manager, E. M. Gridley.

POLICY FORMS AND LAWS. Under this heading will be found a brief history of the legislation respecting policy forms for both life and accident companies, and a brief summary of policy forms in use by the principal life insurance companies.

The New York legislature in 1906 enacted legislation prescribing standard forms of life insurance policies, the act taking effect January 1, 1907, but this act was amended by the legislature of that year, and the legislature of 1909 practically repealed the law providing for specified standard forms. The act of 1909 provided that all policies issued in the state, whether by domestic or foreign companies, should contain certain specified standard provisions. The amendments of 1909 further provided that no policy shall be issued or delivered in the state until the form has been filed with and approved by the superintendent of insurance. Legislation prescribing standard forms was enacted by the legislatures of Minnesota and North Dakota in 1907. The forms prescribed were ordinary and limited payment life, endowment, and term policies and annuities.

In Colorado, Illinois, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Michigan, and New Jersey, legislation was enacted in 1907 prescribing standard provisions, and Ohio in 1908, enacted legislation prescribing six forms of standard policies, and also prescribing standard provisions, and legislation prescribing standard policy provisions was enacted in Oklahoma. Texas and New Mexico and South Dakota enacted legislation prescribing standard provisions and also standard forms. The standard forms provided in South Dakota were: Ordinary and limited payment life; endowment, term and renewable term, and fixed survivorship annuity on the ordinary life, limited payment life and endowment forms. Illinois passed a law in 1909 amending section 6 of the laws of 1907 and providing that the act should not apply to annuities, industrial policies, or to assessment or fraternal associations. Laws are therefore in force in the following states prescribing standard forms or standard provisions: Indiana, Wisconsin, Utah, New York, Minnesota, North Dakota, Colorado, Illinois, Tennessee, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Jersey, Ohio, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, South Dakota, Idaho, California, Pennsylvania, Washington, Arizona, Louisiana, and Mississippi. In addition the laws of Iowa, Nebraska, and North Carolina require that no form of policy may be issued in the state until approved by the insurance commissioner, and the requirement is also contained in the laws of the states prescribing standard provisions.

The laws provide that forms of policies must be approved by the insurance commissioner, and the prescribed provisions, while phrased differently, are practically the same, and include provisions that the premium shall be paid in advance, that the policy shall constitute the entire contract and be incontestable (after a specified time, not longer than two years) except for non-payment of premiums, or violation of the policy conditions respecting military or naval service, and that if the age of the insured has been understated, the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium would have purchased at the correct age.

A provision for grace in payment of premium is required, also against forfeiture, and for loans and extended insurance, and tables of loan, and surrender values, as well as a table of installments on which the policy may provide its proceeds may be payable, are required to be printed in the policy.

A provision providing for reinstatement after three years and a provision against forfeiture for non-payment of premium after three annual premiums have been paid, under which there "shall secure to the policyholder a stipulated form of insurance," are also required.

The law prescribing standard provisions for life policies also contains certain prohibitions, and makes it unlawful to issue a policy containing a provision for the forfeiture of the policy for failure to repay loans, or interest thereon, or a provision by which the policy shall purport to take effect more than one year before the original application was made. Provisions limiting the time within which any action at law or in equity may be commenced after the cause of action shall accrue are prohibited. The laws of New Mexico, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Ohio, Colorado, New Jersey, and Tennessee, prohibit clauses limiting the time to less than five years; Texas, two years; Illinois, Oklahoma, Arizona, and Idaho, three years; Michigan, six years; Pennsylvania, two years; while the laws of Massachusetts and Washington do not contain the prohibition.

ÆTNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The company issues all desirable forms of policies, both participating and non-participating. The policies are incontestable after one year, and contain no conditions as to residence, travel, or occupation, nor as to military or naval service, except when issued to army and navy officers. Suicide within one year, whether sane or insane, renders the policy null and void. Thirty-one days' grace in the payment of premiums is granted.

Dividends, under participating policies are granted annually. Dividends may be received by the insured in cash, or used in reduction of the premium, or applied to the purchase of paid-up additions to the sum insured for which the cash value will subsequently be paid if desired, or may be left with the company to accumulate at a rate of interest not less than three per cent. per annum; the dividends so accumulated will be paid to the insured whenever desired or may be applied to reduce the number of premiums required or hasten the maturity of the policy.

Participating policies after two years are non-forfeitable, and non-participating policies after three years (except non-participating endowments of not more than twenty years, these latter after two years), and upon surrender of the original policy within two months from the date of default in payment of premium, a paid-up non-participating policy will be issued, or a cash value will be paid of an amount specified in the policy or if not surrendered extended insurance will be given for a time stipulated in the policy.

If the policy has not been surrendered to the company it may be reinstated within five years after default in payment of premium upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company.

If policy is not then assigned, loans will be granted after the second year under participating policies, after the third year under non-participating policies (except non-participating endowments of not more than twenty years, these latter after the second year) subject to an interest charge of six per cent. per annum. If a request for the automatic premium loan privilege has been signed by the in-insured and assignee, if any, the amount of any premium not paid in cash when due or within the days of grace less any dividend applicable thereon, will, without further action by the owners, be loaned by the company in payment of such premium provided such loan with all other indebtedness does not exceed the cash value of the policy.

These policies are issued on female lives at regular rates except that upon term policies, an annual extra premium of $5.00 per $1,000 of insurance will be charged.

The privilege of changing the beneficiary is granted if the policy is not then assigned. The option of having the principal sum paid in 5, 10, 15, 20, 25, 30 or 40 annual installments, or in 25 annual installments certain and so long thereafter as the payee may live, or a life annuity is granted.

Disability Insurance. In event of permanent total disability, twelve months after proof of such disability the Company will, if desired, commence to pay the sum insured in twenty equal annual installments, or will pay an annuity for ten years certain and as long thereafter as the insured may live; and after the Company has commenced to pay these installments or the life annuity, no further payments of premium will be required under the policy.

This provision will not be included in policies issued on the lives of women, nor on the lives of men above the age of sixty, nor on railroad men or certain other risks which involve extra hazards.

ATLANTIC LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Richmond, Va. The forms issued by the company are life, limited payment life, and endowment, and special forms are monthly income policies, and what the company calls its economic policy. The regular forms are participating after the first year, and the dividends may be drawn in cash, used to pay premiums, or to purchase additional participating insurance or left with the company to accumulate at interest. The policies are incontestable after one year, provide for change of beneficiary, are automatically non-forfeitable, and cash, surrender, and loan values are provided in policies. The policies contain a clause providing for loan insurance. The full cash value is available as a loan, and deposit of policy as security is not required, but the loan is indicated by endorsement on the policy. The policies may be reinstated at any time on evidence of insurability, and one form may be exchanged for another without re-examination and by payment with interest of the difference in the premiums on the old policy and that required under the new. A waiver of premium clause in case of permanent total disability provided it is not less than the reserve or payment of policy in ten installments in lieu thereof is also incorporated in the regular forms.

BERKSHIRE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The company issued a new series of policy forms in 1914. The new forms are free from restrictions as to travel, residence, and occupation, and provide for change from one plan to any other with a higher premium, together with right to change beneficiary if reserved in application. Thirty-one days' grace in payment of all premiums after the first, without interest are allowed, and provision is made for equitable adjustment in case of misstatement of age. Definite cash loans upon proper assignment of the policy; definite extended participating insurance for full value of policy, and definite cash value any year after the second, are provided, and definite paid-up insurance, automatically secured by law, which participates in the surplus, and may be surrendered any year thereafter for cash, as also provided and written in the policy. Settlement of claims may be made in one payment or under the following optional modes: $212.00 per thousand per year for 5 years, or, $113.82 per thousand per year for 10 years, or, $81.33 per thousand per year for 15 years, or, $65.26 per thousand per year for 20 years, or $55.76 per thousand per year for 25 years, or, $49.53 per thousand per year for 30 years, or in annual installments continuous during the lifetime of the beneficiary (20 certain).

Under either of the foregoing options, annual installments may be taken in equivalent semi-annual, quarterly, or monthly payments. The equivalent of each $100 of annual installments is $50.40 paid semi-annually; $25.30 paid quarterly; or $8.45 paid monthly.

All policies participate in surplus, payable at the end of the first year and every year thereafter, which may be taken in cash; applied in reduction of premium; used to increase the insurance with right to surrender for cash; or left with the Company to accumulate at interest.

COLUMBIAN NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, THE, Boston Mass. This company issues all the leading forms of policies on a non-participating basis; among them, whole life, limited payment life, endowment, twenty installment and continuous installment, non-commutable by the beneficiary, convertible and renewable term, and premium reduction contracts. The policies are free from conditions as to residence, travel, occupation, and after one year for military or naval service, and are incontestable after one year, except for non-payment of premium, and subject in case of misstatement of age to adjustment proportionate to the true age. Cash, loan, and surrender values are granted after three annual premiums have been paid, and the policy may be reinstated at any time upon satisfactory proof of insurability and payment of all overdue premiums with interest. The loan and surrender values are printed in the policy. Thirty-one days of grace in payment of premiums are granted; the beneficiary may be changed, if there be no assignment of the policy, on written notice, and the following clause is included, "Self-destruction during the first policy year, whether the insured be sane or insane, is a risk not assumed by the Company; in such case only the net reserve on the policy will be paid." It conducts an Accident and Health Department, and grants the Permanent Total Disability Clause and combination Life, Accident, and Health policies.

EQUITABLE LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, New York. The company issued a new form of disability clause in 1916, which provides that if the insured becomes totally disabled before reaching the age of sixty, the society will: (1) Waive all premiums falling due during the continuance of disability; and (2) pay to the insured as long as he remains totally disabled an income equal in amount to the income payable to the beneficiary after the death of the insured.

The benefit is granted for special additional premium.

Since January 1, 1915, it has issued a new series of Annuity Contracts on the Immediate, Deferred and Reversionary plans. It also issues a Term to Age 65 Policy which provides for paid-up insurance, cash surrender, and extended insurance values.

Thirty-one days' grace is granted in payment of any premium after the first, and dividends are paid annually upon payment of the second annual premium, and may be applied at the option of the owner under options stated in the policy. Tables of installment values under optional modes of settlement and also of non-forfeiture loan and surrender values are printed in the policies.

FIDELITY MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, THE, issues all approved forms of life and endowment insurance and sells annuities. Expenses limited and surplus distributed annually in accordance with provisions of the New York law. Policies non-forfeitable with liberal cash, loan, paid-up, and extended insurance values. Originator of the disability provision in modern life insurance, and of a policy providing protection for the insured's dependents and a life income for his own old age.

The company issued a new endowment contract in 1916, which may mature at ages from fifty to seventy-five as selected by the insured. On maturity the insured may take the amount in cash or may select a life annuity of one-tenth the face value to continue so long as he may live, with at least ten installments certain, or may take a paid-up life policy for the face amount and a certain sum in cash. In the event of the death of the insured before the policy matures the face amount is payable to the beneficiary, who may take a lump sum, or a fixed number of annual installments or a monthly income for life.

The company also grants a waiver of premium and disability benefits, under which, if the permanent disability occurs before age sixty, one-tenth of the face of the policy is paid, until the maturity date. Such premium waiver and annuity payment will not decrease the face amount due at maturity. If the disability occurs after age sixty the premiums will be charged as a lien against the policy.

GERMANIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The principal forms of policies now issued by the company are ordinary life, limited payment life, and endowment policies. The forms are participating, dividends are distributed annually, and may be paid in cash, applied toward payment of premium, or left to accumulate or to purchase paid-up additions to the policy at the option of the holder. Loans are granted after two full years' premiums have been paid, and loan and surrender values are printed in the policy. The privilege of changing to any other form of policy requiring a higher premium is granted, and a clause is included limiting the liability of the company to the reserve under the policy if the insured commits suicide, whether sane or insane, within one year of the date of the policy. The policies are free from restrictions as to residence, travel, occupation, and incontestable after one year. Other special forms are issued by the company, and under the regular forms the company attaches a clause for waiver of premiums in case of permanent total disability.

In addition to the waiver of premium clause the company for an additional premium grants disability benefits, set forth as follows:

If disability as described in the aforementioned paragraph shall occur before the insured attains the age of sixty years and while no premium is in default, six months after due proof of such disability shall have been received by the company, provided such disability then exists and this agreement is in force, the company will pay to the insured with the written consent of the assignee, if any, one-tenth of the face amount of said policy and one-tenth of such face amount annually thereafter during the continuance of such disability until the policy shall become a claim either by the death of the insured or as a matured endowment.

If the age of the insured was misstated in the application for said policy, the annuity payable under the provisions of this agreement shall be such as the actual premiums paid would have purchased at the correct age; any overpayment or overpayments by the company by reason of understatement of age shall be charged with interest thereon against any payments to be made after adjustment under the provisions either of this agreement or of said policy.

The annuity payments provided for in this section will not apply if disability occurs as a result of military or naval service in war.

If due proof shall be received by the company that disability as aforesaid occurred after the insured attained the age of sixty years and while no premium is in default, the company, by endorsement on the policy, will agree to waive payment of the premiums which thereafter may become due under the policy during the continuance of such disability. Each premium so waived will reduce by its amount the face amount of the policy; the amount of the premium will be correspondingly reduced and all values under the policy shall be reduced to correspond to the reduced insurance and will be calculated as if the premium for the reduced insurance had been paid when due. If, under this provision, the loan value of the policy is reduced, so as to become equal to or less than any outstanding indebtedness on the policy, the company's liability under the policy shall terminate.

RECOVERY FROM DISABILITY. If, in accordance with the paragraph "Waiver of Premiums in Case of Disability," upon recovery from such disability premiums as stipulated in the policy and this agreement respectively shall again become payable, no further disability annuity payments shall be made, and if the insurance shall have been reduced under the provisions of this agreement, such reduced insurance shall thereafter be the face amount of the policy and the premiums thereafter falling due and all the benefits under the policy will be reduced accordingly.

At the end of any policy year, upon the written request of the insured or the owner, accompanied by this agreement, its provisions will be discontinued and thereafter the payment of the aforesaid additional premium shall not be required.

If default be made in the payment of the said additional premium, this agreement shall cease and determine and the premiums paid thereunder shall remain the property of the company.

Except as provided above, all the conditions and privileges of said policy shall remain unchanged.

JOHN HANCOCK MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. This company issues all the Ordinary forms of life, endowment, and term policies. A Continuous Monthly Installment policy on life, limited life, and endowment plans. A Joint Life Policy, either family or commercial forms, on life, limited life, or endowment plans. A Corporation Policy on life, limited life, endowment, or term plans.

Term Policies for five, ten, or twenty years are convertible to life or endowment plans, in the case of five year term, any time before the expiration of the term, in the case of the ten and twenty year terms, any time before the expiration of seven years.

Other policies except on Joint Life and Corporation plans, may be converted to any form, except to the Continuous Monthly Installment, Joint Life, and Corporation forms, at any time while in full force, without re-examination, the new policy to be of not greater amount, but to have a higher premium rate, and to bear date of the policy released. The cost of change to be the difference in premiums of the two policies from the date thereof with interest compounded annually, and adjustment of dividend differences.

Joint Life and Corporation policies may be converted, but only to the same plan respectively as the original policy, on the terms set forth above.

A provision for total and permanent disability benefit may, if desired, be incorporated in the policy for a slight increase in premium. This provides that in case the insured should become wholly and permanently disabled the company will waive payment of further premiums and make settlement as stipulated under the provision.

Premiums may be paid annually, semi-annually, or quarterly, and if paid one year or more prior to date due will be discounted at three per cent per annum. Grace of thirty-one days allowed in payment of all premiums after the first. All policies contain provision for reinstatement at any time within stipulated term of the policy.

Under the Massachusetts law policies participate annually in the divisible surplus, and the non-forfeiture law provides, in case of lapse, for paid-up of cash surrender or extended term values. All life and endowment forms provide for loan values; change of beneficiary allowed if right is reserved in application.

In lieu of settlement in one sum the policy offers four settlement options, viz., payment in stipulated number of annual installments, payment by an annuity for life, payment in a stipulated number of installments and an annuity thereafter for life, or left on deposit with the company at not less than three per cent interest to be finally disposed of as has been directed at time of election of the option. All annual installments will be paid, if desired, in equivalent, semi-annual, quarterly, or monthly payments.

An intermediate policy called the Accumulation Fund Policy, contains most of the features of the Ordinary Policy. It is issued in the amount of $500 — on the life, limited life, and endowment plans. The accumulation fund is a provision whereby amounts of one dollar or more may be deposited with the company at interest and applied from time to time to pay the premiums as they become due. In its Industrial or Weekly Premium Branch the company issues policies on the life, limited life, and endowment plans.

MANHATTAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The company issues all the regular forms of ordinary life, limited payment life, and endowment policies with or without disability benefits, and with or without the double indemnity clause. It also issues monthly income policies on the ordinary life, limited payment life, and endowment plan, also convertible term policies. All policies issued by the company are on the annual dividend plan.

MARYLAND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Baltimore. The principal forms issued are ordinary life, endowment and limited payment life, participating and non-participating. All participating policies are issued either with annual dividends or with five year distribution of surplus as may be preferred.

The conditions and benefits are the same under the three forms, and are free from conditions as to residence and travel, are incontestable after one year except for non-payment of premiums, and military or naval service in time of war without written consent of the company, and in case of suicide of insured whether sane or insane, within one year, the policy is void, and the company made liable only for the reserve under the policy. Thirty-one days of grace in payment of premiums, without interest, is allowed.

Loan provisions are available after three full premiums have been paid, and liberal cash, extended term, and paid-up insurance values are endorsed on the policy. Optional modes of settlement are provided under which the proceeds of the policy may be paid in one sum, in a certain number of installments, or in installments and as an annuity, or in continuous installments, and installment values are endorsed on the policies.

Use of dividends is optional with the insured, and may be used in any one of the following ways: (1) applied towards payment of premium for ensuing year; (2) applied to purchase a temporary annuity to be used in equal reduction of the ensuing five years' premiums, or (3) drawn in cash, or (4) used to purchase additional paid-up life insurance, payable in the same manner as this policy, provided evidence satisfactory to Company be given that the insured is safely insurable, or (5) used to purchase additional insurance on the paid-up endowment plan, maturing at age 65, and payable at maturity to insured, but otherwise payable in the same manner as this policy, provided evidence satisfactory to the company be given that the insured is safely insurable, or (6) left with the company to accumulate at not less than $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent. interest annually. Accumulations to be payable at maturity of policy but withdrawable on demand, but no allowance will be made for interest for a fractional part of a year.

MASSACHUSETTS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY issues policies of life insurance which may be briefly described as follows:

Continuous Payment Life Policy. Payable at death only, premium payments to continue during the life of the insured.

Limited Premium Life Policy. Payable at death only, premiums payable for either 1, 5, 10, 15, 19, 20, 25, or 30 years, as desired, the policy becoming fully paid-up after the payment of the stipulated number of premiums.

Continuous Payment Endowment Policy. Maturing and payable at the end of a stated term of years, or upon the death of the insured, should that event occur during the endowment period; premium payments to continue during the term of the policy.

Limited Premium Endowment Policy. Maturing and payable at the end of a stated term of years, or upon the death of the insured, should that event occur during the endowment period; premiums payable for either 1, 10, 15, or 20 years, as desired, the policy becoming fully paid-up after the payment of the required premiums.

Twenty-Year Term Policy, at a low rate of premium, loss payable only in case of death during the stated term, containing a provision for change to any other form of policy at any time within five years after the date of issue, without medical examination.

Ten-Year Term Policy (same provisions as in Twenty-Year Term).

Five-Year Term Policy. Provisions similar to those of Twenty-Year Term.

Installment Options. The above-described policies contain installment options "A," "B," "C," and "D". Installments will be paid in annual, semi-annual, quarterly, or monthly portions. Option "A" provides that the proceeds of the insurance are to be retained by the company and paid in annual installments of such amount as may be desired, the yearly balances remaining in the possession of the company to be credited with interest at not less than three per cent. per annum; installment payments to continue until the fund is exhausted. Option "B" provides for payment in from 2 to 30 annual installments of a stated amount each. Option "C" provides for payment of annual installments of a stated amount for each $1,000 of the proceeds of the insurance, and at least 10, 15, 20, or 25 annual installments will be paid under this option, but installments will continue during the lifetime of the beneficiary entitled to receive the first of such installments. Option "D" provides that the proceeds of the policy may be left with the company, and that annual interest will be paid upon them; proceeds may be withdrawn on any interest day if insured has so directed. Either of Options "A," "B," "C," or "D" may be selected by the insured at any time during the continuance of the policy, or if no such selection is made, and the insured has not otherwise directed, the beneficiary may, at the death of the insured, elect to have the proceeds paid according to either of said options. Under Endowment policies, if the insured shall survive the endowment period, he may select either of said options, and have payment of the proceeds made to himself or other beneficiaries in installments accordingly.

Continuous Installment Policies. They are intended to provide an annual income continuous during the lifetime of the beneficiary or the insured. Under the Ordinary Life and Limited Payment Life forms this income may be provided for a beneficiary. Under the Endowment form an annual income for life is provided, beginning at the end of the endowment period and continuing during the life of the insured, and thereafter during the life of the beneficiary, if he, or she, survives the insured; or if the death of the insured occurs within the endowment period, an annual income is provided, continuing during the life of the beneficiary. In both the Life and the Endowment forms, it is stipulated that, in any event, not less than twenty annual installments, or their equivalent, shall be paid.

Joint Life Policies. These are written, insuring two lives, on the Five, Ten, and Twenty-Year Term, Ordinary Life, Twenty-Payment Life and Twenty Year Endowment plans. Their object is to furnish to partnerships financial protection against the withdrawal of capital following the death of a partner. They contain paid-up, cash surrender, and extended insurance value tables, and practically all the valuable features of regular policies, excepting the provision for payment of the proceeds in installments when for commercial purposes. These policies, except the term plan, are also written on the lives of husband and wife, if there are children, and include the installment features.

Continuous Monthly Income Policy. Continuous Payment and Limited Payment Life, and Continuous Payment Endowment plans. Minimum amount insured, $2,000, which provides $186 at death of insured or maturity of endowment, and $10 a month thereafter during life. Endowment form provides for above payments to insured for life, to be followed by continuous payments monthly to beneficiary, during life, beginning at death of insured. $4,000 of insurance yields payments twice the size named and so on. These policies are also written without provision for the initial payment.

Special Provisions. Continuous Payment Life policies, Limited Payment Life policies, and Endowment policies, will contain the following provisions: for automatic paid-up insurance; for optional automatic, extended term insurance; for annual distributions of surplus; for automatic premium loan; for thirty-one days of grace in payment of premiums; for reinstatement at any time; for change to some other plan of insurance; for cash loans; and, if requested in the application, reservation of right to change the benefit without the assent of the beneficiary.

Term policies contain all the foregoing provisions, except the loan provisions.

No restrictions upon residence, travel, or occupation. Policy incontestable after the first policy year, except for non-payment of premium.

Whole Life and Endowment policies, except Joint Life, are issued containing a provision for waiver of premium in the event of permanent total disability of the insured before reaching the age of sixty. For this provision the company charges an additional premium based upon the age of the insured and the plan of insurance.

METROPOLITAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The company issues the various forms of ordinary life, limited payment life, and endowment policies, installment policies and annuities, also three special forms, "Modified endowment with life option," "limited payment life, convertible into endowment," and "Life, with premium reduced after twenty years." All the forms except annuities are participating. The policies are free from restrictions as to residence and travel, are incontestable after two years, except for non-payment of premium, and provide cash and loan values, extended insurance and automatic paid-up insurance, and thirty-one days of grace in payment of premium. Most policies contain provisions for waiver of premiums in event of total and permanent disability before age sixty.

MIDLAND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The principal form issued is a limited payment life, non-participating, and the first year's insurance is term insurance. The form is incontestable after two years, but in case of suicide within that period the company's liability is limited to the amount of premiums paid thereon. Travel or residence south of the Tropic of Cancer, or military or naval service except in time of peace, within two years from date also limits the company's liability to the amount of premiums paid on the policy. Loans are granted after three full annual premiums have been paid, and cash, loan, and paid-up values are endorsed on the policy, and installment values made under optional modes of settlement at maturity are printed in the policy. A total disability provision is incorporated in the policy, which reads as follows:

If after two annual premiums shall have been paid on this policy, the insured prior to attaining the age of sixty years shall, before default in payment of any subsequent premiums or installments thereof, furnish satisfactory proof to the company that he has been wholly disabled by bodily injuries and will thereby be permanently, continuously, and wholly prevented thereafter from pursuing any and all gainful occupations, the company will indorse in writing upon this contract its agreement to thereafter pay for the insured all subsequent premiums which shall thereafter become payable upon this policy during the continuance of such disability.

If, however, the company has erred in determining that the disability is permanent and the insured shall recover, so as to be able to engage in any gainful occupation during the premium paying period, the company's obligation to pay the premium shall cease and the insured shall resume payments of premium in accordance with this contract on the date when the next premium falls due following such recovery.

If after two annual premiums shall have been paid on this policy, the insured shall suffer an accidental injury, which results within ninety days from the happening thereof, in the irrecoverable loss of the sight of both eyes, the amputation of both hands at or above the wrist, the amputation of both feet at or above the ankle, or the amputation of one hand at or above the wrist and one foot at or above the ankle, then the company will pay for the insured all premiums which shall thereafter become payable upon this policy.

The company shall under this provision have the privilege at any time of a medical examination of the insured. Payments made by the company under this total disability provision shall not become a lien against this policy.

MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The company issues all the ordinary forms of life and endowment policies. All such contracts are incontestable after the first year, and are non-forfeitable. Dividends are allowed annually beginning with the second policy year. They may be applied either in cash reduction of premium, or to the purchase of participating additional paid-up insurance, or so as to make the policy payable as an endowment at a gradually decreasing age, or to convert the policy into a fully paid-up policy.

All of these policies have tables of "cash surrender, or loan values," and also of extended insurance and paid-up values in case of lapse. Values generally apply the first year.

On January 1, 1908, this company adopted new policy forms. Following is the present form of the ordinary life policy:

THE MUTUAL BENEFIT LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF NEWARK, N. J., in consideration of the payment of Premiums as hereinafter provided, hereby insures the Life of.....of.....in the County of.....State of.....(herein called the Insured) in the sum of.....Dollars, for the term of Life, payable at its office in Newark, New Jersey, to.....the executors, administrators, or assigns of the Insured, immediately upon receipt of due proof of the death of the Insured. Any error made in stating the age of the Insured will be adjusted by paying such amount as the Premiums paid would purchase at the correct age. Any indebtedness to the Company on this Policy and any unpaid installments of the then current year's Premium will be deducted from the sum insured.

The Annual Premium ofDollars andCents, will be payable by the Insured on delivery hereof and on the.....day of.....in each year during the continuance of this Policy, at the Company's office in Newark, New Jersey, or to Agents in exchange for receipts signed by the President or Treasurer. In lieu of the Annual Premium the Company will accept.....Dollars andCents Semi-annually in advance, or.....Dollars andCents Quarterly in advance. This policy will not take effect unless the first Premium or agreed installment thereof shall be actually paid during the lifetime of the Insured.

No Assignment of this Policy shall affect the company until it shall have received written notice thereof.

Agents are not authorized to make, alter, or discharge contracts.

If within one year the Insured shall commit suicide, while sane or insane, this Policy will be null and void. This Policy will be incontestable after one year from its date of issue except for non-payment of Premium.

THE PROVISIONS AND AGREEMENTS printed on the second and third pages hereof are a part of this contract.

SPECIAL PRIVILEGES. If not assigned, this Policy may be returned to the Company at its office in Newark, New Jersey, with the Insured's written request for the appropriate indorsement of the Policy by the Company:

1. To have the Beneficiary changed. This change may be made at any time and from time to time, while the Policy is in force, or within one month from default in Premium payments.

2. To have the whole, or any designated fraction, of the proceeds of this Policy at its maturity retained by the Company until the death of the Beneficiary, the Company in the meantime to pay the Beneficiary interest on the amount so retained, at the rate of three per centum per annum, the first interest payment to be made one year after the maturity of this Policy, and the last interest payment to be a pro rata one for the expired fraction of the year in which the Beneficiary dies. At any interest date the Beneficiary may withdraw the amount retained by the Company, in which case the interest payments will cease.

3. To have the whole, or any designated fraction, of the proceeds of this Policy at its maturity paid in a specified number (not exceeding thirty) of equal Annual Installments, as shown by the accompanying Table, the first Installment being payable immediately.

4. To have the whole, or any designated fraction, of the proceeds of this Policy at its maturity paid in equal Annual Installments continuing during the lifetime of the Beneficiary, as shown by the accompanying Table, the first Installment being payable immediately.

When either of the Installments payable under Privilege No. 3, or of the Installments certainly payable under Privilege No. 4, shall fall due, the Company if requested, will pay the then Present or Commuted Value of such Installments computed at three per centum interest compounded annually, as shown by the accompanying Table. The commutation of a part or the whole of the Installments certainly payable under Privilege No. 4 will not affect the amounts payable thereunder after the term during which the Installments certain would have been payable.

The right of Withdrawal under Privilege No. 2, or of Commutation under Privileges Nos. 3 and 4, will be withheld from the Beneficiary if the Insured shall so direct.

If the Policy be not assigned, the Insured may revoke the request to have settlement made in accordance with Privilege No. 2, or No. 3, or No. 4.

Unless otherwise directed by the Insured, the Company at the maturity of this Policy will extend to the Beneficiary Privilege No. 2, or No. 3, or No. 4.

DIVIDENDS. Upon payment of the second year's Premium, and at the end of the second and of each subsequent policy year, this Policy while in force will be credited with such Dividends as may be apportioned by the Directors, and such annual Dividividends will include the portion of the divisible surplus accruing hereon. Dividends thus credited will be paid in cash, or at the option of the Insured will be applied either in reduction of Premiums, or upon the Addition or Accelerative Endowment plan, but if Dividends have been applied upon the Addition plan, subsequent Dividends cannot be applied upon the Accelerative Endowment plan, or vice versa. If settlement of this Policy be made in accordance with Privilege No. 2, or No. 3, or No. 4, the stipulated payments under Privilege No. 2 or No. 3, or the Installments certainly payable under Privilege No. 4, will be increased by such Annual Dividends as may be apportioned by the Directors, but such Dividends will be payable only in cash.

Under the Addition plan Dividends are applied to the purchase of additional participating insurance (herein referred to as Dividend Additions) payable with the Policy, such insurance being purchased at the Company's rates therefor published and in force at this date. This Policy may be converted into a fully Paid-up Participating Policy payable at the same time as this Policy, subject to any outstanding indebtedness on this Policy, whenever the Reserve on such Additional Insurance, together with the Reserve on the original Policy, computed on the basis hereinbefore mentioned shall equal the Net Single Premium therefor, computed on the same basis.

Under the Accelerative Endowment plan Dividends are applied to the conversion of the Policy into an Endowment payable at a specified and gradually diminishing age; or, if preferred, into a fully Paid-up Participating Policy payable at the same time that this Policy is payable according to its terms.

NON-FORFEITURE PROVISIONS. At the end of any Policy year during the whole of which this Policy shall have been in force, or within one month from default in Premium payments, the owner shall have the following options:

1. To surrender the Policy to the Company at its office in Newark, New Jersey, for its CASH SURRENDER VALUE.

2. To surrender the Policy to the Company at its office in Newark, New Jersey, for a NON-PARTICIPATING PAID-UP POLICY payable at the time this Policy would be payable if continued in force.

3. If the Policy be not surrendered as above, the insurance will be AUTOMATICALLY EXTENDED from date of default in Premium payments, without any action by the owner of the Policy and without participation in surplus, for a sum equal to the amount of the Policy and existing Dividend Additions, if any, less any indebtedness to the Company hereon.

The Cash Surrender Value will be equal to the entire Net Reserve on this Policy by the American Experience Mortality and interest at Three Per Centum yearly, less any indebtedness to the Company hereon and less a sum equal to one per centum of the amount of this Policy and existing Dividend Additions, if any, up to and including the fifth Policy year, after which the said percentage will be reduced each year one-tenth per centum of the amount insured. If there be no indebtedness the Cash Surrender Value will be as shown in the following Table.

The amount of the Paid-up Policy or the term of the Extended Insurance, will be such as the amount of the Cash Surrender Value will purchase at Net Single Premium rates, according to the attained age of the Insured, by the American Experience Mortality and interest at Three Per Centum yearly, and if there be no indebtedness, will be as shown in the following Table. The Paid-up Policy or the Extended Insurance will be entitled to Cash Surrender Values equal to the reserve thereon at time of surrender, computed upon the basis hereinbefore mentioned, less any indebtedness to the Company thereon.

Except as provided in this Policy any default in Premium payments will immediately render the Policy null and void.

GRACE AND REINSTATEMENT. In event of default in Premium payments, the arrears may be paid within one month (of not less than thirty days) or, if not so paid and the Insured shall die within the said month, this Policy will be regarded as being then in force, and the arrears will be deducted in the settlement hereof; Or, if requested by the Insured prior to or within the said month, the arrears will be charged as an indebtedness against this Policy, bearing interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, provided the entire indebtedness then outstanding shall be within the limit secured by the Cash Surrender Value; Or this Policy may be reinstated at any time after the said month, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the Company and payment of all arrears with interest thereon at not to exceed six per centum per annum: PROVIDED, in any case, the Policy has not been surrendered to the Company.

LOANS. At any time while this Policy is in force the Company will loan on the sole security thereof up to the limit secured by the Cash Surrender Value, upon receipt of the Policy and a Certificate of Loan satisfactory to the Company. The loan will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum and may be paid off at any time while the Policy is in force. If interest be not paid when due, it shall be added to the principal, provided the entire indebtedness then outstanding shall be within the limit secured by the Cash Surrender Value; otherwise non-payment of interest shall render the Policy null and void after one month's notice shall have been mailed to the last known address of the Insured and Assignee, if any.

They are non-forfeitable automatically after three years from date of issue, from which time tables of liberal cash, paid-up, extended insurance, and final values are endorsed. A grace of thirty-one days for the payment of premiums, without interest charge, is granted. Cash loans are available at any time after three years' premiums have been paid. Insured may change beneficiary on written application. Dividends on participating policies are apportioned annually. Restoration may be effected at any time after lapse on proof of insurability and payment of arrears. NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF MONTANA, Butte, Mont. The company issues all forms of ordinary life, limited payment life, and endowment. All are non-participating, but contain the usual up-to-date provisions. Special forms issued are so-called coupon policies which in effect are participating after the second year. These Coupon policies carry the features of Double Indemnity and Permanent and Total Disability, and the Endowment Policies also carry the additional feature of Beneficiary Insurance. These policies are payable in cash upon the death of the insured, or will, at the request of insured, be paid in installments running from five to as high as thirty years; the installments bearing interest.

NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. The prevalent forms of policies issued by this company are the non-participating "Ordinary Life," Endowments at age eighty-five; "Limited Payment Endowment at age eighty-five"; "Endowment" and "Renewable Term," non-participating. All policies are free from restrictions as to residence, travel, and occupation, and after one year are incontestable except for non-payment of premiums and violation of their conditions in regard to military or naval service in time of war. Under all endowment and life policies, liberal values are provided, after three years, in paid-up or extended insurance or cash. Cash loans are also provided available after premiums have been paid for three years.

NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Boston. The company issued new forms of policies in 1913 and the principal forms are ordinary life, limited payment life, and endowment policies with annual dividends.

The ordinary life form is incontestable after one year except for non-payment of premium, and is void if the insured, whether sane or insane, shall die by his own hand or act within one year from date of policy. The rights, options, and non-forfeiture provisions set forth in the policy are made a part of the contract, and read as follows:

PREMIUMS. — All premiums shall be payable in advance at the Home Office in the City of Boston, or, when due, to an Agent of the Company, upon the production and delivery of a receipt signed by the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary.

GRACE. — After this Policy has been in force one year, a grace of thirty-one days, without interest, shall be granted for the payment of premiums, during which time the insurance shall continue in force, but in the event of the death of the Insured during said period, the overdue premium shall be deducted from the amount payable.

SURPLUS. — Upon payment of the second annual premium, and each year thereafter, this Policy shall participate in the distribution of surplus made by the Company, and the share apportioned hereto shall, on the premium date or any anniversary thereof, at the option of the Holder of the Policy, be (a) payable in cash; (b) applied in reduction of premiums; (c) used to purchase non-forfeitable, participating, paid-up additions, convertible into their cash value upon release by the Holder; or (d) left with the Company to accumulate to the credit of the Policy, with interest at not less than three per cent. per annum, payable at the maturity hereof, or withdrawable in cash on demand; but if no election is made on or before the premium date or any anniversary thereof, the share for that year will be held by the Company as provided in Option d.

If any premium remains unpaid at the expiration of the period of grace, the Company will apply the accumulated surplus under Option d to the payment then due, if sufficient to pay not less than a quarter of an annual premium.

LOANS. — At any time after three full annual premiums have been paid on this Policy the Company will loan, upon the sole security hereof legally assigned, an amount which with interest thereon to the end of the policy year during which the application for the loan is made shall be equal to, or at the option of the Holder less than, the loan value at the end of said year, after deducting any indebtedness hereon or secured hereby, and any unpaid portion of the premium for said policy year. Interest on such loan shall be at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable in advance. The whole or any part of such loan may be repaid at any time. Failure to repay the loan, or to pay interest thereon when due, shall not avoid the Policy, unless the total indebtedness hereon or secured hereby, including interest, equals or exceeds the cash value at the time of such failure, nor until thirty-one days after notice has been mailed by the Company to the last known address of the Insured and of the person or persons to whom the Policy is payable.

PREMIUM LOANS. — After two full annual premiums have been paid hereon, and upon legal assignment hereof to the Company prior to the expiration of the period of grace, the Company will charge against this Policy as a premium loan the amount of any premium, less the share of surplus then due, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum; payable in advance; provided the cash value of the Policy and additions shall equal or exceed the amount of such loan, together with any other indebtedness on account of or secured hereby, and interest thereon. Any accumulated surplus held at interest shall first be applied to the payment of the premium, and future shares of surplus shall be applied to the reduction of the premium loan. Upon the filing of such request as may be required by the Company, these provisions, by endorsement hereon, will be made automatic as to future premiums.

PAID-UP OR ENDOWMENT PROVISION. — When the cash value of the Policy and additions, together with any accumulated surplus held at interest, shall equal the reserve for a fully paid-up Policy of the same form and amount at the then attained age of the Insured, the Company will endorse this Policy as fully paid up; or when such aggregate amount, less any indebtedness hereon or secured hereby, shall equal the face of this Policy, the Company will, upon written request and release by all parties in interest, pay such amount as an Endowment.

CONVERSION OPTION. — Upon written request of all parties in interest, this Policy, while in full force, may be exchanged at any anniversary of issue, without medical examination, for any other form of Policy then written, and not involving any other life, at the original age of issue, for an amount whereby the actual insurance liability of the Company shall not be increased, upon payment of the difference between the reserves upon the respective Policies.

NON-FORFEITURE PROVISIONS

In case of default in the payment of any premium, after three full annual premiums have been paid hereon, the Holder of this Policy shall be entitled, by a writing filed with the Company at its Home Office during the period of grace, to elect one of the following options:

First. CASH VALUE. — To surrender the Policy and, with the written assent of the person or persons to whom it is made payable, receive its then cash value, less any indebtedness hereon or secured hereby.

Second. PAID-UP INSURANCE. — To take paid-up insurance for such an amount as the then cash value of the Policy and additions, together with any accumulated surplus held at interest, less any indebtedness hereon or secured hereby, will purchase as a net single premium. Such insurance shall participate annually in the distribution of surplus, and shall have increasing loan and cash values.

Third. EXTENDED INSURANCE. — To have the Policy continued as extended insurance from the anniversary date last past, for its face amount, including any additions, and less any indebtedness hereon or secured hereby, for such time as the then cash value, together with any accumulated surplus held at interest, will purchase as a net single premium, but without the right to loans. Such extended insurance shall have a cash surrender value and shall participate in the annual distribution of surplus, the share apportioned thereto to be payable in cash. If requested in the application, or upon written request of all parties in interest, this option shall be made automatic.

If, during the aforesaid period of grace, the Holder shall not elect one of the foregoing options, this Policy shall be continued as paid-up insurance under the second option, provided the third option has not been made automatic.

(Here are printed Tables of Loan, Cash, Paid-up and Extended Insurance Values.)

REINSTATEMENT. — This Policy may be reinstated after default in the payment of any premium, unless the cash value has been paid or the extension period has expired, upon production of evidence of insurability satisfactory to the Company, the payment or reinstatement of any indebtedness to the Company hereon, and the payment of overdue premiums with interest at six per cent. per annum.

ASSIGNMENT. — No assignment of this Policy shall be binding upon the Company unless the original assignment, or a duplicate thereof, be filed with the Company at its Home Office. All assignments shall be subject to any indebtedness to the Company on account of or secured by this Policy. The Company will assume no responsibility for the validity of any assignment.

INSTALLMENT OPTIONS. — The amount due on this Policy, provided the same be not less than one thousand dollars, may be made payable in equal annual installments, or in equivalent semi-annual, quarterly, or monthly payments, in accordance with whichever of the following options the Insured, or in case he shall fail to exercise his option the Beneficiary, shall elect in writing. Each annual installment certain after the first will be increased by such share of surplus interest as may be apportioned thereto by the Directors.

The options provide for installments, payable for a definite number of years; twenty-five installments certain, and continuous for life, and, continuous installments. Income for life. Tables of installments under each option are printed in the policy.

The company incorporated a waiver of premium agreement in its regular policies in 1914, in the event of permanent total disability occurring before the age of sixty-five. The provision calls for an additional premium, but provides that the loss of the sight of both eyes or the severance of both hands at or above the wrists or of both feet at or above the ankles, or of one entire hand and one entire foot shall be considered as total and permanent disability within the meaning of the agreement.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. The company issues all the usual forms of life, endowment, and limited payment life policies. All policies are participating. New forms issued in 1916 are incontestable after two years, and limit the company's liability to the return of premiums paid in case of self-destruction within two years from date of policy. Cash loan, paid-up and extended insurance values are given after three annual premiums have been paid, but under endowment policies for twenty years or less such values are granted after two annual premiums have been paid.

Two special forms were also issued. They are limited payment life policies under which premium payments cease at age sixty and sixty-five. The disability clause on these forms provide that in case of disability before the end of the premium paying period that all premiums shall be waived and that annual installments of one-tenth of the face amount shall be paid without any reduction being made in the amount payable at death.

The company also revised its disability clause in 1916, and also adopted a double indemnity feature, which may be included in any form carrying the disability feature, and provides for double payment in case of death (before the allowance of any disability benefit), caused directly by accident while traveling as a passenger on a street car, railway train, steamship licensed for regular transportation of passengers, or other public conveyance operated by a common carrier, and provided such death occurs within sixty days after the accident.

The new disability feature varies with the form of policy, but all provide for waiver of premiums, and in addition will provide for the payment of installments in event of disability before age sixty. On the whole life, ten, fifteen, twenty, twenty-five, and thirty-payment life forms installment payments will be one-tenth of the face of the policy annually during the lifetime and continued disability of the insured. If the policy matures by death before the face amount has been paid, the balance will be paid in one sum.

On the ten, fifteen and twenty year endowment forms installments equal one-tenth of the face annually during the continuance of the disability of the insured until death or maturity of the endowment. Upon due proof of the death of the insured within the endowment period, or upon maturity of the endowment, the face amount of the policy will be paid without reduction for any disability installments that may have been paid.

NORTHWESTERN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, THE, Milwaukee. This company issues the usual forms of participating Life and Endowment insurance, with Disability Clause if requested. The first dividend is payable at the end of the first year, and beginning then dividends may be applied towards payment of premiums, or to the purchase of non-forfeitable participating paid-up additions to the policy, or to accumulate at interest. The regular policy contracts now issued provide that the proceeds thereof may be made payable in either one of four ways, namely: in one sum, by an annuity extension, in from two to twenty-five installments, or in a form of continuous installments.

Special Corporation and Partnership policies are issued. The company issues annual dividend ten year term policies, which may be changed to Life or Endowment plan without medical examination during the first seven years. Annuity contracts are issued when desired.

The limit of insurance on a single life is $100,000. No policies are issued to persons below 16 or over 60 years of age, nearest birthday.

The disability and waiver of premium clause is attached for a special premium, and in the event that the disability occurs before age sixty, the agreement provides that the loss of both eyes, both hands, both feet or one foot and one hand shall be considered total disability. The premiums paid under the agreement do not participate in the surplus of the company.

NORTHWESTERN NATIONAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Minneapolis, Minn. This company issues policies on the participating plan. Its principal forms are: Whole Life, Limited Pay Life, Endowment, Endowment Annuity, Ten-Year Term Policy, Graded Endowment, and Continuous Monthly Income. The policies are non-forfeitable and incontestable after one year. Allow thirty-one days' grace in payment of premiums, and loan and surrender values granted after the third annual premium for amounts stipulated in the policy. The policies are without restrictions as to residence, travel, or occupation, and as to military or naval service. Annual dividends payable, beginning at the end of first year, conditioned upon payment of second year's premium.

The company also issues a disability clause providing for the waiver of future premiums in event of total and permanent disability, before the insured attains age sixty. A special premium is charged where the disability clause is attached.

PACIFIC MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF CALIFORNIA, THE, Los Angeles, Cal. This company issues several forms of policies both on the participating and non-participating basis. The participating policies are written on the annual dividend plan only. These policies cover a wide range of forms — whole life, limited payment life and endowment, monthly income, continuous monthly income policies, and business policies. The policies are incontestable after one year except for non-payment of premiums and violation of the agreement as to military service. The company requires a permit for such service in time of war only. Tables of loan and surrender values are printed in the policies, and the company prints a permanent total disability clause in practically all policies, and, on the payment of a small additional charge, includes an agreement whereby the death benefit is doubled in the event of the insured dying as the result of an accident.

PENN MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. This company issues the ordinary forms of Life, Limited Life, and Endowment policies, which are without restrictions as to travel and residence, from the date of issue, and are incontestable after one year, except for non-payment of premiums. The general provisions of all its policies, of which it issues a great variety, are almost identical, except the changes necessary to carry into effect the differences in the plans. All are entitled to surrender values after three annual payments of premiums; and the extension feature applies to all other than special forms. The company lends upon its policies the amounts being specifically stated year by year in the policies themselves, and in its present forms the values are the full American three per cent. reserve. The loan values and cash values are the same in amount, and tables of such values, as well as installment values, are printed in the policy. The policies are terminated by the acceptance of the cash value, but this sum may be borrowed and the policy continued at the option of the insured. The ordinary life form, revised in 1916, contains the following non-forfeiture provisions:

NON-FORFEITURE. If this policy shall lapse through non-payment of premium after three years' premiums have been paid, the company will secure to the owner thereof a form of insurance, the net value of which shall be equal to the full reserve on this policy and on any dividend additions thereto at the date of default, according to the American Experience Table of Mortality, with interest at 3 per cent, less any existing indebtedness to the company on this policy. At the end of the third and succeeding years the cash value is the full reserve, and the paid-up and extension values are the equivalents thereof. The stipulated values of this policy shall be correspondingly increased for any fractional portion of a year's premium which has been paid. This non-forfeiture value shall be secured to the owner of this policy through one of the following provisions:

First: — The automatic extension without participation of the net amount insured by this policy for the number of years and days stated below, at the expiration of which time the insurance shall cease; or,

Second: — The issue of paid-up participating similar endowment insurance for the sum provided for below upon written application therefor by the owner of this policy and the legal surrender of all claims hereunder to the company at its home office within one month after lapse; or,

Third: — The payment, in accordance with Sections VIII and IX hereof, of the cash surrender value provided for below on surrender of this policy, and all claims hereunder to the company within one month from the date of lapse.

XIII. Interest Privilege. The net proceeds of this policy or any designated fraction thereof may at maturity be allowed to remain with the company until the death of the beneficiary, during which period the company will pay to the beneficiary yearly, 3 per cent. on the amount so held, the first payment being made one year after the maturity of this policy and the last payment to be pro-rated to the date of the death of the beneficiary. The interest rate will be improved annually by such addition as may be awarded by the Board of Trustees. Unless otherwise directed by the insured in writing filed with the company, the balance remaining unpaid may be withdrawn at any interest period.

The policy, in event of the default in payment of premium, may be reinstated at any time on evidence of insurability and the payment of all over-due premiums and other indebtedness. The above is a synopsis of the ordinary life form, and other forms of policies issued by the company are: Limited Payment Life; Endowments; Trust Certificates; Optional Term Insurance; Dual Income Endowments; Income Policies, and Continuous Installment Contracts.

Variations in the method of accumulation or use of dividends of surplus give rise to other forms, such as Life Rate Endowment, Accelerative Endowment policies, etc.

The company adopted a provision for waiver of premium in case of permanent total disability, in February, 1916, which is incorporated in its regular life and endowment contracts when desired by the applicant. The provision is as follows:

If after one year's premium shall have been paid on this policy and before default in the payment of any subsequent premium the insured shall furnish to the company due proof that, before attaining the age of sixty, he has become wholly disabled by bodily injury or disease so that he is and thereby will be permanently and continuously unable to engage in any occupation whatever for remuneration or profit, and that such disability has existed continuously for not less than sixty days prior to the furnishing of proof, thereupon the company will grant the following benefits:

a. Waiver of Premium. — The company, by endorsement hereon, shall waive the payment of the premiums which thereafter may become due under this policy during the continuance of the said total disability of the insured. In making any settlement under this policy the company shall not deduct any part of the premiums so waived, and the non-forfeiture values of this policy shall increase from year to year in the same manner as though any premium waived under this provision had been paid in cash;

b. Annuity Payment. — Furthermore, the company will pay to the insured a monthly sum equal to one one-hundred-and-twentieth of the face of this policy, the first monthly payment to be made six months after receipt of due proof of the said total disability accompanied by this policy for endorsement, and subsequently payments monthly thereafter during the continuance of the said total disability of the insured prior to the maturity of this policy. The company will admit the age of the insured when furnished with satisfactory evidence of the date of birth, and reserves the right to require such proof of date of birth at the time proof of disability is furnished. The amount of this policy payable at maturity either as an endowment or as a death claim shall not be reduced by any payments made under this disability provision.

Without prejudice to any other cause of total disability, the entire and irrecoverable loss of the sight of both eyes, or the severance of both hands at or above the wrists, or of both feet at or above the ankles, or of one entire hand and one entire foot, shall be considered as total and permanent disability.

Should the company accept proofs of permanent disability under this policy, it may nevertheless, at any time thereafter, but not oftener than once a year subsequent to the first payment of the disability annuity, demand of the insured due proof of the continuance of such total disability; and upon failure to furnish such proof, or if it be established that the insured has engaged or has become able to engage in any occupation whatever for remuneration or profit, all disability benefits under this policy shall thereupon cease.

While any non-forfeiture provision set forth in Section VII is in effect, or in event of total and permanent disability occurring after age sixty, no disability benefits shall accrue, nor shall any disability benefit apply in case the insured engage in military or naval service in time of war. Upon written request by the insured, accompanied by this policy for endorsement, the provision for disability benefits may be discontinued. If so discontinued, or if the insured attain age sixty, premiums thereafter will be reduced by.....yearly, being the additional premium for such benefits. Non-payment of the said additional premium will void the provisions respecting disability and the benefits secured thereby.

PHILADELPHIA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. This company issues the ordinary forms of Life, Limited Payment Life, Endowment, and Term policies. They may be made payable in one sum, or in annual, semi-annual, quarterly, or monthly installments. The policies vary slightly in their general provisions. They are incontestable after the first year, and are without restrictions for travel, residence, or occupation, from date of issue.

The policies bear loan and surrender values, the extended insurance feature being automatic in event of no other options being selected. A table of the surrender values is contained in the policy. The values are never less than the reserve on American three and one-half per cent. basis, with a maximum deduction of one per cent. of the amount insured. The paid-ups are for the full amount which the reserve would purchase, and the cash values grade up to the tenth year, after which point the full reserve is given. The surrender values are pro-rated for each fraction of a year's premium paid.

The policy may be reinstated in event of default on evidence of insurability, and payment of overdue premiums and interest thereon. The policies participate annually in the dividends which may be withdrawn in cash, used to purchase paid-up additions, or left with the company at interest. To the policy may be attached a rider providing for waiver of premiums in event of total disability.

The company on request will issue a disability clause, which reads as follows:

The company, by endorsement hereon, will waive payment of premiums thereafter becoming due, if the insured, before attaining the age of sixty years, and after paying one full annual premium in cash, and before default in the payment of any subsequent premium, shall furnish proof satisfactory to the company that he has become disabled from bodily injury or disease so that he will be permanently, continuously and wholly prevented thereby from performing any work for compensation or profit. Premiums so waived will not be deducted from death or endowment benefits, nor from the loan or surrender values available hereunder. The insured shall at any time, on demand, furnish the company satisfactory proof of the continuance of such disability; and if he shall fail to furnish such proof, or if it shall appear to the company that the insured is not totally disabled, all premiums thereafter falling due must be paid in conformity with this contract.

In addition to any other cause, the irrecoverable loss of the sight of both eyes, or the severance of both hands at or above the wrist, or of both feet at or above the ankles, or of one entire hand and one entire foot, shall be considered as total disability.

Upon written request, the company will pay, in any contract year during such disability, not more than one-twentieth of the amount insured; or, if there is any indebtedness, not more than one-twentieth of the difference between such indebtedness and the amount insured. Each such payment shall reduce to that extent the amount of the insurance then in force; and in the proportion of such payments to the amount insured shall reduce the loan and surrender values. When the payments so made, together with any indebtedness to the company, equal the amount insured, the company's obligation under this contract shall end.

PHOENIX MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY. All the modern forms of life insurance policies and annuity contracts are issued by this company. They are free from conditions as to travel, residence, or occupation, and do not require an extra premium or permit for military or naval service in time of war or in time of peace. A grace of thirty-one days without interest is allowed in the payment of renewal premiums.

Life and endowment policies contain non-forfeiture values — cash, loan, paid-up, and extended insurance — after two full years' premiums have been paid. The loan value available at the end of the second year may be used toward the payment of the second year's premium. Dividends are payable annually, the first being due at the end of the first year without being conditioned on the payment of the premium for the succeeding year. They may be used to reduce premium, to purchase additions to the face value of the policy, or to accumulate at compound interest as a fund to accelerate the maturity of the policy as an endowment or to shorten the period of premium payment.

Annual premium life policies contain the privilege of changing to a higher premium policy under specific terms of the contract. Limited premium life policies will contain upon request a provision for converting them into endowment policies of the same amount by continuing premium payments after the original policy becomes fully paid up.

Term policies for five, ten, twenty, and thirty years are issued, all of which provide for conversion to life and endowment contracts at any time during a specified period after date of issue, and all except the five-year term provide for renewal of the contract at any time within a specified period.

The company also issues continuous income policies providing for a monthly income to the beneficiary for a definite period after the death of the insured or throughout the lifetime of the beneficiary after the death of the insured, with a guaranteed minimum payable to the beneficiary or the estate of the insured in event that the beneficiary does not live to receive such minimum.

A Waiver-of-Premium agreement will be included in all regular policies, whereby the company will assume the payment of all premiums should the insured become totally and permanently disabled before attaining the age of sixty. The values in the contract increase just as though the premiums were being paid in cash, and certain specific injuries are taken to be total and permanent disability within the meaning of the clause.

PITTSBURGH LIFE AND TRUST COMPANY, Pittsburgh, Pa. This company issues Ordinary Life, Limited Payment, and all forms of Endowment policies on the annual dividend plan. The policies are incontestable after one year, are non-forfeitable, and grant thirty-one days in the payment of premiums. Cash loans are provided after the second year, and surrender and paid-up values are endorsed on the policies. Dividends may be applied to the reduction of succeeding premiums, withdrawn in cash, allowed to compound at three and one-half per cent interest or applied to purchasing paid-up additions to the policy. The company also issues the above mentioned plans payable in limited or continuous installments, also renewable and non-renewable term policies.

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA. This company issues all approved forms of ordinary policies, such as Whole Life, Limited Payment Life, and Endowments. Policies on the Industrial Plan are also issued, and the Weekly Income Industrial Life policy is payable in weekly installments for either thirteen or twenty-six weeks. Regular ordinary policies are written on the participating plan, and contain the following provisions: Non-forfeitable after first year's premium is paid; Automatic Extended Insurance after one year; Annual Cash Surrender, Loan, and Paid-up Values after three years under life policies, and two years under endowments; Occupation, Residence, and Travel absolutely without restriction; incontestable after one year; grace in payment of premiums — thirty-one days, without interest; beneficiary may be changed at any time by insured; liberal revival provisions. When any policy becomes a claim it may be made payable in one sum; or in monthly, quarterly, semi-annual, or annual installments; or continuously during lifetime of beneficiary; or the sum insured may be left with the company as a trust fund at three and one-half per cent interest. Installments or interest payable will be increased by such dividend as may be apportioned. In addition to the above forms of ordinary policies the company issues the following special forms:

Monthly Income Policies and Immediate Benefit and Monthly Income Policies. The distinctive features of these contracts is that upon maturity, whether by death, or the expiration of the endowment period in case of endowments, the benefits will be paid by check in monthly installments, to continue for a selected period of five, ten, fifteen, or twenty years and, by the payment of a slightly higher premium, so long as the beneficiary survives such period, or, in case of endowments, so long as the survivor of the insured and beneficiary survives such period after maturity.

The Immediate Benefit and Monthly Income policies provide for a monthly income as described above and in addition for the payment of a specified amount in one sum at maturity of the policy.

Twenty Payment Life with Pure Endowment Addition. This policy, in addition to the features of a regular Twenty-Payment Life, provides for a Pure Endowment at the end of twenty years, if the insured be then living. One of several options is available to the insured at that time. The surrender values are greater than under a regular Twenty-Payment Life.

Annuities. Annuities, or, as they are sometimes called, income policies, are also issued by the Prudential.

Disability Provision. Regular Ordinary policies contain a provision that, in event of total and permanent disability, further payment of premiums will be waived and policies will be considered as if premiums had been paid, except that if the disability occur after age sixty the premiums waived will be considered an indebtedness against the policy. If, however, the disability occur prior to age sixty, not only will the payment of premiums cease, but the amount of insurance will be paid in monthly, quarterly, semi-annual or annual installments over a period of ten years, the first installment to be paid six months after receipt of proof of such disability. This provision will not be included in policies on the lives of women and policies on sub-standard lives.

RELIANCE LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY of Pittsburgh. The forms of policies are ordinary life, limited payment, and endowment, both participating and non-participating. These forms are also issued as continuous installment, and guaranteed premium reduction policies. The company also issues limited payment life and endowment, mortuary addition policies, and convertible term, non-participating policies.

All policies are incontestable after one year from date of issue, and allow, as provided for by the laws of the various states, grace in payment of premiums and loans after the second year. Cash value, automatic extended insurance, and paid-up insurance are granted after full three years' premiums are paid. The term policies provide for exchange of the policy for any other form issued by the company. A distributive disability clause is included in all policies, providing that premiums will cease upon total and permanent disability and that insured may draw face of policy in installment of one per cent. per month.

The company also issues accident and health insurance, this service being limited, however, to its own life policyholders. These policies cover from the first day of disability without restriction. The weekly indemnity under the accident policy is 104 weeks for total, and 26 weeks for partial disability. The health policy provides for a limit of 52 weeks' disability from any sickness or disease.

The company attaches a disability clause for a special premium, which may be cancelled at any time by the insured, and the clause reads as follows:

If the insured has not attained the age of sixty years after one full annual premium has been paid and before a default in the payment of any subsequent premium, this policy will become fully paid up, requiring no further payment of premiums by the insured, provided evidence, satisfactory to the company, shall be furnished by the insured that he has become totally and permanently disabled for life by bodily injury or disease, and is thereby prevented from performing any and every kind of duty pertaining to his occupation or any other occupation or gainful pursuit. On receipt of such evidence the company will endorse the proper provision hereon. In such event the cash, loan, and surrender values shall increase from year to year, and this policy shall participate in any distribution of surplus in its class in like manner as if the premiums had been regularly and duly paid by the insured.

During the period of total and permanent disability, and at any time one year after the premium anniversary date first following the date of such disability, the company will, at the request of the insured and beneficiary or assignee, if any, pay a monthly income amounting to 1 per cent of the face value of the policy, if there be no existing indebtedness, or if there be such indebtedness, 1 per cent of the face value of the policy less such indebtedness; such payments to continue until the total amount of payments made shall equal the face of the policy, less all indebtedness, if, any, at which time the company's liability under this contract shall cease. In the event of the death of the insured before the full amount of this policy has been paid to the insured, beneficiary, or assignee, the company will pay the remaining amount due under this contract upon due proof of death. The cash, loan, and surrender values will bear the same proportion to the full cash, loan, and surrender values stated in table, on page 2, as the remaining amount of insurance under this contract bears to the original amount of insurance.

If, however, the insured shall recover, so as to be able to engage in any occupation for wages or profit during the premium payment period, or before the full amount of the policy is paid, he shall then be required to pay all premiums becoming due under this contract after the date of recovery, and the liability of the company will be limited to the face of the policy less all payments made to insured and less all indebtedness thereon.

RESERVE LOAN LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Indianapolis. The principal forms are the twenty-payment life and endowment policies, non-participating. The legal reserve under the company's policies is deposited with the state insurance department.

The policies are free from conditions as to residence, occupation, travel, and military service, incontestable after one year, if premiums are paid, and grant thirty-one days' grace in payment of premium without interest. The first year's insurance is term insurance.

Loan, cash, paid-up, and extended insurance values are endorsed on the policies. Suicide within one year from date of policy is a risk not assumed and in such case premiums actually paid will be returned. Reinstatement may be made at any time on evidence of good health. Payment of the proceeds of the policy either in one sum or in monthly or annual installments is optional with the insured, and tables of installment values are printed in the policy.

A double indemnity, and a total permanent disability clause is attached to company's forms, for an additional premium, and which may be cancelled by the insured on any anniversary of the policy. A special certificate is also included, promising an advance payment of one hundred dollars to the beneficiary which shall apply on account of any amount due under the policy.

SOUTHERN LIFE AND TRUST COMPANY, Greensboro, N. C. The principal form issued is a limited (twenty) payment life, annual dividend policy, and carrying a disability benefit provision. The policy is incontestable after one year, if premium is paid, but is void if insured commit suicide within one year from date. The disability provision is null and void if the insured engage in military or naval service in time of war. Non-forfeitable privileges are granted after the third year, and cash, loan, and paid-up values are printed in the policy. Optional methods of paying dividends are provided, and dividends may be used to reduce the next premium, to purchase additional insurance, left to accumulate, in which case they may be used to reduce the premium paying period or to mature the policy as an endowment. Similarly installment privileges are provided under which the policy at maturity will be paid in limited or continuous installments.

Thirty-one days' grace in payment of premium are granted, also re-instatement and change of beneficiary privileges, and change of policy to other regular forms issued by the company.

The disability benefit provision is granted for a special annual premium, and at the request of "all parties in interest," and as to dividends the policy is put in a special class. The disability must occur before age sixty and must be such as to render the insured "wholly, continuously, and permanently unable to pursue or engage in any gainful occupation or perform any work mental or manual for compensation or profit." The benefits provided are as follows:

Six months thereafter if "such disability" continue the company will pay to the insured one-tenth of the face amount of this policy, and at successive intervals of one year after the date of payment of the first installment, during "such disability" one-tenth of the face amount until the same shall have been fully paid; each installment so paid shall reduce by the amount thereof the insurance in force, and the loan values and non-forfeiture privileges shall be proportionately reduced in amount. Any paid-up addition may remain in force until the last installment is paid, when it shall be surrendered for its full reserve value. If at any time the cash surrender value of the reduced insurance is less than any indebtedness hereunder, the difference in amount shall be deducted from the succeeding installment and the indebtedness correspondingly reduced. If the insured does not live to receive all of the installments, or if this policy matures as an endowment during "such disability" and before ten such installments have been paid, the insurance as reduced shall be paid, as provided on the first page hereof.

This policy must be forwarded to the home office of the company for the endorsement of each payment as the same becomes due.

Proofs of the continuance of "such disability" satisfactory to the Company shall be furnished as often as requested by the company by written notice mailed to the registered address of the insured, and the company shall be permitted to examine the insured physically from time to time, but not oftener than once a year. If the insured neglects or refuses to furnish such proofs or to submit to such physical examination, or if it is established that the insured has wholly or partly recovered from "such disability" the company will discontinue payment of installments and require the payment in cash of all premiums thereafter becoming due hereunder. The sum of all premiums previously waived upon the presumption of "such disability" shall thereupon become a lien upon this policy with interest payable annually.

Special Causes of Disability: The company will consider as "such disability" the entire and irrecoverable loss of the sight of both eyes or the severance of both hands at or above the wrists or of both feet at or above the ankles or of one entire hand and one entire foot.

STANDARD LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA, Pittsburgh. The principal forms issued are twenty payment life and ordinary life, non-participating, and are issued on the preliminary term plan. The forms are incontestable after one year, and free from restrictions as to travel, occupation, or place of death, but in case of suicide of the insured within one year only the net reserve on the policy will be paid. Thirty-one days' grace in payment of premiums is granted, reinstatement may be made at any time on evidence of insurability, and a waiver of premium clause is included, under which the insurance is carried by the company, in case of the permanent total disability of the insured, occurring prior to age sixty. Paid-up, cash, and extended insurance values are printed in the policy, and loans are available on the security of the policy after three annual premiums have been paid.

A special temperance clause is incorporated in the regular life form, which reads:

"A low premium is charged for this policy because the insured totally abstains from the use of alcoholic beverages, and the company may cancel this policy at any time within one year from its date of issue should he not continue to abstain from their use."

Optional modes of settlement are provided, under which the proceeds of the policy are paid in a guaranteed number of annual installments, or life income.

STATE MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Worcester, Mass. This company issues several forms of policies, but its principal forms are life and endowment policies, annual dividends. All policies are subject to the non-forfeitable law of Massachusetts, and the values under the non-forfeiture provisions are printed in the policy. The policies are incontestable after one year from date of issue except for non-payment of premium, and may be reinstated at any time, provided it has not been surrendered for its cash value or its extension period expired, on satisfactory evidence of insurability and payment or reinstatement of indebtedness under the policy. Dividends may be paid in cash, applied in reduction of premiums, or to the purchase of paid-up additions, or left with the company to accumulate, and applied to make the policy fully paid-up or to accelerate its maturity. Optional modes of settlement are provided and tables of installment values printed in the policy.

The company issues a disability benefit for a special premium, and the clause reads as follows:

If the insured hereunder, after the payment of one full year's premium on this policy, and while no premium is in default, shall furnish due proofs that, before reaching the age of sixty years, because of accident or disease he has become wholly, continuously and permanently unable to pursue any gainful occupation and presumably for life will be unable to perform any work, mental or manual, or engage in any business for compensation or profit, and that such disability was sustained or contracted after the date hereof, the company will with the written assent of all the parties in interest, pay to the insured, one-tenth of the face amount of this policy, and a like amount annually thereafter, on the anniversary of the first installment payment, during the continuance of such disability, until said face amount, less any indebtedness hereunder, shall have been paid in full, or until the maturity of the policy when any unpaid remainder of the sum insured, less any indebtedness, shall be paid as provided in this policy. The value of any dividend additions or accumulations then outstanding shall be payable with the final payment. The first installment shall be paid one year after the receipt of such proof of said disability, and then only if it shall appear that the insured is still totally, permanently, and incurably disabled as defined above. During said year any medical examiner, or other accredited representative of the company, shall be permitted to examine the person of the insured in respect of the alleged disability, at such time and in such manner as the company may desire. The payment of any premium during said year shall be waived, and this policy shall continue in force as if such premium had been paid.

Each annual installment so paid shall reduce by the amount thereof the insurance in force, and the values provided under non-forfeiture provisions hereunder shall be for the reduced amount, subject to any existing indebtedness.

This policy must be forwarded to the home office for endorsement of the payment of each disability installment.

Whenever the cash surrender value of the reduced insurance is less than any indebtedness hereunder, the difference in amount shall be deducted from the succeeding installment, and the indebtedness correspondingly reduced.

Whenever the amount of the installments paid together with any indebtedness hereunder, shall equal the face amount of the policy and the value of any dividend additions or accumulations, the liability of the company shall cease.

By the acceptance of this contract the insured agrees that, after the said installments become payable as above described, any medical examiner appointed by the company shall be allowed from time to time, but not oftener than once a year, to satisfy himself of the continuance of such disability by the examination of the person of the insured, and if it is established that the insured has recovered so as to be able to again engage in some gainful occupation or has so engaged, or if the insured refuses to permit such examination by a medical examiner, no further installment payments will be made by the company. But of the amount of insurance shall then have been reduced under the foregoing provisions, such reduced amount of insurance shall thereafter be the face amount of the policy and the premiums thereafter becoming due will be in proportion to the reduced amount of insurance, and all benefits under the policy will be reduced accordingly. During the period of disability, as defined above, the premiums hereon shall be waived.

If this policy becomes paid-up for a reduced amount or is continued in force as extended insurance, no disability benefits shall attach to it nor to any dividend additions payable hereunder.

The total and irrecoverable loss of the entire sight of both eyes, the severance of both hands above the wrist or both feet above the ankle, or similar loss of one foot and one hand, shall be considered as total and permanent disability within the meaning of this provision.

The policies are incontestable after one year from date of issue, except for non-payment of premium and in event of suicide the company will be liable only for the amount of premiums paid on the policy. The policies are free of restrictions, grant thirty days' grace in payment of premiums, and provide for change of beneficiary. Participation in dividends is provided after the second annual premium has been paid and apportionment of dividends is made annually thereafter. Cash values, paid-up insurance, and cash loans are guaranteed after the payment of two full years' premiums on limited payment life and endowment policies, and three full years' premiums on whole life policies, and after one full year's premium has been paid on limited payment life, or endowment policies, or two full years' premiums on whole life policies, the full amount of insurance (less any indebtedness on the policy) is automatically extended for as long a time as the entire net reserve on the policy (less any indebtedness thereon) will pay for at net single premium rates. Dividends will be applied to the purchase of additional paid-up insurance payable when the policy is payable, or, at the option of the insured will be (a) Paid in cash, or (b) Applied to the reduction of the current premium, or (c) May be left with the company to accumulate at interest. The forms are automatically non-forfeitable from date of issue.

STANDARD HEALTH AND ACCIDENT PROVISIONS. Minnesota in 1909 enacted legislation prescribing standard provisions for policies of accident and health insurance, and as well prohibiting the issuance of policies in the state containing certain other provisions. Minnesota took the lead in such legislation applying to accident and health companies, and standard policy provision laws have been enacted in Oregon, Wisconsin, Michigan, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, North Dakota, Idaho, Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire, California, Minnesota, Utah, New York, Washington, Arizona, and Virginia. Forms in the above states must be approved by the insurance commissioner, and Colorado in addition requires that forms be filed with and approved by the commissioner before being issued.

The earlier legislation was general and only required that policies contain certain provisions, and the laws of Maine, Arizona, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Washington, Virginia, and Wisconsin only require certain provisions and do not prescribe the wording of such provisions. Laws enacted in 1913 provided that the act take effect January 1, 1914, and provided that "no policy of insurance against loss or damage from the sickness, or the bodily injury, or death of the insured by accident shall be issued or delivered . . . until a copy of the form thereof and the classification of risks and the premium rates pertaining thereto have been filed with the insurance commissioner." A refusal by the commissioner to approve a form may be reviewed by the courts. The following section is also a part of the acts:

Section 2. No such policy shall be so issued or delivered (1) unless the entire money and other considerations therefor are expressed in the policy; nor (2) unless the time at which the insurance thereunder takes effect and terminates is stated in a portion of the policy preceding its execution by the insurer; nor (3) unless every printed portion thereof and of any endorsements or attached papers shall be plainly printed in type of which the face shall be not smaller than ten point; nor (4) unless a brief description thereof be printed on its first page, and on its filing back in type of which the face shall be not smaller than fourteen point; nor (5) unless the exceptions of the policy be printed with the same prominence as the benefits, to which they apply.

provided, however, that any portion of such policy which purports, by reason of the circumstances under which a loss is incurred, to reduce any indemnity promised therein to an amount less than that provided for the same loss occurring under ordinary circumstances, shall be printed in boldface type and with greater prominence than any other portion of the text of the policy.

Then follows the text of the provisions, which, with the exceptions above noted, are contained in the laws of Connecticut, New York, Michigan, North Carolina, North Dakota, New Hampshire, Vermont, and Minnesota, and it is provided that the standard provisions shall be preceded by the caption "Standard Provisions." The policy provisions must be stated in the exact words of the law. [For text of the provisions see Cyclopedia of Insurance for 1911-13, life volume.]

Section 5 provides that no policy shall be issued or delivered if it contains any provision contradictory, in whole or in part, of any of the "standard" or "optional standard" provisions; prohibits endorsements which "vary, alter, extend, be used as a substitute for, or in any way conflict" with the prescribed provisions, and prohibits also "any provision purporting to make any portion of the charter, constitution, or by-laws of the insurer a part of the policy unless such portion of the charter, constitution, or by-laws shall be set forth in full in the policy." The provision does not apply to any statement of rates or classification of risks filed with the insurance commissioner.

PROVIDENT LIFE AND TRUST COMPANY OF PHILADELPHIA, THE, was incorporated March 22, 1865. The charter confers, in addition to the authority to insure lives, authority to act as executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, etc.; that is, to transact what is known as trust business. The union of its trust business with its insurance business demands from the courts of the city of Philadelphia a careful scrutiny of its methods, and an examination from time to time of its securities by skillful experts. The relations of the two departments of the business are fixed by the provisions of the charter. The accounts and investments are kept distinct and separate. The entire surplus of the insurance department accumulates for the benefit of the policyholders. The only advantage, direct or indirect, which the stockholders can at any time have from the union of the two features of the business results from the fact that the management of the trust business, from which they derive their profits, is done for them without charge.

To be relieved from the expense of management is an advantage to the stockholders, but not more than commensurate with the benefit which the policyholders derive from the additional security arising from the large capital, the active supervision by the stockholders of the affairs of the company, and the association of the life insurance and trust business. While the expenses of a trust business, if conducted separately, would be large, the additional cost to this company of conducting the trust business jointly with the life insurance is inconsiderable, viewed in connection with the advantages secured. This, however, has not had the effect of increasing the general rate of expense of the company. The great economy and care with which its affairs have been conducted have caused it to be distinguished for its very low expense rate. This, joined with its exceptionally favorable rate of mortality, has resulted in a very low net cost of insurance to its policyholders.

PRUDENTIAL INSURANCE COMPANY OF AMERICA, THE, with home offices in Newark, N. J., was founded by John F. Dryden, pioneer of industrial insurance in America, and opened an entirely new field in American life insurance.

It was the first company in this country to do business on the industrial plan, the distinguishing features of which are the insuring of every member of the family between the ages of one and sixty-five, if in good health, the issuing of small policies with correspondingly small premiums, payable weekly, and the collection of premiums by an agent of the company at the homes of the policyholders.

Through this industrial form of insurance a great many persons who cannot afford to pay the premium required for a policy of $1,000 are enabled to secure as large an amount of life insurance as their means will warrant, and by providing for weekly payments of a few cents each, it meets the needs of the industrial classes.

The Prudential was organized as a stock company, and continued as such until 1915, when, after necessary legal processes, the majority of the stock was purchased by the company for the policyholders and the company effectively mutualized. Control of the Prudential for all time thus passed to its policyholders, who will control its assets, and manage its affairs through a directorate selected by themselves. Much of the Prudential insurance has been written on a non-participating basis, but from now on, with the exception of paid-up insurance issued in lieu for lapsed policies, the entire business will participate in the company's surplus earnings, without any increase in premium rates. Therefore, those who have policies issued as non-participating will share in this distribution of the company's earnings.

The Prudential began business in November, 1875, and confined its operations to the city of Newark for two years, when the remainder of the state of New Jersey was occupied. In 1879 the company entered the states of New York and Pennsylvania, and year after year it extended the scope of its operations until the Prudential now operates in forty-four states and territories, the District of Columbia and the Dominion of Canada.

The great and growing popularity of this company is shown by the fact that during 1915 the Prudential issued and revived 2,580,678 industrial policies, insuring $385,577,476, while on December 31, 1915, the total number of industrial policies in force was 12,871,638, and the total amount of industrial insurance in force at that time was $1,695,288,349.

But industrial insurance does not by any means comprise the sole business of the Prudential. Although this company was organized with the intention of transacting industrial business, it was soon found that the habits of thrift fostered in the people who carried small policies enabled many of them to provide for a greater amount of protection than was afforded them by the industrial policy. Those who at first found it difficult to save enough to pay the premium on a small policy after a time applied for an additional amount of insurance, and even this was added to until some persons carried several policies.

In view of this fact the company was led, in 1886, to open an ordinary "life and endowment" department, in which all the popular forms of life and endowment policies are now issued for sums from $500 up to $100,000. This department has continually grown in popularity, until in amount of business written annually in annual income, and other features, it far surpasses many life insurance companies, which issue ordinary business exclusively.

During 1915 the Prudential issued and revived ordinary insurance of $195,513,413 (paid-for business) closing the year with paid-for ordinary insurance in force to the amount of $1,114,791,975, a gain in paid-for insurance during the year of $89,856,158.

Taking the record of the company as a whole, the Prudential issued and revived during 1915 paid-for insurance amounting to $581,090,889, and the total amount of paid-for insurance in force on December 31st was $2,810,080,324. The assets of the Prudential on January 1, 1916, were $383,982,866.78, an increase during the year of $22,878,549.85. Its liabilities on the same date were $365,790,933.33, and its surplus of assets over liabilities, after expending $16,967,891.85 in the purchase of capital stock for the policyholders, and providing for dividend funds to policyholders of over $32,000,000 was $18,191,933.45. In the year 1915 the company's income was $112,635,861.42, an increase over the previous year of $9,409,850.44.

The Prudential was the first company to adopt the practice of paying claims upon the day that satisfactory proofs of death are received. This practice has been strictly adhered to from the organization of the company, and is of the utmost importance, particularly to the industrial classes, for while the amount of policy in each case is not large (an average of about $118) the payment often comes at a time when there is no ready money to be had and the policy is the only available asset. A large number of The Prudential's claims are now paid by order of the company's field representatives, who are thus enabled to make the payment of the amount due under the policy within a few hours after the death of the insured. Promptness in paying claims practically doubles the usefulness of life insurance.

Over 2,000,000 death claims have been paid by the company in the industrial and ordinary departments combined, since its organization, and its total payments to policyholders during the same period on such account amount to over $275,000,000. It is estimated that over 7,000,000 people have been directly benefited by this money. In 1915, 144,913 claims were paid, an average of over 2,786 every week, and over 483 for every Prudential working day.

The total amount paid to policyholders during 1915 was $43,043,862.33.

The growth of The Prudential has been steady from the beginning and in recent years rapid, as shown by the following tabular statement:

Year	Assets	Paid policyholders	Policies in Force	Insurance in Force
1880.....	$168,154	$57,256	87,462	$7,347,892

The industrial policyholders of The Prudential have particularly benefited from time to time by the many additional benefits not provided for in their policies.

In January, 1916, The Prudential started issuing its latest and most liberal industrial policy, containing a disability provision and an accident clause, both granted without additional cost to the insured. Under this policy payment of premiums cease when the insured reaches age seventy. The policy provides for paid-up values after three years, and cash surrender values annually after ten years. It is very popular.

The Prudential's Monthly Income policy, issued in its ordinary department, has marked a new era in life insurance. This policy is designed especially for the protection of the widow as regards investment of the proceeds of an insurance policy. The contract provides for a monthly income payable after the death of the insured, to the beneficiary for 5, 10, 15, or 20 years, or for life (for period selected at least), or, in event of the policy being an endowment, the income would be payable to the insured himself. The Prudential also recently inaugurated an Industrial Weekly Income Policy thus being the first company to distribute weekly payments under the Industrial plan of life insurance.

RESERVES IN LIFE INSURANCE — WHY THEY ARE NECESSARY.* The word "Reserves" as used in life insurance is apt to be misleading, because it has a different meaning in connection with banking. In a bank the reserve is not a fund to meet the deposits, but is an additional guarantee to depositors. It is therefore in the nature of surplus. In life insurance, however, the reserve is the fund which is necessary to meet the obligations as they accrue. The necessity for the mathematical reserve may be seen from the following simple explanation:

If the policyholders were to pay annually their actual share of the death losses according to their attained age, there would be no necessity for a reserve at the end of each policy year. This may be readily seen by considering that the company experiences the American Table of Mortality, and that each person is called upon to pay the death rate per thousand dollars on that table. If a man were thirty-five years of age, he would pay \$8.95; if forty-five, \$11.16; if fifty-five, \$18.57; if sixty-five, \$40.13; if seventy-five, \$94.37 per thousand. The rapid increase in rate suggests that it is not to the advantage of persons to take their insurance in this way because the older the age the greater the cost. This is the reverse of the natural condition, where the heavier cost should be paid during the producing years. In Whole Life Policies, therefore, a level premium is charged which is an equivalent of the gradually increasing rate. For example, at age thirty-five the premium, without margin for expenses, for a whole Life Policy on the basis of the American Table of Mortality with $3\frac{1}{2}\%$ interest, is \$19.91, which is greater than the death rate per thousand under the American Table up to age fifty-seven. If the calculations are mathematically correct, a group of men who paid the Ordinary Life premium would in the end be in the same position as a group of men who paid the annual or increasing premium, taking account of compound interest. In order to accomplish this result, the excess premiums in the early policy years must be accumulated with interest to meet the time when the actual cost of the insurance is less than the level premium. The reserve is the guarantee that the company can, in spite of the insufficient premiums of the later years, meet the heavier death losses at the older ages.

The necessity of carrying a reserve under Ordinary Life policies may be looked at from another standpoint. Before the policy is issued the value of the benefit granted by the company must be equal to the value of the obligation assumed by the policyholder, leaving out of account all questions of expenses, and dealing with the matter solely from the mathematical standpoint. If that were not so, then the company is giving too much benefit for the premium, or is charging the insured too large a premium for the benefit. One year after the policy is issued, the liability of the company, which is, to pay the sum insured, must be larger than at the date of issue, because the insured is older and nearer the time when death will occur. On the other hand, the value of the obligation of the insured, which is, to pay the premiums, is smaller than at the date of issue because he is one year older and less premiums will be received in the future. The difference between the obligation of the company and that of the insured increases with advancing age, and represents the reserve.

The method of looking at the reserve as an accumulation of over payments is called the retrospective method because, in order to calculate the reserve on any particular policy, we consider the excess of premiums paid over the cost, plus accumulated interest. When we look towards the future to determine the value of the company's liability for death benefits and of the insured's liability for payment of premiums, it is called the prospective method, and was described in the preceding paragraph.

Under Limited Payment Life policies the excess premium is paid for the privilege of discontinuing premium payments at the end of a stated number of years. These excess premiums must be carefully invested at interest so that the reserve after all premiums are paid will be equal to the mathematical single premium which the company must have in hand to pay all future death losses without further payment of premium. Under an Endowment insurance the reserve must consist of a sum which would be sufficient to meet the death loss and accumulate an amount equal to the face of the policy in event of the insured being alive at the end of a stated number of years.

DEMONSTRATION OF RESERVE. An illustration of the reserve calls for a lengthy table unless an advanced age is taken. At age ninety the limit of the American table is reached in six years, but a demonstration at such an age must be considered from the theoretical standpoint, as life insurance companies do not generally issue policies above age sixty-five. It should be understood that while all the lives are supposed to die under the American Table at age ninety-six, the experience of the companies in recent years has shown instances of persons living beyond that age. The following table gives the number living out of 100,000 persons who entered at age ten, the number dying being given at each age from ninety to ninety-five.

Age	Number Living	Number Dying
90	847	385
91	462	246
92	216	137
93	79	58
94	21	18
95	3	3

The premium for the Whole Life Insurance is $502.68 per thousand. The following is a financial exhibit of the transaction, allowing interest at 3%, and leaving out of account the question of expense.

Age	Premiums	Interest	Death Losses	Reserve	Reserve Per Policy
90	$425,770	$12,773	$385,000	$53,543	$116
91	232,238	8,573	246,000	48,354	224
92	108,579	4,708	137,000	24,641	312
93	39,712	1,931	58,000	8,284	394
94	10,556	565	18,000	1,405	468
95	1,508	87	3,000	1,000
	$818,363	$28,637	$847,000

The initial figure of $425,770 is obtained by multiplying the premium of $502.68 by the number of persons living at age ninety, who are each assumed to pay a premium for $1,000 insurance. Interest for a year at 3% is $12,773, which, added to the premium, leaves available the sum of $438,543, out of which is paid the death losses at the end of the year, of $385,000; i.e., $1,000 on 385 persons who die between ages ninety and ninety-one. The balance of $53,543 is the total reserve, which divided by the number of persons living at the end of the year, 462, gives the reserve per thousand of $116.

As will now be shown, the reserve of $53,543 is needed to meet the future liability and is not surplus.

Reserve fund at end of first year	$53,543
Premiums received from 462 persons	232,238
Fund in hand at beginning of second year	$285,781
Interest for one year at 3 %	8,573
	<hr/>
Deduct death losses on 246 persons	$294,354
	246,000
	<hr/>
Reserve fund at end of second year	$48,354 .

As there are 216 policies remaining in force at the end of the year the reserve per thousand would be $224.

Particular attention is drawn to the fact that the sum of the second year's premiums and the second year's interest is not sufficient to pay the year's death losses, and, accordingly, the company has to draw from the reserve fund to the extent of about $5,000.

By inspecting the table already given, it will be seen that the premiums for the third, fourth, and fifth years, and interest for the same years are less than the death losses. For example, during the third policy year the premiums and interest amount to $113,287, while the death losses amount to $137,000, thus creating a deficit of about $24,000.

It should be noted that while the reserve held by the company decreases, the reserve per policy or per thousand increases, because there are fewer persons to share in this reserve.

The death losses for the three men who die before attaining age ninety-six are exactly met from the reserve in hand at the end of the preceding year, the premiums paid at the beginning of the year and the interest thereon, so that when the death losses are paid to those who enter age ninety-five, but do not attain age ninety-six, the fund is exhausted.

Three facts are brought out clearly from the foregoing demonstration: first, that the reserve is necessary to carry the contract to completion; second, that the reserve is an obligation of the company and is not of the nature of surplus; third, that the reserve is drawn upon to meet death losses when the level premium is insufficient in the later years of the policy.

SURETY AND FIDELITY INSURANCE. This kind of insurance, the guaranteeing of the fidelity of employees of corporations and public officials holding places of trust, and the giving of bonds for executors and administrators of estates, was barely transacted fifteen years ago, but has had a rapid growth within a few years. Its use has become general throughout the United States, and new companies to do this class of business are constantly forming. The New York State insurance department makes a distinction between surety and fidelity insurance, and requires companies to make separate reports of the business done in each kind. Defining it generally, surety insurance is going on the bond with administrators and executors of estates, and fidelity insurance giving bond guaranteeing the honesty of employees and public officials, and becoming pecuniarily responsible therefor. [See Corporate Suretyship, this volume.]

Fritch, treasurer; Thomas Wood, secretary.

UNION CENTRAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, Cincinnati, Ohio. This company was organized in 1867 by persons affiliated with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and it has generally been dominated by individuals of that religious sect. Its articles of incorporation, executed January 30, 1867, authorized a capital stock of $500,000, but this amount was subsequently limited in Article 1 of the by-laws to $100,000, at which amount it remained until June, 1908. Article 2 of the by-laws also provided that stockholders should receive a dividend of five per cent. on their paid-up capital stock twice a year; on April 1 and October 1; and that the only other dividends to which they would be entitled would consist of such profits as the company would derive from the sale of non-participating policies. Comparatively little non-participating business was written until 1892-3 and such profits, if any, as were made on it were paid into the general surplus fund. A report of the actuary of the company in 1905 placed the results of the non-participating business up to that time at an apparent deficit of $95,082. On January 1, 1908, the year in which the capital was increased from $100,000 to $500,000 by a declaration of a stock dividend of $400,000 out of claimed non-participating policy profits, the admitted assets of the company were $62,242,435.60; its general surplus, $2,410,619.70. In that year, also, the actuary of the company reported the existence of an accumulated non-participating surplus of $779,788, the accuracy of which was challenged by the actuary employed by the Insurance Commissioners of Colorado, Michigan, Connecticut, Vermont, Virginia, Minnesota, and Ohio. The attorney-general of Ohio brought quo-warrant proceedings against the stockholders to prevent the consummation of the stock increase, but was finally defeated in the courts of Ohio. The finding of the Supreme Court was virtually to the effect that the entire surplus of the company belongs to the stockholders. On March 1, 1916, a second stock dividend of $2,000,000 was declared out of non-participating profits, $1,500,000 of which was distributed among stockholders, the remaining $500,000 being deposited in the company's treasury for future disposition.
